Legal Notice.

In the County Court Within and For Cass County, Nebraska
In the matter of the estate of SALLY DICKINSON, deceased.
Notice is hereby given to all persons interested in said estate that said estate has been filed in the county court of Cass County, Nebraska, on the 3rd day of June, 1909, alleging that Sally Dickinson, late a resident of Cass County, Nebraska, departed this life intestate, and possessed of lots of land, which were in the name of her husband, John H. Houck, addition to the city of Plattsmouth, Cass County, Nebraska, and that Elizabeth Houck is the sole surviving heir at law of said deceased, and is of legal age, and that said property is wholly exempt from attachment, execution or otherwise process, and is not liable for the payment of the debts of the said deceased, and that said property be assigned to the said Elizabeth Houck.

You will therefore take notice that on the 2nd day of July, 1909, at 10 o'clock a. m., a hearing will be had before the county court of Cass County, Nebraska, to determine if the cause of action set out in the prayer of said petition will be granted and the estate or said deceased will be assigned to proved, and further administration dispensed with.

You will also take notice that notice of the pendency of said petition be given to all persons interested in said estate by publishing a copy of this order for a period of three weeks prior to the 5th day of July, 1909, in the Plattsmouth Weekly News-Herald, a newspaper published and of general circulation in Cass County, Nebraska.

With my hand and the seal of the county court of said county this 3rd day of June, 1909.

ALLEN J. BEERON,
County Judge.

the three essential elements. Three-fourths of the air is made up of nitrogen. Clover and other leguminous crops are able to get nitrogen from this source by means of bacteria which live on their roots. These bacteria change the nitrogen of the air into nitrates, a form in which it can be used by the plants. Fully one-third of the nitrogen collected by the clover plant is left in the soil in the roots and stubble. One crop of clover in a four year rotation will furnish nearly enough nitrogen for the remaining three crops in the rotation.

This is a much cheaper form of obtaining nitrogen than by purchasing it in commercial fertilizers at 10 to 15 cents a pound. It is much more profitable to keep the nitrogen supply fairly constant by the continued use of a rotation with legumes than to add a large amount at one time. Nitrogen in the form of nitrates is readily soluble, and every rain washes some of it out of the soil. This is not true of the other essential elements to any marked extent. Too liberal a supply of nitrogen at one time tends also to promote too rapid leaf growth at the expense of fruit or grain.

The stubble and roots of the clover, together with the cornstalks and other rubbish, will do a great deal to keep up the humus supply. In addition to this, if no manure at all is available, some humus may have to be supplied from some other source. This is especially true if the soil is naturally poor in humus. One of the simplest ways to supply this is by green manuring. This means the turning under of a green crop, such as clover, vetches, or some other legume. This supplies both humus and nitrogen. The best time to plow under such a crop is in the fall so that it will have time to decay before spring. A large mass of undecayed material plowed under in the spring checks the upward movement of moisture and is liable to make the hard-sour.

Another method of adding to the humus supply is by mowing a crop of clover about haytime and letting it lie on the ground. The second crop can be cut in the same way or used for fall feed or for seed.

"Clever Sick" Soil.

Probably the best way of maintaining this humus supply is by the liberal use of barnyard manure. The surplus straw should be used for bedding, so as to save all the liquid portion and add to the bulk of the manure. Shredded fodder is also good for this purpose. The manure should be hauled probably the most effective way of making phosphorus, potassium or other plant foods available is by tillage. Frequent and thorough cultivation, keeping the soil fine and mellow, favors the chemical processes by which locked up plant food is made available.

It must be remembered, however, that the faster these materials are liberated the sooner will the supply become exhausted. When rotation with legumes, tillage and the application of lime and gypsum no longer produce satisfactory results it is a sign that there is a lack of potassium or phosphorus, or both, in the soil. Phosphorus is more liable to become scanty in amount since the supply is smaller. Bone-meal and ground phosphate rock are the best forms in which to apply this material. The former is quicker in its action, but is considerably more expensive. Potassium is usually bought in the form of muriate or sulphate.

The Value of Clover.

The best substitute for manure is clover. Clover supplies an abundance of nitrogen, the most rapidly used of Hallway of Carved Sicilian Carts.

A young woman in New York with a nose long enough to satisfy her craving for artistic expression in her home has constructed a hallway and stairs out of carts used by Sicilian peasants. These carts, as every gallerie knows, are painted in the most vivid colors, and frequently show fine examples of wood carving. The hallway is paneled with the sides, fronts and tailboards of carts, and the carvings include cherubs' heads, angels and saints. Spokes are used for bannister spindles, and shafts have been spliced for the stair railing. The top of the cart is somewhat barbaric, but has been admired by many artists. The young woman is proud of her conception and execution, and flatters herself on the probability that she owns the only exhibit of the kind in the world.

Vivisection.

"In the agony of death a dog has been known to carcass his master, and every one has heard of the dog suffering under vivisection, who licked the hand of the operator; this man unless the operation was fully justified by an increase of our knowledge or unless he had a heart of stone must have felt remorse to the hour of his life"—"Descent of Man," Appleton's, 1906 edition, page 70.
