The campaign is warming up and it will soon be up to fever heat.

Woodrow Wilson does not use the letter "T" as extensively as the bull moose candidate. He thinks "we," the people, deserve some credit for doing some things. It's always big "T" and little "we" with Roosevelt.

J. M. Dixon, the general manager of the Roosevelt campaign, is trying Mark Hanna's plan of swinging around the circle and "fixing" the boys with campaign cash. But there is a slight difference in Mark Hanna's management and the man from Montana.

It is pleasant to the people of Nebraska to see the people of Omaha and Lincoln dwelling together so harmoniously, after the bitter enmity that has existed so many years. The Journal is glad to see this good feeling exist between the two principal cities of the state.

Hon. John A. Maguire arrived in Lincoln Monday from Washington. He has mapped out plenty of work and will let no grass grow under his feet in getting around over the district to greet the people. It is safe to say that he will receive a warmer greeting than his cold-blooded opponent, Paul Clark.

Governor Aldrich wants the campaign between him and his opponent to be a talkfest before the people. That's what's the matter right now with our state institutions—too much talking and not enough staying on the job. The people will turn still more to Morehead for governor when they find he is not gifted in the gab line.—Fairbury Journal.

The more one studies the record of Woodrow Wilson and also his very brilliant career as an educator, together with his able administration as governor of New Jersey, the more he becomes convinced that the democrats made no mistake in nominating him for president of the United States.

Jasper G. McBrien, once state superintendent of schools, has become quite an enthusiastic and energetic worker in the bull moose party ranks, and figures out that Roosevelt will poll 100,000 votes, Wilson 75,000 and Taft 60,000. We are surprised that Jasper has given Wilson and Taft as many as he has, the estimate coming as it does from a man who pretends to know so much, and in reality knows so little about such matters.

The Hon. Odell spoke right out in meeting the other day on the Harriman connection with the Roosevelt campaign fund. He says Mr. Roosevelt sent for Mr. Harriman and promised to appoint Senator Dewey ambassador to France in return for a quarter of a million-dollar contribution to the campaign fund. And this is the man who wouldn't sit at the table with Lorimer. Merely consigning Governor Odell to the already overcrowded Annanias club will hardly do. If Mr. Roosevelt was doing things of that sort with the presidency when he had it, what would he do now, with obligations to discharge running well up into the millions of dollars. And at that old Uncle Chauncey got whipsawed.

The parcels post system will go into operation on the first day of January, 1913. Not quite soon enough for Christmas.

The way to get trade is to go after it by every legitimate method. The way to hold trade is by giving good values and better service. And also by letting people know what those values are.

Church Howe has returned to Nebraska, which is a reminder to the pioneer republicans that there was a time when Church was a power in republican caucuses in the dim past. But his class of republicans have about all passed out of the shades of republican activity.

Darrow, the great attorney who defended the McNamaras, seems to have the edge on all the lawyers on the Pacific coast. They endeavored to place him behind the prison bars. He defended himself and was acquitted, in spite of the array of talent that assisted in his prosecution.

Let's not be too hard on Theodore, boys. Aside from calling the convention, nominating the candidates, writing the platform, superintending the lighting and seating of the hall, selecting the officers and a few other minor details, he let the bull moose convention do as it pleased. Besides, isn't he dead against bossism?

Now that it has been fully shown that Roosevelt was a tool of the Standard Oil, it is well enough to recall that he was responsible for the merger of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company with the United States Steel corporation and in collusion with the harvester trust. Teddy has too many trust tails attached to his kite ever to hope to win.

The republican factions in Nebraska seem further apart than ever. The bull moose want everything their own way or they won't play with the Taft people. But the regular republicans have come to the conclusion that they have some say in the matter which the bolters are bound to listen to or else paddle their own canoe, and they will do the same, let the result be as it may.

When Aldrich and Paul Clark returned from the regular republican national convention they couldn't say mean things enough about the president, and were not very choice in the language they used to express their contempt for him. Now these two worthies are moving heaven and earth in an effort to secure the support of Taft's friends in their effort of election. The Taft supporters are queer sort of fellows if they can be induced to vote for Aldrich and Clark after all the abuse they have heaped upon the president.

