try than entered it. This was an entirely new experience for us. But the tide has turned. Immigration is steadily on the increase. It is mounting rapidly toward the highest figures of the early half of 1907, before the business setback took place. Some of Secretary Nagel's subordinates are beginning to predict that the in-comers for the fiscal year which begins on July 1 will reach the 1,000,000 mark. In each of the years 1905, 1906 and 1907 that mark was crossed, the aggregate for 1907 being 1,285,349. Then came the money scare in the closing weeks of 1907, which cut down the inflow sharply, and the total for 1908 was only 782,870. For the year which closed on June 30, 1909, the number will be far below that total, notwithstanding the increase in the past few weeks. The gain which is under way means that the revival of business confidence, which we see on every hand, has been heard of in Europe, and now, until the next industrial collapse comes, all roads for men in all lands seeking to better their fortunes will lead to America.

REST ROOMS FOR COUNTRY WOMEN.

The heart of any woman who has ridden four to ten or more miles to town, on either a bitterly cold or a windy, dusty day, leaps responsively to the thought of a retiring room that she may use without feeling that she is intruding or putting herself under undesirable obligations.

Often this woman in her own driver. Where, ordinarily, shall she adjust her wind-blown locks and the hat that has gone askew? Where change her gloves and leave her extra wraps or duster and veil, her soapstone and packages? She must often wait for her husband or other members of her family who came to town with her, or she wishes to make friendly or business appointments with acquaintance. Where shall she say she will meet such people?

The "rest room for country woman" idea falls readily into line with what is being done for the comfort and physical well-being of all classes of people by cities, town and villages. The improvement of highways the beautifying of streets and home grounds, the providing of park systems and playgrounds, swimming pools and gymnasiums, waiting rooms, rustic seats—all of these are details of comfort and health that are being provided for by municipalities and organizations of one kind and another. It is, therefore, proper and to their credit if rural people themselves take part in improvements of this sort that may benefit them directly.

Fremont ought to have such a place for its country visitors. It would be highly proper for the board of county supervisors to act favorably on a proposition to fit up the basement of the court house for use as a rest room by country people.—Fremont Tribune.

Are Our Roads Too Wide?

The following information concerning the superiority of the highways of Germany as compared with those of the United States is furnished by Robert J. Thompson, consul at Hanover:

German roads are perhaps subjected to a hundred times more traffic than similar roads in the United States. These roads range from twenty to thirty feet in width, while in our middle and Western states, where the traffic is comparatively light, we take land of an average value of $100 per acre and cut it up with roadways sixty-two feet in width, practically two thirds of the same being given over to weeds, which furnish an inexhaustible supply of seeds for the adjoining farm lands. The farmer in Germany who has conquered the weeds on his ground need have no thought of them being started again from uncultivated or uncared-for land along the roadways. There are no weeds, no mud, no chuck holes, no sand stretches in the roads.

One of the simplest and most practical measures that could be taken for the betterment of roads in the United States would be to reduce their width to from one-third to one half of what they now are.

In the United States, public highways in the states given below may be estimated as follows: Minnesota, 80,000; Wisconsin, 60,000; Michigan, 60,000; Iowa, 70,000; Kansas, 70,000; Nebraska, 50,000; Missouri, 80,000; Illinois, 80,000; Indiana, 70,000; Ohio, 80,000; total, 700,000 miles. Reducing the width of these public highways, which now average sixty-six feet to thirty-six feet, would give back to the farmers of these states, for cultivation, 2 1/2 million acres of generally tillable land, which at an average valuation of $100 per acre, would mean the restoration to the producing values of the states named of 250 million dollars.

The Japanese Situation

The Japanese are a highly civilized people of extraordinary military, artistic and industrial development; they are proud, warlike and sensitive. I believe that our people have, what I personally certainly have, a profound and heavy admiration for them; an admiration for their great deeds and great qualities, an ungrudging respect for their national character. But this admiration and respect is accompanied by the firm conviction that it is not for the advantage of either people that emigrants from either country should settle in mass in the other country. The understanding between the two countries on this point should be on a basis of entire mutuality, and therefore on a basis which will preserve unimpaired the self respect of each country, and permit each to continue to feel friendly good will for the other. Japan would certainly object to the incoming of masses of American farmers, laborers and small traders; indeed the Japanese would object to this at least as strongly as the men of the Pacific coast and Rocky mountain states object to the incoming in mass of Japanese workmen, agricultural laborers and men engaged in small trades.

The Japanese certainly object to Americans acquiring land in Japan at least as much as the Americans of the far western states object to the Japanese acquiring land on our soil.

The best of all possible ways in which to achieve the object is that which the government of the two countries have now by common agreement adopted; for the Japanese government has on its initiative and of its own accord undertaken to prevent the coming hither in any appreciable numbers of Japanese of the classes to which I have referred. This agreement during the last year or thereabout has worked so well that actually more Japanese have left the country than have come into it, and there has been a diminution of their numbers. If this continues, all difficulties will cease without the need of further action, whether by treaty or by legislation. The success of the policy must be gauged by its actual results; that is, by the extent to which it arrests the immigration of large bodies of Japanese. If the Japanese government proves unable to carry its policy through, then undoubtedly this government, by treaty or by legislation, must protect itself and secure the desired result on its own initiative. But in such a case it would be doubly incumbent upon us to take action in the way that would provoke the least possible friction and cause the least possible hard feeling.

We Americans are ourselves both proud and high spirited, and we are not always by any means farsighted. If our honor or our interest were menaced by a foreign power this nation would fight, wholly without regard to whether or not its navy was efficient. In the event of a crisis arising, the peace advocates who object to our building up of the navy would be also utterly powerless to prevent this country going to war. All they could do would be to prevent its being successful in the war. A strong navy is the surest guarantee of peace that American can have and the cheapest insurance against war that Uncle Sam can possibly pay.—Theodore Roosevelt in the Outlook.

After Iowa Saloon Men

The petitions in the twenty-three injunction suits brought by County Attorney Hess against those saloons which had been overlooked by M. S. Odle, attorney for the Iowa Anti-Saloon league, were filed yesterday in the district court in Council Bluffs. The defendants named in the actions are: John Erickson, Nels Skriver, M. T. Sullivan, W. S. Goodrich, Grand Hotel company, E. F. Peters, Ed. Rogers, John Brennan, August Wendlandt, Max Olsen, Fred Rapp, Charles Johnson, O. K. Hardin, Frank Walkington, Council Bluffs; G. H. Wilmott, George Wolff, Underwood; Kelsey & Pries, H. J. Hesley, A. A. Kaven, Minden; E. M. Jones, Treynor; Davis & Hobbins, Steffens & Vonhebel, H. J. Junferman, Neola.

The reputed owner of the building in which the saloon is located is named as party defendant in each case. Similar actions against nine saloons in the eastern part of the county have been filed in the district court at Avoca, making a total of thirty-two injunction suits brought by the county attorney. As each suit, if successfully prosecuted, carries with it an attorney fee of $25 under the law, the county attorney will receive a total of $800 in the thirty-two cases.
