HORSE SCARED AT AN AUTOMOBILE

Runs Away With Occupants of Duggy and Uncle Ben Beckman Seriously Injured.

From Tuesday's Daily

Yesterday afternoon Ben Beckman, the aged farmer living southwest of the city, was severely cut and bruised by his horse taking fright at an automobile standing by the roadside and running away, overturning the buggy in which Mr. Beckman and his daughter were riding, and throwing them out.

Mr. Beckman and his daughter had been to town doing some trading and were driving along the road towards home when they came upon the machine of W. B. Banning, of Union, which had been run out of a hedge some little distance from the road. Mr. Fanning and Julius Pitz, who had been the occupants of the machine, had left it and were some one hundred yards away, looking on at some road grading which was being done, and talking with the men doing the work. The machine was near a road crossing and Mr. Beckman, who was driving, had also noticed the men at work and was watching them when the horse took fright at the machine, turning violently down the road away from the machine and running the buggy upon a tank in such a manner as to overturn it. Mr. Banning and Mr. Pitz saw the accident and at once ran to Mr. Beckman's aid. He was dragged a short distance and when picked up was bleeding profusely from a cut over the eye. Besides this he was badly bruised about the head and body. His daughter and her little son were thrown out, but escaped injury.

Mr. Beckman was taken to his home at once and Dr. Brendel summoned while Dr. T. P. Livingston of this city, was also sent for in the excitement. Upon Dr. Brendel's arrival he found the injuries to be as above stated and dressed them, making the old gentleman as comfortable as possible. Dr. Livingston arrived too late to be of any assistance.

The horse which caused the accident was a very fractious animal, as stated by Mr. Beckman, who exonerated Messrs. Banning and Pitz from any blame in the matter. The buggy was considerably torn up. The accident was greatly regretted by Mr. Banning, who was driving the machine, as he had taken very particular pains to drive his machine as far from the road as possible and to shelter it as much as he could. He saw that every possible attention was given Mr. Beckman and rendered every assistance in his power. He called up last evening and found the aged man resting well with no danger of serious results.

RETURNED FROM OKLAHOMA

He Speaks in Glowing Terms of the New State, its Cities, Etc.

J. G. Richey returned last evening from an extended tour of Oklahoma, having been gone for ten days. He visited Minco, Oklahoma City, Alva, and numerous other points in the state looking after land matters. He was much surprised at the marvelous development of the new state. He could think of no more fitting name for its development than marvelous. He saw some of the finest corn crops it had been his luck to ever witness around Minco, the land there seeming to be excellently fitted for the production of corn and cotton. Wheat is not so generally raised in that section. This particular point is also noted for the immense crop of potatoes which it raises. From Minco he proceeded eastward visiting Oklahoma City and other points toward the southeast going to within a point thirty miles north of the Texas line. This section he found very hilly, in fact almost mountainous in its nature and not nearly so fine farming land. Oklahoma City he described as a magnificent surprise. The city is a marvel, having sprung up from the bare prairie like magic and now boasting a population greater than Lincoln and a much more metropolitan city. He also visited Alva and the surrounding country, finding it rich and fertile and land at low prices compared with the price asked here and other places. This section was also blessed with an abundance of crops and looks to him like a fine and productive land. He came from Alva over the Santa Fe to Anthony, Kansas, and thence to Caldwell, Kas., where he took the Rock Island for home. He is very much impressed with the future of the great southwest so far as he can see it.
