The Journal's old friend, Z. W. Shrader, of Mt. Pleasant precinct, was in the city yesterday and of course dropped in to see how we were getting along, and incidentally tell how the corn was materializing.

The tallest stock of corn that has arrived at the Journal office yet this season, is that brought in Thursday by Z. W. Shrader of Mt. Pleasant precinct. It measures 15 feet and 3 1/2 inches. It has four ears and is nearly nine feet to the first ear. Come on with your tall corn.

Gus Rhode, without a shadow of a doubt, has the finest bunch of chickens in the city, and of which he is justly very proud. This morning when he went to feed them he was quite surprised to discover that during the night some unknown person had cut or broken the wire fence and found the chickens.

Z. W. Shrader recently sold 160 acres of land to Henry Schomaker for $13,600 at a clear profit of $4,700 in four years. This is going some on the price of real estate in Cass county. On his recent trip to Furnas county Mr. Shrader bought 200 acres of alfalfa land in one-and-a-half miles of Beaver City, the county seat.

James Allison, of Murray, accompanied by his two daughters, Misses Carrie and Grace, were in the city this afternoon the latter to take the afternoon train for Miles City, Montana, where she is engaged in teaching school. Our old friend and Miss Carrie called at these headquarters to have the Journal sent to Miss Grace's address.

A scientist has discovered that talking preserves the teeth. He says that in olden times when recreation was sought in conversation, most everyone had good teeth, but now when literature that is entertained is so cheap that most anyone can be entertained by reading, teeth are growing worse. There are some people in this place that should have splendid teeth.

Conrad Schlatter, jr., came in from Julesburg, Colo., this morning and will remain here this winter and go to school. The young lad is the grandson of our old friend, Conrad Schlatter, for whom he was named. His mother is the wife of Mr. Schlatter's son who was accidentally killed in the west several years ago by being thrown from a horse, and his mother resides on a ranch near Julesburg.

It is not every individual who drives past a field of corn who can make a correct estimate of its value. But few people can tell at a glance the difference between a 90 per cent stand and a 99 per cent stand. They will drive past and see a few large ears hanging down along the rows and will jump at the conclusion that this is the year of a bumper crop. Some of these fellows ought to have their heads bumped for making misleading reports.

Mrs. H. T. Batton returned home this morning from a three weeks' visit in Denver, Alliance and other points.

Miss Gertrude Beeson has returned home after a pleasant visit with her brother, Charles, in Rock Island, Ill.

Mrs. Mike Bajcek and children went to Omaha this afternoon for a two weeks' visit with her sister, Mrs. Peter Nelson.

Max and Fannie Brodsky, who have been visiting Miss Ida Pearlman the past week, returned to their home in Omaha this afternoon.

L. Richey and Wade Windham will contest at tennis on Patterson's court at five o'clock. Last evening Larson won from Ballance by default.

Miss Fern McBride and Miss Edwards, who have been visiting relatives in Kansas city for two months, arrived home this morning—in time for school.

Mrs. Grant Owen is entertaining her mother, Mrs. Martin Beauchamp, of Clarinda, Ia., and her sister, Mrs. George Jones, and son, Walter, of Creston, Ia., who arrived this afternoon.

R. C. Dill, who came down to attend the Woodman celebration, and at the same time visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Dill, of this city and other friends, returned to his home near Tekamah, Burt county, Neb. this Monday.

Mrs. Lizzie Lutz brought to this office a sample of what is termed "yard beans." We presume that from the term they are intended to be a yard long when they attain their full growth. The samples are about a half yard in length, and Mrs. Lutz is of the opinion that they do not do well here.

The Journal notices with much pleasure the substantial improvements going on in this city in the way of new brick sidewalks. Among those recently having them built are Mrs. R. H. Livingston, A. Dill, B. Wurl, Andy Taylor, Jacob Wendell and many others. W. J. White is soon to build one on Sixth street in front of the Catholic school, but still there are many board sidewalks, which need attention at once.

Geo. Brinklow and wife, Mrs. B. H. Furrel of Temple and Miss Opha Eckles, of Waco, Texas, who have been visiting here for the past two weeks returned to their home Tuesday. Mr. Brinklow's interests remain in Cass county, although he is railroading in that state. It will be remembered that some time ago he purchased the old fair ground site, and also owns 131 acres south of town. He expects to return to Plattsmouth sometime in the early spring and prepare a future home on his new possessions immediately south of town.

Good Words for Judge Travis.

Discussing the political situation in Cass county the Weeping Water Herald says: "County Judge H. D. Travis will most likely conclude to be a candidate for re-election. There is another proposition for republicans to meet. Judge Travis could undoubtedly later on be nominated for the district bench and while we hear reports that some lawyers are ferriest him as county judge, yet he has ardent supporters in Cass and Otoe counties, who would be glad of the chance to support him for district judge and while republican timber may be found in plenty, yet he would be a worthy opponent and a strong candidate." It would be better to re-elect Judge Travis county judge and in 1907 he can be elected district judge.—Nebraska City News.

A Happy Meeting.

Mrs. Mary Campbell and daughter Miss Lena, of Minneapolis, Minn., arrived in the city today on the noon train, for a short visit with her brother, William Slater and wife. To say the greeting of brother and sister at the depot was a most happy one, but half expresses it. They have not met before in twenty-two years, and both have cause for happiness. Mrs. Campbell and daughter are on their way home from the Portland exposition, taking in the cities of Salt Lake, Denver, Omaha and Plattsmouth on the return trip.
