NIGHT OFFICER NEUMANN HAS A ROUGH TIME

Quite a Great Deal of Excitement Aroused Over Arrest of Young Man.

There was quite a little excitement created on Main street Saturday night when Officer Neumann was escorting Julius Kalasek to the bastille to rest up from his over-indulgence in fiery liquor. The trouble had been brewing all afternoon, as Kalasek had been drinking a great deal, and early in the evening had invaded the Arries pool hall and attempted to start a "rough house" there by threatening several parties who were engaged in playing pool, and he was warned by the police to go home and sober up, and in fact he started for his place of residence and while on the avenue was seized with a desire to return and take in the dance that was being given at the Modern Woodman hall. He went up to the dance and proceeded to give a demonstration of his strength by striking the wall of the building with great force and also struck several parties who were enjoying themselves in dancing.

Julius was urged to stop his demonstrations, but refused, and then Officer Neumann was summoned, and shortly afterwards arrived and requested Kalasek to go with him, but the young man desired to argue the question and shook off the detaining hand of the officer and tried to push him away, whereupon Mr. Neumann rapped the prisoner once

IS IN FAIRLY GOOD HEALTH AT 100 YEARS

James G. Russell, Father of Jas. G. Russell of This City, Celebrated Event in Lincoln.

Yesterday at Lincoln occurred the one hundredth birthday anniversary of James G. Russell, father of Lew Russell of this city, and who is one of if not the oldest civil war veteran in the United States. The day was observed by a large reception at his home in his honor and has many friends in Plattsburgh will be delighted to learn that their old friend has rounded out his century mark and trust that he will be able to celebrate many more birthday anniversaries. He has not been in the best of health of late, but is remarkably well preserved for a man of his great age and his mind is as clear as a bell.

James G. Russell, oldest civil war veteran in Nebraska and perhaps in the entire country and the oldest showman in the United States, was 100 years old yesterday and Mr. and Mrs. Russell kept open house all day at their cosy home, 3032 Y street. The centenarian had recovered from a serious illness and was in excellent physical condition to stand the strain of greeting hundreds of his friends.

The house was a bower of flowers sent in honor of his birthday. He received 150 post-cards bearing good wishes and tokens of affection from all parts of the country. Many were from Brownville, his former home. Thirty telegrams of congratulation were flashed from all over the nation. Friends and relatives in New York City, Seattle, Michigan, Brownville, Los Angeles, Omaha and South Omaha remembered him. A friend in Seattle sent him a birthday book and he inscribed his name and his age in it. The pen used by the veteran will be sent to this friend as a souvenir.

Flowers were presented by Farragut post, G. A. R., by fire department No. 4 and by Mayor Zehring and many others. Mayor Zehring called and offered congratulations. As manager of the Oliver theater the mayor was his employer for many years. The "gallery gods" of several generations have a lively recollection of Mr. Russell as the ticket taker there.

One hundred and fifty old soldiers of Farragut post, G. A. R., of which Mr. Russell is a member, accompanied by a delegation of the W. R. C., called to felicitate him on attaining such a ripe old age. C. M. Parker made a speech, songs were sung and a purse of $57 was presented to him as a token of love and esteem from the members of the post and their friends.

The memory of Mr. Russell is unimpaired and he, was able to call everyone who clasped his hand by name. The interior and exterior of the house were decorated with small flags and they were flying from the neat fence which enclosed the front yard. Beyond being somewhat deaf, Mr. Russell has reached the age of 100 years with his faculties in excellent running order. During the long reception he laughed and joked and entered into the spirit of the occasion with the enjoyment of a man half of his age. Since his improvement in health he is able to walk about the house and ten days ago he was able to walk to a barber shop several blocks distant. He had told one of his sons that he would make a merry race to reach the 100 mark, and it would not be his fault if he lost the fight.

James G. Russell was born at Bangor, Me., March 1, 1814. For twenty years he followed the show business and was employed during this period as a tumbler and boss canvasman with a circus. Manager Zehring of the Oliver theater says that without question Mr. Russell is now the oldest man in the United States who was engaged in the show business.

