THE NEW CITY JAIL IS ENTIRE-LY COMPLETED

And Now the City Can Boast of as Fine a Jail as Any Town of 6,000 Population in the West.

Those of our citizens who have not Miss E. V. Everett returned Tues- as yet visited the new city jail in the day evening from Iowa, where she basement of the city hall should do so fine prison that has been created here with the expenditure of only a few Tom Sutton and family of Chap- daughters, Marvel and Maxine, of hundred dollars, and now the city can found in any small town of the country. The police committee has kept supervision of the work of refitting the basement and have certainly made

> Three good-sized cells have been constructed in the jail and a grating along the west side allows the prisoners to be locked up and the police can nter the jail without danger of geting rapped over the head by some of the prisoners who might feel inclined that way. The cells are all separated The undersigned will sell at Public by rows of piping that keeps the prisridor in the jail, with wash-stand, where the prisoners or tramps taking refuge there for the night can clean themselves up. In the southeast corner of the room, where the door is located, is a good-sized space where the police can make their headquarters in the evening and keep a watchful eye on the men who are confined in the jail. The ceiling is covered with galvanized iron and the room lit by electric lights, making it most complete in every way. The cells and interior of the prison have been decorated in a very handsome manner in gray and black by J. W. Bookmeyer, the artistic painter, and present very neat appearance. The mayor, city clerk, members of the council and the Journal representative visited the new prison Monday evening after the council meeting, and the manner in which it has been fixed up was a revelation to all of the councilmen, who have not been interested in the work of fixing it up, and the police committee received many-compliments on the way in which it had been fitted out. For years the city was compelled to use the county jail to care for their prisoners, but they can now feel independent with their new, up-to-date city prison.
