SOMETHING FOR PARENTS TO TALK AND THINK ABOUT

The Central School Building in Bad Shape and Liable to Tumble Down at Any Time.

One of the greatest loves in the world is that of the parent for their child, and there is hardly any danger that they will not ward off from their children, if it is possible, and to give their offspring the greatest advantages in the world is the aim of the larger part of the fathers and mothers of Plattsburgh and every other community in the country. But how many of the parents of the city have ever visited the school buildings, and particularly the old Central building, and inspected it and weighed the result of that inspection in their mind as to what it means to them in the safety of their children?

The superintendent of the schools, as well as the members of the school board have done what was possible to make conditions there as safe as they could, but the cold, plain fact of the matter is that the old building that has stood for forty years on High School Hill has outlived its day of usefulness and each year becomes more and more of a menace to the safety of the hundreds of children that are sheltered beneath its roof.

In early years after its erection the building was weakened by a small earthquake, which made it really dangerous, and a few years later one story was taken off of the upper part of the building for safety to the structure, and these steps have clearly shown that even then the danger to the building was recognized by those who had come in touch with the conditions prevailing at the Central building. Time has not dealt kindly with the old brick structure and each year it becomes more and more apparent that it is gradually tumbling down on the community, and the lower courses of brick in the building have become soft and the foundations settling have caused large cracks to appear in all parts of the outside walls, which clearly shows warnings of what may some day be a tragedy that will strike at the homes and hearts of Plattsburgh people as nothing else has ever done, and that is in the loss of hundreds of the innocent school children crushed beneath the toppling walls of the old building, which beyond further patching and repair, collapses and beneath its ruins crushes out the lives of the hundreds who are there attending school. The building has really years ago passed its stage of usefulness, and yet necessity has compelled its use to house the youth of the city during their school hours when the old structure shakes and trembles in the face of the windstorms that sweep over the city, and if the use of it is continuous there will come a day when it no longer trembles, but comes tumbling down around the heads of the children, causing the death of many and perhaps hundreds of them.

The lives of the children attending school are worth all that could ever be put into a school building, and it certainly looks like a false standard of economy to put in peril the lives of the children of the community to save the necessity of facing the need of the erection of a new school building. Parties who have visited the Central building and looked over the conditions there have left with a more sobered sense of the fact that is today staring the people of Plattsburgh directly in the face, and that is that a new school building is required to house the school children, and one that will be safe and not constantly put the lives of the pupils in danger.

In these modern days when the "Safety First" doctrine is being preached from every institution and by the great corporations of the country, it does not look very good to require that the lives of the school children be put in peril every day of the week. The need of the building is such that to delay it is to invite a disaster that will shock the entire community, and this would not be desired by anyone, but without doubt that is what will occur some day if the present Central building is allowed to stand as a menace with its cracked walls and general out-of-date and unsafe condition.

Education is one of the greatest factors in the life of the community and the school, with the church, makes for the future of the community and the rising generation and they should be given a place that is not a constant death trap and that at any time may collapse.

TWO HAPPY HEARTS OF PLATTSBURGH NOW BEAT AS ONE

Yesterday in Omaha occurred the marriage of Mr. Julius Engelkemeier, one of the prosperous young farmers of near Murray, and Miss Tillie Ploeger of this city. The young people visited the metropolis to have the matrimonial knot tied and their friends last evening awaited their coming, but the bride couple, suspecting something in the wind in the way of a reception, decided not to return until the 1:40 train, and the jolly crowd of friends who had visited No. 14 to greet the newly weds, were badly disappointed. The young people will make their future home on the farm near Murray. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Engelkemeier of this city and a very energetic and capable young man, who has made a great success of himself. The bride is one of our popular young ladies and has been in charge of the M. E. Smith shirt factory in this city for some time, and to those who know her best she is a lady of a most lovable disposition.

J. L. BURROWS AND MISS LOUISE GUTHMANN MARRIED

Among the marriage licenses issued in Omaha yesterday appears the names of John Lester Burrows and Miss Louise Guthmann, both of this city, who were later united in the bonds of wedlock there and returned home yesterday afternoon on No. 2, as Mr. and Mrs. Burrows. The wedding had been looked forward to by the friends of the young people for some time, but they were able to have the ceremony without many getting on to the fact, as they departed for Omaha many of the friends got off the watch. Both of the contracting parties are well known in this city, where they have made their homes for a number of years, and in their new found happiness they will receive the heartiest best wishes of their many friends. Both are very popular among a large circle of friends and their decision to journey through life as one will be a source of a great deal of pleasure to their friends. They expect to make their home in this city for the present at least.

