Work of Bees.

Three hundred billion bees made enough honey during last year to fill a train of cars long enough to reach from New York to Buffalo. At the low wholesale rate of ten cents a pound it was worth $25,000,000, and if the 700,000 bee-keepers of the country had worked as industriously and skillfully as did the bees, the weight of the output would have been three times as great and the value $75,000,000.
In one year the bees live to market a product worth nearly as much as the buckwheat crop, $6,000,000 greater than the rye crop, and nearly $9,000,000 greater than the rice crop. All the rice and buckwheat grown on an aggregated area of 2,126 1/3 square miles did not reach to the value of the honey by $151,259.
To appreciate these results, one must necessarily strive also to appreciate the number of insects at work. That is rather difficult, for 200,000,000,000 stretches a long way beyond intelligent human comprehension. The human mind doesn't work well in anything mathematically greater than thousands.

Every Town in County "Dry."

Little Yates has the distinction of being the only county in the state that is absolutely "dry." Every town in the county has voted no license. The village of Penn Yan, the county capital, will use "cold tea" as a regular beverage for the first time in 30 years. Yates is the smallest county in the state, and the tourist can cross it in either direction before he gets very thirsty without exceeding the speed limit.—Utica (N. Y.) Press.

A Glimmer of the Truth.

Asked to write a report of a lecture on "Phases of Human Life—Youth, Manhood and Old Age," a young English girl produced: "In youth we look forward to the wicked things we will do when we grow up—this is the state of innocence. In manhood we do the wicked things of which we thought in our youth—this is the prime of life. In old age we are sorry for the wicked things we did in manhood—this is the time of our dotage."

India Victims of Tigers.

The ferocity of the tiger can be seen from the fact that according to a recent writer he is made responsible for 37 per cent. of the human beings killed by the wild animals of Hindustan. The writer adds that once a tiger has tasted human flesh he is satisfied with nothing else, and that in southern India one of these man-eating tigers has devoured 200 human beings.

FORTRESS A MARVEL

GIBRALTAR IS RIGHTLY CONSIDERED IMPREGNABLE.

Hard to Imagine How Any Attacking Fleet Could Live in the Avalanche of Shot That Could Be Poured on It.

"An enemy's fleet could be sent to the bottom in ten minutes before getting within five miles of Gibraltar; not even a torpedo-boat could succeed in entering the bay unobserved on the blackest night!" That sums up the opinions of the most eminent naval experts as to the impregnability of the world's greatest fortress.

But disappointment awaits the sightseeing visitor. The rock, though barren, is covered with luxuriant vegetation; not a fort prominent; not a gun to be seen even with the most powerful glasses; no discernible ammunition magazines; no strongholds; only a peaceful, prosperous harbor and a sleepy, straggling town.

It is night and the maneuvers are on. Swift-playing searchlights transform the bay into a sheet of shimmering silver, upon which are seen majestic British warships and elongated flying shadows—the torpedoes. Guns answer guns out of every conceivable crevice and corner, blending in one deafening uproar, while scores of shells plow the water for miles around.

Sentries are everywhere; infantry parties crouch in the shadows; hundreds of gunners stand ready behind hundreds of guns in those mysterious labyrinths hewn out of the solid rock—"the galleries;" the vicious barking of the Maxim guns gives contrast to the deafening baying of these mammoth pieces of ordnance, the mere report of which cracks stone roofs and bursts doors and whole windows. Could any fleet live through the murderous hail of gigantic shells?

Gibraltar never sleeps. By day and night two perfectly equipped signal stations, proudly flaunting Britain's flag of ownership, incessantly sweep the seas around to a distance of 25,000 miles on a clear day, instantly reporting the coming and going of each vessel. Sentries guard all the prominent forts, magazines and gateways; gunners sleep beside their guns; engineers are ever ready beside the powerful searchlights.