At the opening of the civil war he left the circus and joined the Seventh Kansas cavalry. When the war was closed he settled at Brownville, Neb., and engaged in the hotel business. So remarkable was his vitality that when he was 74 and 75 years old he was employed as a special officer by the Burlington railroad, handling with ease men who were young enough to be his grandchildren. Sixteen years ago he joined the staff of the Oliver theater and remained continuously in service until last September, though he was then over 99 years old. While at the theater he had a severe fall down a flight of steps, but apparently recovered from the effects of the accident. In the early days of the show business he performed on the same stage as the noted Tony Pastor and other big theatrical stars of the olden times.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell have four children: They are: Captain William H. Russell of the city fire department; James C. Russell of Plattsburgh; Mrs. H. S. Muentefering of Omaha, and Mrs. Thomas M. Draper of Los Angeles, Cal. Mrs. Draper was unable to be present because of the serious injury to her husband, who is a member of the Los Angeles fire department. She sent a message of love and congratulation and expressed her sorrow that she could not be with her father and mother. An old friend, Captain Burt Head of engine house No. 10 of Omaha, was here to greet the veteran. Three hundred friends visited Mr. Russell yesterday.

Mrs. Muentefering said that when her father was 98 years old he visited her home at Omaha and he was then so vigorous that he was able to put on roller skates and take a turn about the room.

Mr. Russell left home to earn his living when he was but 47 years old. His father and mother were James and Mary Russell, and he had two brothers, named William and John, and two sisters, Mary and Jane. He has not seen his brothers or sisters for a number of years and does not know whether they are now living. He has expressed the wish that if any of these relatives survive he may be able to hear from them through the newspapers.

DEATH OF FORMER PLATTSBURGH RESIDENT AT KEARNEY, NEBRASKA

Another former resident of this city, and who during his residence here was quite prominent in public life and was an attorney here for a number of years, has passed to the Great Beyond, as the dispatches from Kearney state that James E. Morrison, who has filled the position of county judge of Buffalo county and been quite prominent at the bar in Kearney, had died Saturday at his home as the result of blood poisoning. Some time ago Mr. Morrison received a blister on the bottom of his foot while warming it on a heating stone, and a few days later blood poison set in which resulted in his death, although everything possible was done to save his life. The death of Mr. Morrison will be greatly regretted here by his friends, who were very well acquainted with him in his younger days when he was a resident of this city, and his loss will be felt very deeply by them. Mr. Morrison was about 65 years of age and was a prominent order in the state, and was well known to the members of the order throughout the state. The body will be shipped to Glenwood, Iowa, for burial.

During the years that Mr. Morrison was a practicing attorney in this city he was the chief attorney in a number of cases that attracted a great deal of attention at the time, and one of these was the famous Viall murder case, in which Charles Viall was accused of sending a jug of poisoned whisky to a man named Armstrong, in Lincoln, and which was the cause of his death. The chief witness for the state was an express messenger, and on the day of the trial Morrison, who greatly resembled Viall, wearing a heavy black beard, took his place in the court room, and when it was necessary to identify the man sending the package by express, the witness picked out Morrison, the attorney of Viall, as the man, and as a result the prisoner was acquitted. He was also an attorney in the famous Duffenbacker vs. Culforth case, which occurred here in the early eighties. Mr. Morrison was married here in Plattsburgh in 1879, to Miss Jessie Sutton.

The deceased leaves a sister, Mrs. Alex Skiles, of Alvo, in this county, to mourn his loss. Mr. S. O. Boyles, a nephew of Mr. Morrison, residing at Alvo, passed through this city this morning en route to Glenwood to attend the funeral.

LARGE CONGREGATION TO GREET THE NEW PASTOR AT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The services at the Presbyterian church yesterday were attended by a very large congregation to greet the new pastor of the church, Rev. H. G. McClusky, who made his first appearance as the regular pastor of the church and his address was thoroughly enjoyed by the members who were present and there were many expressions of pleasure at the splendid sermon delivered by the able gentleman who has just accepted the pastorate of the church. The choir gave a number of very pleasing anthems, which added much to the beauty of the services, and the fine voices of the members of this organization gave a most beautiful rendition of the different numbers. Rev. McClusky expects to move his family here in the near future, as soon as the residence recently purchased for the pastor by the church is ready for occupancy, and the family will receive a warm welcome from the members of the church.

By a Plattsburgh Resident.

The following has more interest for Plattsburgh residents than it otherwise would have because Mr. Barclay is one of ourselves, a citizen of Plattsburgh. If it prove of assistance to but one person in Plattsburgh it will have been well worth the telling. W. M. Barclay, proprietor of restaurant, Main street, Plattsburgh, Neb., says: "I have not had a single symptom of kidney complaint since Doan's Kidney Pills cured me several years ago. I am glad to confirm the statement I gave before endorsing them. I was bothered by lameness across my loins when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They soon rid me of the trouble."
