RAILROAD LETS YOUNG LAD GO

Boy Who Threw Rock Through Car Goes Free.

Special Agent and adjuster Morris of the Burlington, arrived in the city last evening to make an investigation into the stone throwing which took place north of the city yesterday morning, when Burlington train No. 15 had a window light broken from a coach and several passengers were slightly cut and bruised by the broken glass.

This morning Mr. Morris, in company with Sheriff Quinton, visited the home of W. F. Chaddeck, north of the city, and interviewed Mrs. Chaddeck and her son who is alleged to have done the damage. The boy who is a youth of some twelve or fourteen years, is the son of Mrs. Chaddeck by a former husband named Parker. The boy's name is Alva Parker. When seen this morning by Mr. Morris he frankly admitted that he threw the stone which did the damage, and stated that he threw it in a spirit of thoughtfulness, and with no idea that he would hit the train. He said the train was running at a fast speed and was quite a distance away and he did not believe he would strike it. The boy appeared quite contrite and his mother promised to see that he did not do such a trick in the future. Mrs. Chaddeck is a daughter of Thomas Kildow and the family lives in what is known as the Fitzgerald place north of the city.

After holding this conversation with Mrs. Chaddeck and the boy, Mr. Morris concluded that the boy was without any evil intentions when he threw the stone, and did not realize the seriousness of the situation. He took the matter under advisement, and after coming back to the city he held a consultation with Sheriff Quinton, Chief of Police Amick and Byron Clark, the railroad's counsel. The police officers gave the boy a good reputation, as he has never been seen upon the streets and apparently came to the city only when called here by business, or when he was attending school. He was a pupil at St. John's parochial school and stood excellently there. Under all these conditions Mr. Morris did not feel that the boy should be prosecuted, as he seemed to appreciate the gravity of the offense and indicated that he was suffering a great deal of contrition over his action. He visited the county attorney and after talking the case over with him, announced that no complaint would be filed this time, and nothing would be done with the boy save to watch his action in the future. The past record of the lad was so good that Mr. Morris did not feel like complaining of him and hopes that the future will never give him cause to do so.

There will be no claims filed against the railroad company for damages it is understood, as none of the parties were injured seriously, and all are disposed to overlook the offense of the lad and wish him a little more thoughtfulness in the future.

At the Court House.

County Judge Beeson today was engaged in purely routine business there being very little doing about the court room. He entered the decree in the Dabner T. Thacker estate, distributing the estate and the property and finally settling all the matters in connection therewith. There were no marriage licenses issued. In the clerk's office there was little doing outside of routine work on the records. The same condition existed in the county assessor's office and in the county treasurer's office where the entire force was engaged in clerical work. Register of Deeds Snyder had nothing to do but work and there were no sensations in his office. In the office of Clerk of the Court Robertson, there was nothing doing except routine work, getting up the records in the several cases. Sheriff Quinton's office was likewise quiet, the only excitement there being the Parker case this morning spoken of in another place. Altogether, the day was some quiet with leaden skies and a thick rain coming down on the outside.

Mrs. Allen Beeson is engaged in keeping house for her son-in-law, N. H. Isbell during a visit which his wife is making at Alliance, Neb., with her brother who owns a ranch near that city.

DEATH OF FORMER RESIDENT

Charles E. Chassot Passes Away at Home in Oklahoma.

DIED—Chassot, Charles E., at his home at Wayne, Oklahoma, on Tuesday, May 3, 1910, aged 63 years, of sarcoma of the stomach. Interment at Wayne, Okla.

The Journal last evening contained a brief notice of a letter received by James Higley, concerning the condition of Charles E. Chassot and within a few hours of receipt of the letter, he had passed away. The news of his death was received with the deepest regret by many in this city and its vicinity who had known him during his life time. For many years he had lived in this city and had made a very wide circle of good friends and acquaintances who had learned to admire the many many qualities which he possessed. In this city he had met and wooed the young woman who is left to mourn him, and after his marriage he lived here and reared his family.

The deceased was one of those men whom all knew to respect and esteem. Personally, a man of retiring disposition, one to whom the quiet of home life appealed rather than the display of public occasions, he possessed that trait so characteristic of such men—of winning the respect and the good will of all with whom he came in contact. For many years an employe of the Burlington road in the shops of this city, his steadiness and faithfulness had raised him to a high point in the opinion of his employers and when he severed his connection with the road, they received his resignation with sincere regret.

Deceased was born in Germany sixty-three years ago and emigrated to America when a young man. He came to this city during the early 70's when the Burlington shops at Plattsmouth were not so large nor so substantial as now and entered the employ of that corporation. This city was made his home up to some four years ago when he removed to Oklahoma, locating near the town of Wayne upon a farm. This section of the new state is one of the most fertile and here all bid fair to become most prosperous when the disease which closed his life made its appearance. Despite this he, together with his family, made the good fight and had been prosperous.

He was married in this city to Miss Hansen, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Hansen and a sister of P. C., and Miss Henrietta Hansen, also residing here. Of this union, there were born four children—all sons. To these sturdy boys much of the credit for handling the farm property in Oklahoma are due as they have taken the place of the father during his illness and displayed all the innate good qualities with which both he and his wife have been endowed.

The interment of this excellent man will take place at Wayne, Okla., for which place his sister-in-law, Miss Henrietta Hansen departed last night on the midnight train of the Missouri Pacific railroad. She will arrive in Wayne this evening. Mr. P. C. Hansen received notice of the death of Mr. Chassot on Wednesday morning and would have been in attendance at the obsequies save for the fact that business pressure prevented his leaving his employment at Omaha. Owing to her age, Mrs. Hansen did not make the long journey.