Molyn "needle" guns, the finest in Europe, are installed on all the most prominent points. They are unreachably from the sea, even as they are undiscernible, owing to the skill with which they are painted and draped to match the surrounding vegetation, while huge screens drop automatically before them as each shell is fired. They have a range of fifteen miles and could drop shells on Ceuta, in Africa, opposite, quite comfortably! One gun weighs 110 tons and is capable of throwing a shell weighing three-quarters of a ton! In that marvel of engineering under great difficulties, the galleries, are concealed guns for every day in the year!

These galleries are divided into three sections, entry to which is guarded, while one is closed even to high officers, containing preserved stores, munitions of war, rain water (for Gibraltar has no springs) and a complete condensing plant—all calculated to outlast a siege of seven years.

The firing is the most mathematically perfect imaginable. The surrounding waters are mapped out into squares, upon which certain guns are kept ready trained, so that it is almost impossible to miss. During practice targets are towed across the bay, the object being to hit the water a few yards in advance of them.

Making Change in New York.

A thin little man with a long beard and a big bundle boarded a Second Avenue car at Fifth street the other day, and when the conductor came around handed up a $1 bill and asked for a transfer to the Fourteenth street line.

The conductor handed the passenger a half dollar, a quarter and three dimes. The thin little man saw the three dimes and quickly thrust his change in his pocket. He didn't wait until the car got to Fourteenth street, but alighted at Eighth street. When he had gone a passenger said to the conductor:

"You gave that man three dimes instead of two."

The conductor did not smile, but said:

"Did I? Well, he'll have a devil of a time getting rid of the half dollar!"—New York Sun.

Turkish Women in Uphill Fight.

In Constantinople a few better-class women are "feeling their way" in regard to dress, but, like all pioneers, they suffer for the cause. If the customary heavy black veil is thinner, if the hair has an appearance of being puffed out beneath its covering, if the rich silk mantle is cut to show the slender form or more mature curves of its wearer, she is immediately an object of much attention and remark from Turk and Christian.

His Definition of Echo.

A little boy was amusing himself by hallooing, then listening for the echo. "What is the echo, mamma?" he asked. His mother attempted to explain, feeling all the while how inadequate her explanation was. The little fellow trotted along at her side, silent for some minutes, then his eyes fell upon his shadow.

"Oh, I know what echo is," he exclaimed joyfully. "It's the shadow of our voices!"

TRUE TO THEIR INSTITUTIONS

Unchanging Character of the Saxon Race as Evincen Throughout the Centuries.

This tribe of Saxons had, by accident or wise leadership, happened upon the very country best suited to them. A fertile island, cut off from the rest of the world and with room for all, so that each one might, with his family, have a kingdom of his own. This, with as little machinery of government as possible and yet all ready to combine as equals in self-defense. But as they made their land productive, as they became rich, they became the prey of other peoples from northwestern Germany and what is now the Scandinavian peninsula and were forced to defend their possessions and their customs against Angles, Danes and Normans.

It is a curious feature of the abiding, unrelenting purpose of these Saxons to govern themselves and to be let alone that, though they were conquered in turn by Angles, Danes and Normans, they swallowed up all three in the end and imposed their customs, their language, their habit of mind and their institutions upon each of the invaders in turn. They would have nothing to do with the half-developed feudalism of Angles and Danes, nor with the full-developed feudalism of William the Conqueror and his followers. The conqueror claimed that the land was his and that every holder of land owed fealty to him personally. It took about 100 years for the Saxon idea to prevail over the feudalistic notion, and the result was magna charta. The magna charta wrested from King John by the barons was in reality the shaking of personal allegiance to a chieftain by the Norman barons, aided by the Saxon gentry, who had finally imbued them also with their own love of independence and free government. They insisted then, and have maintained ever since, that they derived their rights, their liberties and their laws not from a king, but from themselves. In the days of William the Conqueror the king was elective, though chosen from the reigning house. As late as 1689 the commons voted that King James had abdicated and that the throne was vacant! They chose their own rulers, and no doubt would do so again today if necessary. It is much too long a story to go, step by step, through the recital of this development. It concerns us here only to note these unchanging characteristics of the race, maintained and strengthened through centuries of war, tumult and conquest.
