AN INTERESTING PAINT TEST

There is a very simple and interesting chemical test by which to detect impurity in paint materials. Thousands and thousands of people, all over the country, are making this test. It is a sure way to safeguard against the many adulterated white leads which are on the market. Any one can make the test—all that is needed is a simple little instrument which may be had free by writing National Lead Company, 1902 Trinity Building, New York, and asking for Houseowner's Painting Outfit No. 49. The outfit includes also a set of color schemes for exterior or interior painting, or both, if you wish, and a book of specifications. No houseowner should make any arrangements for painting till he gets this outfit.

One can't expect a satisfactory painting job without pure white lead. There is a way to make sure you're getting a pure white lead—without testing it. See that the keg bears National Lead Company's famous Dutch Boy Painter trademark, which is a positive guarantee of purity. Your dealer probably has this white lead. If not let National Lead Company know.

To Help Him Save.

H. H. Rogers plunged into the politics of Fairhaven last month in order to secure prohibition for the beautiful Massachusetts town that is his birthplace.

"Mr. Rogers is against drinking," said a Fairhaven man. "He thinks, for one thing, that drinking brings on extravagance and thriftlessness.

"Mr. Rogers stopped and shook hands with me on the street the other morning.

"Glad to see you out again," he said. "Hope you'll vote the right ticket. You've been sick, haven't you?"

"Yes," said I. "Stomach trouble. I guess I won't get to the Easter blow-out. The doctor has ordered me to give up champagne."

"You haven't paid his bill, yet, eh?" said Mr. Rogers, and he walked off chuckling.

All Over.

While work on a new building was going on in a southern town not long ago an old negro employed as a hod-carrier suddenly slipped while nearing the third story and plunged headlong to the ground. Several passers-by rushed over expecting to find a man dead with a broken neck, as the old fellow had struck squarely on the top of his head. Finding the old man still alive some one emptied the contents of a whisky bottle down his throat. In a few moments the old negro sat up and looked around.

"How do you feel now, uncle?" asked a bystander kindly.

"Well, sah," came the reply, "I wuz sorter confused when I fust started, but now dat I's hit I's all right!"

NOT DRUGS

Food Did It.

After using laxative and cathartic medicines from childhood a case of chronic and apparently incurable constipation yielded to the scientific food, Grape-Nuts, in a few days.

"From early childhood I suffered with such terrible constipation that I had to use laxatives continuously going from one drug to another and suffering more or less all the time.

"A prominent physician whom I consulted told me the muscles of the digestive organs were partially paralyzed and could not perform their work without help of some kind, so I have tried at different times about every laxative and cathartic known, but found no help that was at all permanent. I had finally become discouraged and had given my case up as hopeless when I began to use the pre-digested food, Grape-Nuts.

"Although I had not expected this food to help my trouble, to my great surprise Grape-Nuts digested immediately from the first and in a few days I was convinced that this was just what my system needed.

"The bowels performed their functions regularly and I am now completely and permanently cured of this awful trouble.

"Truly the power of scientific food must be unlimited." "There's a Reason."

CROUNSE IS AT REST.

Ex-Governor of Nebraska Passes Away.

Omaha.—Former Governor Lorenzo Crouse died on the stroke of midnight Thursday. He had been ill for a long time, and at different periods of his illness had seemed on the verge of death, but had rallied in rather remarkable fashion. For the last few days the former governor had been failing rapidly.

Lorenzo Crouse was born at Sharon, in Schoharie county, N. Y., Jan. 27, 1834, of German descent, both his grandparents being born across the water. He was the youngest of seven children, and when a boy worked in his father's tannery. He was educated in the common schools and attended two terms at the New York conference seminary, teaching school in the winter to earn money for his expenses during the summer terms.

When 21 years of age he began the study of law and was admitted to the bar in 1857, at Ft. Plain, Montgomery county, N. Y., opening an office in that town, where he practiced until the breaking out of the civil war, when he rallied at Ft. Plain Battery K, First regiment, New York Light artillery, being chosen captain of the company. He served four years and was engaged in several battles, being severely wounded while holding Beverly's ford on the Rappahannock river. When partially recovered he resigned his command and in 1864 moved to Nebraska, settling at Rulo, in Richardson county.

