MEMORY OF SOLDIER DEAD

Flowers strewn over the graves of our dear departed veterans.

ADDRESS BY COL. THOMAS J. MAJORS

Pay Tribute to the Dead and Honors the Living—Little Marlon Dodd Wins the Large Audience.

Four hundred thousand men
The brave, the good, the true,
In tangled wood, in mountain glen,
On battle plain, in prison pen,
Lied dead for me and you.
Four hundred thousand of the brave
Have made our raisin'd soil their grave.
Good friend, for me and you!

In many a fevered swamp,
By many a black bayou,
In many a cold and frozen camp,
The weary sentinel ceased his tramp,
And died for me and you!
From western plain to ocean tide
Are stretched the graves of those who died
For me and you!
Good friend, for me and you!

In treason's prison hold
Their many spirits grew
To state like the saints of old,
While amid agonies untold,
They starved for me and you!
Good friend, for me and you!

Beautiful weather marked the celebration of Memorial Day yesterday by the old soldiers and citizens of Plattsmouth. The observance of this national holiday, which is always an event that the soldiers look forward to, was participated in with more enthusiasm perhaps than has marked the celebration of the day in this city for many years. Very early in the morning the old veterans were astir, preparing to do honor to the memory of their departed comrades, and the ladies were called upon to do many tasks, preparing the wreaths and bouquets to be strewn on the graves.

At forty-five minutes past nine o'clock in the morning the line of march to the cemetery was formed from the corner of Main and Sixth streets, from which place the procession, headed by the Bohemian band, A. O. U. W. and D. of H. lodges, then marched to Fifth street, where they were joined by the M. W. A., W. O. W. and W. R. C. lodges, and by about twenty-five old soldiers. After counter marching from Third street to Seventh the members of the W. R. C. and D. of H. were conveyed to the cemetery, where the ranks were opened at the gate and the old soldiers and W. R. C. passed through to decorate the graves of the comrades who lie buried in the cemetery. Upon completion of the services at the graves, the ranks were reformed and the march back to the city taken up.

NEW CROSS DEDICATED.

The congregations of the St. John's and the Holy Rosary churches started in procession at half past nine o'clock from the Holy Rosary church, and while loving hands were strewn flowers in the adjoining cemetery, beautiful services were being held in the Holy Sepulcher cemetery, where a solemn requiem high mass was sung. Father Bradley speaking in English and Father Hanck speaking in Bohemian officiated in the dedication of the newly erected cross. After these impressive exercises the people returned to the city at their leisure.

AT THE PARMELE.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon at the Parmele theatre occurred the Memorial address, along with which a program was given appropriate to the occasion. Long before the hour for the exercises to begin, the building had been comfortably filled. Promptly at 2 o'clock the old soldiers and the W. R. C. marched to the places reserved for them toward the front of the building. Commander S. M. Chapman presided over the exercises, which many expressed were the best and most impressive of any ever held in Plattsmouth. Two numbers that were not announced in the program as published Tuesday, proved to be a most delightful surprise to the audience. Master Marlon Dodd of Kansas City favored the gathering with three selections, for which he had unique costumes to appear in as he sang "Mama's Soldier Boy," "Yankee Doodle Boy" and "Lindy." The cute little fellow's appearance for the third time was hailed with great applause by the audience, who were loth to see him leave the stage.

The services opened with the singing of that patriotic air "America." After the invocation by Rev. J. H. Salsbury, the Choral Union, under the able direction of Mrs. L. K. Hasse, favored the audience with several fine numbers, while Miss Dora Swearingen also sang a very appropriate song. Lincoln's address at Gettysburg, by A. J.

Beeson: a recitation by Miss Gertrude Stenner and a reading by Mrs. J. N. Wise, were highly appreciated by the soldiers, as well as the entire audience.

In a short address, in which he paid high compliment, Judge S. M. Chapman introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Col. Thomas J. Majors, who in turn spoke beautiful praises of the loyal commander S. M. Chapman, of the members of the Grand Army of the Republic, of the Woman's Relief Corps and of the citizens of Plattsmouth as a whole, for their patriotic devotion to the memory of the departed heroes and comrades who are now sleeping in the silent city of the dead.

In addressing the soldiers of the Grand Army in the course of his remarks he said, "In war and peace, boys, you and your departed comrades have faithfully kept your charge, and have made your country the greatest among the nations of the earth." He exhorted the valiant surviving members of the Grand Army, not to be disheartened with life because they were getting aged and feeble, but as their grand commander Tannersaid, "to believe that this old world was good enough for them, and to live as long as possible and get all the pleasures that may be derived during their remaining days and years."

In referring to the service of womanhood to the republic, he said, "the presence of the W. R. C. with the G. A. R. today, reminds us that we live not only in the age of brave men, but also of brave women." He spoke of the fortitude with which the women saw their husbands, sons and sweethearts depart for the war, and how anxiously was ever their lot during the strife, while the absent ones at times enjoyed such pleasures as camp life afforded.

In speaking of this community he paid a loving tribute to the memory of the town where he enlisted for the war of the great rebellion, and how this town was the first to send forth the A. Company of the First Nebraska. Speaking of this company he referred to his loyal comrades Gen. R. R. Livingston, W. L. Wells and Billy Irish, who now sleep beneath the green, near this city, and how, if for no other reason than this he will always revere the city of Plattsmouth.

At the close of this beautiful address the audience was dismissed with the benediction by Rev. J. H. Salsbury.
