RECONSTRUCTING THE COMMISSION

The demand for the reconstruction of the Interstate Commerce commission so as to provide for sub-commissions for jurisdiction in the respective districts, voiced by Senator LaFollette in his speech on the railroad bill, presents an idea which has been repeatedly advanced by the Bee, and which we believe will be the eventual organization of the commission if it is to be made equal to the requirements. The Interstate Commerce commission is today in its composition and constitution practically the same as when originally created in 1887, nearly twenty-five years ago, although in that time the business of the country has grown tremendously, and the varied relations between shippers and carriers many times multiplied. An Interstate Commerce commission consisting of seven members, with headquarters at Washington, cannot possibly exercise adequate supervision over the railroads of a country as vast as ours serving 90,000,000 people.

Practical railroad men have divided the country for their own purposes into traffic divisions along the lines of physical geography, and these divisions, which are the natural one for operation, would ordinarily be best suited to government regulation and supervision. If the country were similarly districted and provided with a subordinate railway commission for each district, with appeal under limitations to a central commission, something like our federal circuit courts and supreme court, the complaints arising under the interstate commerce law would have much more prompt and effective consideration, whereas now the filing of a complaint now at Washington and waiting its turn for weeks and months makes real redress of grievances almost impossible.

This reconstruction of the Interstate Commerce commission may not come right away, but it is sure to materialize in due course of time, and may come faster than anyone expects. —Bee.

Decoration Day at Majestic.

Manager Schlaes of the Majestic theatre is planning on something good for his patrons on Decoration Day next Monday. He is to put on a special patriotic matinee consisting of war pictures and other scenes appropriate for the holiday. The army films which have been running at the little play house lately have been excellent and the proprietor expects to hold up his reputation along that line by making Monday's bill of the very best. The Majestic is about the most popular place in town during the evening hours. Mr. Schlaes says it is going to be the coolest place in town also when the warm weather sets in for he has a number of electric fans and can set up a good breeze through the room.

New Restaurant Assured.

It has now reached a certainty that Plattsmouth will have a new and modern restaurant which will be opened up within the next four weeks. This is the news that was made public today by the renting agent for the Coates block a part of which is to be used by the Iowa man, W. A. Braden of Emerson, for the new concern. He was notified today that his proposition for lease on the building vacated by Larkin's Novelty store, had been accepted and everything was now clear for the opening up of the business. Mr. Braden was in the city last winter trying to find a location for an eating house but was not successful.

Des Moines Business Man Took Many Treatments and Kept on Drinking Until He Took the Neal Three Day Cure.

"Hon. James E. Bruce, Atlantic, Iowa. "With all of the different treatments that I have taken for the drink habit in the past ten years, I never for one moment lost the desire, craving and appetite for liquor—that terrible internal gnawing which only the unfortunate victim of the drink habit experiences, until I took the Neal cure. Then it was taken away and since I have had no thought of liquor. I abhor and despise the infernal stuff and would now just as soon think of taking a glass of vinegar or poison as a glass of beer or whisky." (Signed)

The Neal is an internal treatment given in 30 drop doses, that cures the drink habit in three days, without hypodermic injections, at the institute or in the home.

The bean that we eat in some form nearly every day, that almost everybody likes, is comparatively new as an edible. Our common everyday bean is a native of South America and was introduced into Europe, whence it came to this country during the sixteenth century and now is represented by over 150 cultivated varieties. The broad bean is the bean of history, and its origin is so remote that it is doubtful. It is probably a native of southwestern Asia and northeastern Europe. The broad but not thick lima bean, called by some folks "butter bean," is a pole variety that came from South America. Soy beans, little pealike beans, with hairy plants, are natives of China and Japan and are as old, as cultivated vegetables, as anything else in those long time.

A visitor asked the late James Tissot one day whether the picture he was at work on was intended to illustrate the time of Christ. The artist replied in the affirmative. "Then," said the visitor, "permit me call your attention to an error. Aoes such as you have in your picture did not exist in the Mediterranean region till after the conquest of Mexico by Spain." Tissot promptly took his brush and altered his picture.
