At about five o'clock last Saturday evening fire broke out in the engine room of M. L. Williams' elevator and but for hard and quick work the building would have been burned, entailing a loss of several thousand dollars. The fire originated from an over heated stove. The damage was small and was covered by insurance. This is another proof of the need of water works, as the next fire may not be handled so easily.

Man Hunting Father Tells Weird Story of Search.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Dec. 14.—Although he is himself a rover, and has been since he was 9 years of age, Charles J. Feezell, a young man residing at present at the St. Joe hotel at 623 South Main street, Council Bluffs, and who says he has recently been engaged in railroad work for the Rock Island and Northwestern roads, is engaged in a hunt for a trace of his father, Jacob Feezell. He has not seen his father since he was himself only 3 years old, some nineteen years ago.

It seems according to the story told by young Feezell, that his father and mother separated at Centra, Kan., when he was about 2 years of age. The baby boy was taken by the mother to the home of her brother near Crocker City, Kas., and nothing further was heard of the husband and father, except that about a year later he visited his baby son, now grown to manhood and returned to Centra.

He completely dropped from view there, and nothing was ever discovered of his whereabouts. No word has ever been received of his death, though until recently he had some half-brothers living in Illinois.

"He had never whipped me before," said young Feezell in telling of the escapade, "and I made up my mind not to let him whip me then. So while he was gone I tied up a change of clothes and slipped out of a window into the darkness and 'hit the train' into the woods. I went first to Springfield, Mo., and later to Inavale, Neb., where I stayed for three years. My mother never knew what became of me, as I did not write and mourned me for dead until I returned of my own free will. I guess I had some of the roving blood of my father, all right."

Feezell says that his mother died about three years ago. His only relative aside from his father, are a full brother, residing at Blue Light, Wash., three half sisters at Tabor, Ia., and one half sister at Plattsmouth, Neb. His father, if still living, as he believes him to be, is about 48 years of age.

When the son attained the age of 15 years he made an ineffectual effort to trace his father, but at that age he could make little progress. After that attempt the search was given up until about three months ago, when he was again induced to take it up.

This is Worth Reading.

I applied this salve once a day for two days, when every trace of the sore was gone." Heals all sores. Sold under guarantee at F. G. Fricke & Co.'s drug store. 25c.

He relates a story of having visited a fortune teller about that time who informed him, without any questions being asked, that he was in search of information about his father, who had long been lost. He was assured by the fortune teller that his father was not dead but living in Colorado.
