Eagle

The Eagle telephone company organized last Saturday evening with the following officers: President, A. C. Adams; vice president, F. Clements; secretary, S. A. Morrison; treasurer, G. W. Venner; board of directors, H. G. Wiggins, J. H. Latrom, A. L. McDonald, G. F. Keefer, Geo. Trunkentz, James Beardsley and Wm. Sharp.

Etta Crabtree was elected to teach the sixth grade in the Weeping Water schools. She has been one of Eagle's most popular teachers, and her many friends here are glad to hear of her deserved promotion.

In some manner a report has been circulated that the Beacon has been

County Will Not Assist.

The board of county commissioners have decided that the county will not assist the city in making repairs at the pest house. At a meeting of the city council two weeks ago it was decided to ask the county to share the expense of repairing the building, and at the meeting of the commissioners on December 4th the matter was brought up and discussed. When it was voted on Commissioner Falter voted in favor of helping make the repairs and Commissioners Cox and Zink against, thus refusing the request of the city council.

The pest house is the property of the county, having been paid for out of the county treasury, but the city has a lease on the property for ninety-nine years from the time it was built—about eighteen years ago, during the smallpox epidemic here.