The most sincere sympathy of many friends is extended to the widow and children of the deceased by their many friends in this city and vicinity, and the condolence of all is given to the relatives of the deceased left to mourn him in this city. Charley Chassot was a fine man and one of the best of citizens and his loss is to be deeply deplored.

Here From Nehawka.

Rev. C. A. Burdick, pastor of the United Brethren church at Nehawka, together with his wife and ex-Congressman Pollard and wife, formed an automobile party which came up Tuesday afternoon from Nehawka to spend several hours in the city. Rev. Burdick, who is the editor of the "Religious Field Gass," was looking after business in connection with the publication of that periodical while Congressman Pollard was looking after matters in connection with his paper in this city. The party returned to their home at night.

Change in Ownership.

A business transfer took place this morning when V. T. Kuncel, the baker, disposed of his bakery and confectionery to James Kaspar of Omaha, who assumes charge at once. The new proprietor comes to this city with the highest of recommendations as a practical baker and promises to give to the patrons of Mr. Kuncel fully as good service as that excellent gentleman gave. He is in every way fitted for taking hold of the business, having spent many years in baking and being thoroughly experienced in the work. The Journal bespeaks for him a good patronage and Mr. Kuncel asks that all his old friends and patrons remember his successor and give him the good patronage he enjoyed during the time he had the bakery. Mr. Kuncel will remain in the city for several days, closing up his business affairs and has not yet fully determined just what he will do.

REMAINS OF WILLIAM E. RENNER LAID TO REST IN OAK HILL

Services at the Home By Rev. L. W. Gade of the Presbyterian Church Largely Attended by Sorrowing Friends.

The funeral of the late William E. Renner took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the late residence of the deceased on high school hill. The obsequies were very largely attended despite the inclement weather, a large number of the friends and acquaintances of the deceased attending from this city supplemented by a large delegation of members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers from Omaha and Lincoln.

The services were simple in character and were conducted by Rev. L. W. Gade, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. There were very large floral offerings from friends in this city and abroad, the members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers sending an especially handsome floral memorial while the employes of the Burlington shops in this city, among whom the deceased was so well and favorably known, also remembered him with a handsome floral piece. The casket of white was literally buried beneath the flowers, sweet tokens of the deep love and esteem of the sorrowing friends.

The services at the house consisted of the singing of that beautiful sacred song "Nearer, My God to Thee," this having been a favorite melody of the departed all his life time. This song was sung by a mixed quartette consisting of Mrs. Mae Morgan, soprano; Miss Minnie McKay, Alto; Grove Livingston, tenor, and J. E. Douglas, bass.

The sermon for the occasion was delivered by Rev. Gade who spoke at length on the beautiful and upright character of the deceased, his christian life and the lessons which his superb manner of living inculcated. Rev. Gade's address was an excellent one and one which those who heard it, greatly appreciated. To all who had known the deceased in his life time and who had known of the splendid character which he had borne, Rev. Gade's words were most impressive. The loyalty and fidelity which the deceased had shown to his employer, his bravery in the performance of the duties which his position laid upon him and the strength and fortitude with which he faced the last call before his Maker, all furnished the eloquent divine with inspiration for his verbal tribute.

At the close of the sermon, the remains were taken to Oak Hill cemetery where loving hands laid them in their last resting place. The pall-bearers who performed the last sad offices for the deceased consisted of the fellow members of the deceased in the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. The cortege to the grave was a very long one despite the fact that it was raining quite hard at the time the services were held.

The delegation which attended the services from Omaha and Lincoln were principally from the latter point in which city deceased was a member of the Brotherhood. They came down to this city on train No. 92 due here at 1:12 p. m., arriving in ample time for the services. The delegation included E. D. Andrews, master mechanic at Omaha; J. Ed. Johnson, traveling engineer, John J. Buttery, traveling engineer; and engineers J. E. Gleason, S. F. Campbell, McCarn, Charles Hook, Arthur Bignell, Joseph Bignell, Frank Palmer, Alex. Stafford, Ed. Emery, Frank A. Lewis and E. E. Roesner, the latter gentleman being accompanied by his wife. The members of this delegation expressed the deepest sorrow and the most sincere regret at the untimely end of their dear friend and comrade and were bowed in grief at his passing. To one and all his death had come as a very great shock and their greatest sympathy went out to the sorrowing and stricken wife, children and mother left behind.

Nehawka Quarrymen Hurt.
Wednesday was an unlucky night for Nehawka stone quarry men. Everything seemed to be against them or they were against something else—hard.

The foreman of one of the quarries, Martin Zornes, stepped in front of an auto at Sixteenth and Dodge street at 7 o'clock and the auto passed over his foot. He was carried to the walk, where he remained until the police auto arrived and took him to the police surgeon's headquarters. No bones were broken, but his foot was badly sprained.

At 9:30, William Greevey caught his toe beneath the street car track at Thirteenth and Dodge street and fell over on the other track, cutting a wound in his head eight inches long. Police Surgeons Standeven and Loveland sewed for some time on the wound. He said he was a "stone miner" from Nehawka.

Another man from the quarries was knocked down by an auto on Douglas street at 11 o'clock, but was not badly injured, apparently, and refused to give his name.—World-Herald.