Unrest among the rank and file of the people of the United States because of the great cost of living has created a condition of political uprising. The growth of the trusts during the past four administrations and their apparent control of the price of articles of consumption, make it appear that a change is needed in the management of national affairs. It is a well known fact that the Roosevelt and Taft administrations have consistently fed the trusts and given them encouragement in the nefarious business of plundering the people.

Speaker Clark, Congressman Underwood and Governor Harmon, who were opponents of Governor Wilson for the nomination for president, are all out working for the successful candidate. That is the sort of party loyalty to display.

Julius Pitz is a gentleman who understands the wants of the people in the various sections of Cass county. He is a farmer himself and possesses the ability to look after all matters of interest to the taxpayers. The position of county commissioner is a responsible one, and Julius Pitz is a responsible and reliable citizen to look after the affairs of the office.

Paul Clark is a man not popular with the people, and why? Because he has had very little to do with the common people. He has always been a high muck-a-muck with the corporations, and in this position he generally had very little to do with the common voters. Remember, Hon. John A. Maguire is always your friend, either in or out of congress, and always gives you a cordial greeting.

From reports over the state democrats are subscribing pretty liberally to the campaign fund. The only way democrats have for raising money. We can't compel the clerks in the various state departments to come forward with the cash like Aldrich has done. Hon. John H. Morehead has to pay his own campaign expenses, while the wily governor makes the clerks in the various state institutions pay his. Sleek, ain't he?

It is going to take a lot of cash to elect either Taft or Roosevelt. The Morgan combine will support Roosevelt, while the Rockefeller combine will spend money to re-elect President Taft. Four years ago both Morgan and Rockefeller placed their money on Taft, while this year they are fighting one another. Which will get the better of the fight is hard to conjecture. Money has done the business heretofore, both for Roosevelt and Taft, but it will hardly do the work this year, under existing circumstances.

The Weeping Water Republican has changed hands, the deal being made last Thursday. I. N. Hunter and son, E. E. Hunter, were the purchasers. The paper was owned jointly by J. K. Keathley of Syracuse and George H. Oliver, present postmaster of Weeping Water, the latter having had full charge of the paper for the past five years. The Republican was established in 1882, and is considered a paying proposition, being the only paper published in that thriving little city of 1,500 population. Mr. Olive has had his hands pretty full looking after his duties as postmaster, while Mr. Keathley is engaged in the publication of another paper, the Syracuse Journal.

W. T. Thompson, solicitor of the treasury department at Washington, and former treasurer of Nebraska, while in Lincoln the other day said, in reference to Paul Clark, who is posing as a republican-bull moose-third party candidate for congress: "What kind of a progressive is Paul Clark, for instance? Did he ever contribute anything in time, money or effort to bring about clean government in Nebraska? My recollection is that he belonged to the old Burlington railroad machine and what fighting he did was on its side." Mr. Thompson has Paul sized up about right, and being, not many months ago, a prominent leader in the republican party of Nebraska, Mr. Thompson ought to know Paul Clark as well as anyone.

FOR BULL MOOSERS.

The following question have been propounded by William J. Bryan to the bull moose boosters, which seem to indicate that Roosevelt was more anxious to be nominated for the presidency than to have progressive principles win. The following are five of the most pertinent asked by Mr. Bryan:

1. Would a new party have been organized at this time if Mr. Roosevelt were not a candidate for president?

2. Would Mr. Roosevelt have favored the organization of a new party had any one besides him suffered defeat at Chicago by President Taft?

3. Would Mr. Roosevelt have regarded the republican bosses as an insuperable objection to the republican party if he had succeeded in seating enough of his delegates to give him a majority in the convention?

4. If Mr. Roosevelt had controlled the national committee by one vote and had seated enough of his southern delegates to dominate the convention, would he not regard the republican party as the people's party and the only organization to be trusted?

5. A third term—an honor declined by Washington and Jefferson and withheld from Grant—opens the door to any number of terms; what emergency requires it?

CHESTER H. ALDRICH.