DID THE OLD MAN GOOD.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE AT THE HOME OF MRS. DORA MOORE

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Lynch, who is making her home with Mrs. Dora Moore, was made the recipient of a very pleasant birthday surprise by Mrs. Moore, who had invited a number of neighbors and friends to come over in the afternoon and assist her in celebrating the birthday anniversary. Mrs. Lynch was very much overcome when the merry company entered the Moore home and greeted her with "surprise." But she was soon herself again and made her guests feel very much at home. The afternoon hours were whiled away in a most delightful social time, various amusements being indulged in which made the occasion a most enjoyable one. During the afternoon Mrs. Lynch was presented with a handsome birthday gift, which will assist her in remembering this happy occasion, and the friends who assisted her in making it such. At 4 o'clock Mrs. Moore served a delicious birthday luncheon, which materially added to the pleasures of the afternoon. On their departure the guests wished Mrs. Lynch many more such happy birthdays and extended their warmest thanks to Mrs. Moore for her kind hospitality and the delightful afternoon's entertainment afforded them. Those in attendance were: Mrs. A. S. Will and daughters, Misses Dora and Fannie; Mrs. Mutz, Mrs. H. Spangler and daughter, Miss Elizabeth; Mrs. Charles Troop, Mrs. August Gorder, Mrs. John Hallstrom, Mrs. Clayton Rosencrans and Mrs. F. B. Shopp.

THE MYSTERIOUS MR. W. AT THE GEM AGAIN TONIGHT

The vaudeville last evening at the Grand theater, given by the mysterious "Mr. W.?" proved an unusually strong drawing card and a fair-sized audience braved the bad weather to be present and enjoy the entertainment provided. The magic acts given by the mysterious W. was much enjoyed, as well as his comedy offerings, and this, in addition to the excellent program of moving pictures, made an evening that was one of thorough enjoyment. The entertainment will be given this evening for the last time, and from the well satisfied audience of last evening there should be a large number present.

THE COUPLE WE HAD MARRIED WERE NOT MARRIED

The account of the wedding of Mr. Finner and Miss Hanasek, which appeared in the Journal of last evening seems to have had its origin in the fertile brain of some of the friends of the young people, who evidently thought to play a joke on them by giving out the information to the public and allowing it to appear in print. The parties state that they have not been married and do not in the least relish the publicity they have secured in the matter, which has been quite embarrassing to them both.

Suffering From Sprained Ankle.

Miss Florence White, the efficient deputy in the county register of deeds office, is on the retired list, due to the fact that she sustained a fall on Tuesday evening at the roller skating rink which resulted in her right wrist being sprained in quite a severe manner, and Miss White has been enjoying an enforced lay-off from her duties.

HIS REST WAS BROKEN.

O. D. Wright, Rosemont, Neb., writes: "I was bothered with pains in the region of my kidneys. My rest was broken by frequent action of my kidneys. I was advised by my doctor to try Foley Kidney Pills, and one 50-cent bottle made a well man of me." They relieve rheumatism and backache. Sold everywhere.

Some Stevenson Recollections.

Mr. Saffron-Middleton, in "Sailor and Beachcomber" makes several references to Robert Louis Stevenson, whom he saw on different occasions in Samoa. In one place he writes:

"Stevenson was one of those men with a keen face that made you feel a bit reluctant until he spoke, and then you discovered a human note in the voice that put you thoroughly at your ease, and as he spoke to a German sailor he picked up my violin and started to try and play some old folk melody. * * * He seemed fond of looking over the ship's side, gazing out to sea, and up at the stars. He was very friendly with all the sailors, went into the fore-cabin, talked to the crew and was greatly interested in ship life."

In another place he says: "If I had seen and spoken to 'R. L. S.' without knowing who he was I should have thought he was a skipper or mate of some American or English ship. His manner was easy—in fact, almost rollicking at times."

Red and Green Lights.

It is strange how the color of a light makes it more or less visible, irrespective of its actual brilliancy. To test this place two lights of the same power—two candles of the same size will do—in two tin boxes and in each box perforate a pin hole. Cover one pin hole with green glass and one with red and place them in a perfectly dark room. To a normal person the green light will appear five times brighter when viewed obliquely than when viewed directly, but the red light behaves in the opposite way. Most people will pick up the green light when looking in some other direction and will be quite conscious of its presence, but when they turn their eyes directly toward it they will not see it at all. The faint red light, on the other hand, will not be noticed at all until looked at directly, when it appears quite bright, but the instant the eyes are turned away from it it is gone.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.
