

PROHIBITION BILL OPPOSED BY THREE

Much Better Legislation Than if House Measure Passed Unamended.

Lincoln, Neb., April 18.—Prohibition legislation at the present session became assured today—and much better legislation than it would have been had the house bill been accepted as dry leaders insisted three weeks ago—when the senate adopted the conference committee report on the big measure.

The vote in favor of the conference report was 30 to 3. Senators Moriarty, Mattes and Strehlow were the only ones who voted against the report.

This vote followed an effort of the two first named senators to have the original house bill made the agreed position of the two houses.

The effort failed by a vote of 25 to 7—every senator who three weeks ago insisted and persisted that the senate "just had to" adopt the house bill without a change of any kind whatsoever, today voted against that very measure.

The measure agreed upon follows the senate amendments in twenty-odd sections and the house position in a few more sections. Entirely new matter was written into a dozen sections while the bill was in conference.

Measure Altered.
Thus the measure is vastly altered over its provisions when it passed the house. In fact, there isn't a dry man in either branch who stood for the house bill during the final three or four days of the conference.

Today's action makes it unnecessary for Governor Neville to call a special session of the legislature for the purpose of enacting prohibition legislation. The governor let both houses know that he expected them to settle their differences and that if they didn't they would do well to prepare at once for a special session.

The emphatic stand which he took in the matter had no little part in bringing the members around to a position of give and take—all of them being sincerely hopeful of getting an effective law, but not all of them being agreed as to how that end could be achieved.

Governor Neville is to have charge of the enforcement of the law, and to that end will be empowered to appoint deputies and organize the work just as he sees fit. He is given wide latitude in this connection and the success of the law's operation will therefore be a matter over which he will have control and can bring about just as he brought about the recognition of certain principles in the moulding of the measure.

REAVIS IS HONORED IN LOWER HOUSE

First District Congressman Gets Place on Judiciary Committee. Sloan Keeps Old Place.

Washington, April 17.—The republican members of committees of the sixty-fifth congress will be announced in the house tomorrow.

The committee appointed by the republican caucus has been working indefatigably for days with a view of getting the very best results from the new material at hand. In fact, the committee on committees has made a personal canvass among the new members, not only as to their particular desires, but as to their adaptabilities for the committees upon which they desire to serve.

It early developed in the committee on committees, of which Congressman Reavis of the First district, is a member, that republicans elected to the sixty-fifth congress should be continued where vacancies occurred.

Reavis to Judiciary.
The only change in the Nebraska delegation, so far as the republicans are concerned is with Mr. Reavis, who takes a place on the important judiciary committee. Under a rule adopted in the sixty-third congress, no member can be a member of certain defined committees like Judiciary, ways and means, appropriations, navy affairs and still hold a place on minor committees.

In view of his decided promotion Mr. Reavis will leave the committee on coinage, weights and measures, expenditures in the department of agriculture and war claims, of which he was a member in the sixty-fourth congress.

Congressman Sloan retains his position on ways and means. Judge Kinkead retains his place on irrigation of arid lands, where he is the ranking minority member. If the house should be republican in 1918 he would become the chairman of the committee.

Ramsey Makes Change.
In the Iowa delegation there are a few changes. Representative Ramsey of Bloomfield, leaves elections and invalid pensions and goes to the committee on postoffices and post roads.

A large assortment of all sizes of American flags can be secured at the Journal office. Call in and see them before buying.
