The soft, smooth grain work easily.

It's "responsive" to your tools and doesn't dull them.

You save time and effort in working with WHITE PINE and can be sure of workmanlike results—a job you're proud to call your own.

Then too, WHITE PINE means real economy even at a higher first cost because it does not warp, shrink, swell, sag, twist, or rot.

It stays put for years even in closest joints and takes paint perfectly.

Of all structural woods it's the most dependable for exposed surfaces.

Due to market conditions we have not carried WHITE PINE for some time. Now we have plenty of it. If all the items you need are not in stock, we can soon get them for you.