In the election in October of that year the future governor of his state was chosen as one of the county's representatives in the territorial legislature. Two years later he was appointed a member of the committee on judiciary, revision of the statutes, and to draft a constitution to be submitted to the voters of the territory at the next election. In October, 1866, he was elected a justice of the supreme court, being nominated by unanimous vote in the republican state convention held in Plattsburgh. He assumed this office in March, 1867, when the state was admitted, and served a term of six years and was assigned to the third, or northern district, comprising all the states north of the Platte river excepting the counties of Douglas and Sarpy.

Governor Crouse declined a re-nomination to the bench at the expiration of his judicial term, but in 1872 was nominated on the third ballot in state convention for member of the lower house of congress. He was elected that fall against General Silas A. Strickland and John Taffe, receiving 17,000 of the 27,000 votes cast. He was re-elected to congress in 1874, but in 1876 was defeated for the senate.

At the close of his congressional campaign, Mr. Crouse took up his abode on a farm in Washington county and in 1879 was appointed internal revenue collector for Nebraska by President Hayes. Twelve years later President Harrison appointed him assistant secretary of the treasury. In 1892 he was elected governor, serving one term and refusing re-nomination. As private citizen he resided on his farm in Washington county until 1900, when he was nominated and elected a member of the state senate.

Mrs. Howe's Opinion. Mrs. Julia Ward Howe's sense of the ridiculous has always been a saving grace, leading her to avoid grandiloquence. On one occasion a lady at Newport, trying to get a fine sentiment out of her, said, one moonlit evening on a vine-hung veranda: "Mrs. Howe, do say something lovely about my piazza!" Whereupon every one listened for the reply. In her delicately cultivated voice Mrs. Howe responded: "I think it is a bully place."—New York Herald.

Sheer white goods, in fact, any fine wash goods when new, owe much of their attractiveness to the way they are laundered, this being done in a manner to enhance their textile beauty. Home laundering would be equally satisfactory if proper attention was given to starching, the first essential being good starch, which has sufficient strength to stiffen, without thickening the goods. Try Defiance Starch and you will be pleasantly surprised at the improved appearance of your work.

SEEMED LACKING IN RESPECT

Little Girl's Innocent Use of Descriptive Slang Expression Amused Fellow-Traveler.

"I was going to Patchogue," said a woman at the Waldorf, "when I saw sitting near by a little girl with her mother, the mother evidently a foreigner, the child born in this country, both surrounded with bundles in the foreign way. The child was six. The conductor came along and the child of six held out the tickets.

"I want you to put us off at Patchogue," she said, smiling up at him, "and help us with our bundles, please. My mother's a greenhorn. She doesn't know anything about traveling."

"I watched her until the two arrived at their destination, and I think I have never seen a more polite little girl or a more seemingly dutiful daughter. It was quite evident to my mind that she meant no disrespect to her mother by calling her by what would seem to us to be an opprobrious epithet. She had merely adopted one of our slang words as the very best of English."—New York Press.

NEVER SAY DIE.

She—but if you have completely cured Mrs. Tooter, you have done away with one of your most lucrative sources of income.

The Doctor—Ah, but I'll present her with my bill, and then I'll have to treat her for nervous prostration.

Laundry work at home would be much more satisfactory if the right Starch were used. In order to get the desired stiffness, it is usually necessary to use so much starch that the beauty and fineness of the fabric is hidden behind a paste of varying thickness, which not only destroys the appearance, but also affects the wearing quality of the goods. This trouble can be entirely overcome by using Defiance Starch, as it can be applied much more thinly because of its greater strength than other makes.

The Great Necessity. She laid down her Ruskin wearily. "It says here," she mused, "that 'man should resemble a river.' I wonder what that means. Do you know, dear?"

Dear looked up from under a batch of bills. "Sure I do," he growled. "It means that you don't amount to shucks these days unless you own a couple of banks."

Nothing But the Truth. Attorney (much baffled by the answers of an Irish witness)—Well, you're a nice sort of a fellow, you are! The Witness—Shure, an' I'd say the same of you, sir, only I'm on me oath.