The following is taken from the Tecumseh Journal-Tribune, ex-Speaker C. W. Pool's paper. He was also prominently spoken of as a candidate for the democratic nomination for governor. Mr. Pool is one of those fellows who fully understand what he is talking about:

To those of us who have kept tab on the course of Chester H. Aldrich during the past few years his challenge to Hon. John H. Morehead appears like a bid for some cheap advertising. In the first place, Mr. Morehead and the people of Nebraska learned long ago that Mr. Aldrich pays little heed to facts when he appears before an audience—as was clearly shown by his official conduct following his public pledges in the campaign of 1910, and as Mr. Morehead long ago established a reputation for doing just as he says he will do, he or any other gentleman would be at a disadvantage in discussing matters of public concern with a man like Governor Aldrich.

In 1910 Mr. Aldrich talked long and loud about giving the people a chance to rule, stating upon divers and sundry occasions that he would sign such measures as the people, through their chosen representatives—the legislature—might pass. In this as in other matters of public concern, Mr. Aldrich failed to keep his word, vetoing some fifteen or sixteen measures passed by the legislature, thus saying in effect that he was greater than the power which created him, and that his promises to the people were made only to secure votes.

We are not advised as to Mr. Morehead's intentions concerning the challenge, but cannot see how a man who has a reputation for truthfulness and integrity that he is credited with having could go upon the stump and debate questions of importance to the people when he knows from past experience that his challenger is not given to living up to his word.

The leading democrats in all sections of the country, as well as newspapers, are enthusiastic for Wilson and Marshall. Never before in the history of the country was the democratic party so unanimous for the national ticket. This does not give democrats a license to sit back on their oars, however, and do nothing in the way of organization. We have got to be moving. Mark that!

ANOTHER OLD RESIDENT PASSES TO HIS REWARD

Jacob Henrich, Pioneer Citizen, Passes Away After an Illness of Several Months.

From Wednesday's Daily. Death yesterday afternoon removed one of Plattsmouth's most reliable business men, in the person of Jacob Henrich, who has long been identified with the commercial life of this city.

Jacob Henrich first saw the light of day in Rhine Falls, Germany, and when but a youth of 14 years decided to seek his fortune in the new world and came to America and located in Plattsmouth in the year 1876, where he engaged in the butcher business until he started the restaurant some twenty-six years ago, and which business he engaged in until his death. He was married in 1885 in this city, and leaves surviving him the following children: John, Katie, Lena, Anna, Frances and Thomas, all of whom reside in this city.

For a number of years Mr. Henrich had been a sufferer with heart trouble, and yesterday morning he became unconscious and gradually sank into that sleep that knows no awakening on this earth. Mr. Henrich was always pleasant and affable in his treatment of his fellow man and in his business dealings was upright and his word was as good as his bond. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from St. Paul's Evangelical church, of which Mr. Henrich was a most devoted member.

From Edgemont, S. D.

From Tuesday's Daily. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rezener of Edgemont, S. D., arrived in Plattsmouth Saturday evening on a fifteen-day vacation, a portion of which will be spent with Plattsmouth friends and relatives. Mrs. Rezener is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tams, superintendent of the county farm, with whom they are visiting. Mr. Rezener holds a good position with the Burlington at Edgemont, as car foreman, where he has been for the past few years, prior to which time they made their home in this city. After a few days here they will go to Mr. Rezener's old home in Kirkwood, Ill., where he will make a visit with friends and relatives.

Attends Halmes' Funeral.

From Tuesday's Daily. C. N. Hansen, W. Miller, C. H. Henry and Gus Meyer, from Weeping Water and Nehawka, were in the city yesterday, coming up to attend the funeral of their uncle, Nicholas Halmes. While here they were pleasant callers at the Journal office.

Card of Thanks.

We hereby express our sincere thanks to the many kind friends and neighbors who so greatly assisted us in the recent sickness and death of our husband and father. Also the Sons of Herman. Mrs. Nicholas Halmes and Children.

"Paid in Full."

"Paid in Full" a new play of contemporary American life, by Eugene Walter, will be played at the Parmelee Monday night, September 3, by a company of exceptional merit. With the sixth commandment as its moral theme, the play is said to get very close to life. It is written in the everyday speech of the average American and is said to be both daring and deeply impressive.
