THE DE LONG FAMILY REMOVE FROM HAVE-LOCK TO M'COOK

From Wednesday's Daily.
 Mrs. George DeLong and two boys left Wednesday evening for McCook. Mr. DeLong was transferred from here to McCook about a month ago, where he is foreman in the boiler shop. This family will be greatly missed by their many friends here, as they were prominent in social and religious circles.—Havelock Times.
 The many friends of the DeLong family in this city will learn with regret of their removal to the western portion of the state, as they were frequent visitors here among their friends, of whom they made a vast number while they were residents here, where Mr. DeLong officiated as foreman of the machine shop of the Burlington.

CASS COUNTY COURT HOUSE RANKS WITH THE VERY BEST

That the present court house is among the best today in the state of Nebraska was evinced yesterday when E. J. Robinson, state examiner of county treasurers, was in the city, and while at the court house the question, "How do you think Cass county's court house lines up with the other county buildings in the state?" was asked him. Mr. Robinson replied that he considered the court house in this city to rank among the first twelve in the state and that there were few counties that could boast of as handsome a building or one that stood the wear and tear in such splendid shape and that the citizens of the county ought to be proud of their building in this city. Mr. Robinson is a man whose work makes it necessary for him to visit the different court houses throughout the state and he is in a good position to judge of the condition of the different buildings and his statement that the court house here is in excellent shape ought to put an end to the wild-eyed reports that have been circulated in regard to the dilapidated condition of the building. Only a few of the larger counties, such as Douglas, Hall and Dodge, possess county buildings any finer than the Cass county court house, and it has been a great pride to the taxpayers for years that the beautiful building in this city was one of the best in the state.

SOME PARENTS TOO INDULGENT

A Reform for Boys and Girls That Should Be Effective as Soon as Possible.

Members of the National Congress of Mothers who reside in the District of Columbia have adopted for the social conduct of boys and girls a set of rules that will prove wholesome if they are enforced. Greater simplicity in the dress of girls, limiting the duration of evening entertainments so as not to continue later than midnight, and prohibiting entertainments that interfere with school work are a few of the regulations to govern. If to these were added rules specifically enforcing greater simplicity and economy in school commencements and then if all of them were adopted throughout the entire country, the reform would be a laudable one indeed.

Children of the rich, in their efforts to distinguish themselves by costly and ostentatious dress at commencements rather than by proficiency in scholarship, set an example which poorer children, surfeited with false pride, endeavor to ape. Especially is this true of smaller communities. The real significance of graduation is thus lost sight of and the event becomes merely a rivalry in the exhibition of foppishness which does not mean anything and which most people cannot afford.

In the matter of extravagance of school commencements, as well as in the matters sought to be regulated by the mothers of the District of Columbia, parents are wont to be too indulgent and to defer too readily to the wishes and desires of their children. It is one of the grave misconceptions on the part of Americans that it is the duty of parents to burden themselves unduly for their children's sake and to overlook the fact that children are under reciprocal duties to parents. More necessary to a wholesome and successful life are habits of reasonable self-denial than extravagant notions of dress and personal indulgence. Too frequently, however, parents fail to inculcate this virtue, and the penalty for the failure must in most cases eventually be paid, either by the foolish parents themselves or, in later years, by the children whose pocketbooks are inadequate to meet their high-flown ideas of propriety.

Sent to State Reformatory.

From Tuesday's Daily.
 This morning County Judge Beeson had Alfred Tower, a 11-year-old lad of this city, before him on a charge of being incorrigible, his parents being unable to control him. He refuses to attend school and has been caught in several petty crimes. It was thought best to have him sent to the state industrial school at Kearney, where he can be taught some useful trade.

The Cosmopolitan club dance, the first after Lent, will be given Saturday evening at Coates' hall. A cordial invitation is extended the public to attend, and a good time assured all.

ST. JOHN'S ALTAR SOCIETY IS ENTERTAINED BY MRS. L. B. EGENBERGER

From Wednesday's Daily.
 The Altar society of St. John's Catholic church were most pleasantly entertained yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. L. B. Egenberger, on lower Main street, by Mesdames L. B. Egenberger and Joseph Droeg, and the occasion was one of the most pleasant that the ladies of the society have ever held. The meeting was purely a social one and the ladies passed the time with fancy work and social conversation. Several of the guests favored the company with musical numbers, both vocal and instrumental, which proved one of the most enjoyable features of the afternoon's entertainment. During the afternoon the hostesses, assisted by Misses Opal Fitzgerald, Helen Egenberger, Margaret Hallahan and Grace Thomas, of Sabula, Iowa, served a most delicious and tempting luncheon, which was very much enjoyed by the guests of the day. There were some fifty ladies in attendance at the gathering and all felt that the event had been one long to be remembered by its enjoyment.

The case attracted quite a number here from the vicinity of Weeping Water, where both of the parties reside.

 Merciless, brutal, ingenious, incessant ordeal of cross-examination with the aid of information secured by "digging" on the case is, with "colossal bluffing" by the police officials, which is forced upon a suspect with no friend present and absolutely in the power of the police is the main theme of Charles Klein's latest play, "The Third Degree."

MISS MABLE M'BRIDE'S SAD DEATH IN OMAHA

From Wednesday's Daily.
 The pathetic part of the death of Miss Mabel McBride, daughter of Mr. Will McBride of 4115 Farham street, Omaha, was the fact that she was trying to save and protect her mother and small brother, who were attempting to get out. She had gotten them together in a corner of one of the rooms, when the roof blew away, the floors fell and a heavy board fell through, striking her on the head and killing her instantly.
