FRENCH PRESS OFFENSIVE ON BOTH WINGS

Further Ground Gained on Soissons—Rheims Front and in Champagne.

Their 75's Follow Infantry Closely and Make Big Slaughter—Prisoners 14,000.

Paris, April 18, 2:15 p. m.—Important progress was made last night by the French in their attack east of Soissons. The war office announces the capture of Chavonne and Chivy. The French pushed on north of these points, reaching the vicinity of Braye-en-Laonnois, commanding the region.

From their new positions the French now look down upon Moronvilliers and Nauroy. This Moronvilliers chain of hills was regarded by the French soldiers who had ever been in the section as virtually impregnable, and its capture caused the liveliest satisfaction to everybody. The 75's followed up the infantry rapidly and were soon in action. They caught large bodies of the enemy mashing with the object of making a diversion and desimated them.

Slaughter Was Heavy.

According to onlookers such carnage had not been seen since the action of Charmes Gap at the beginning of the war.

The invaders were exceptionally well placed along a series of wooded heights, varying in height from 600 to 800 feet and running north along the main road from Rheims to St. Hilaire-Le-Grand. The Germans were well aware that an attack was coming and had made full preparation for it. The French attack, however, was delivered with such skill and vigor that the defenders, disheartened by a long and furious preliminary bombardment, broke ground after a reasonably stiff resistance and the whole line fell into the hands of the French. South of Moronvilliers the impetus of the attackers carried them clean through the first line into the second line system, which centered at Hont Haut. This summit, 850 feet high, was stormed.

Consolidating Ground.

In the meantime, on the Soissons-Rheims front the French troops are busy organizing the captured ground won in the first day of the battle and repulsing fierce counter attacks. Over their heads a storm of artillery fire is preparing the way for another drive against the Germans in the positions to which they retired yesterday.

On the right wing the struggle was equally to the advantage of the French. Auberville, on which the left wing of the Champagne offensive of 1915 broke, fell speedily, as well as all the surrounding works. The French made especially good progress north of Auberville. In the section east of Vaudecourt, hill 112 was stormed, as well as a small wood east of the hill which was a regular nest of German machine guns.

Four Miles in Depth.

At certain points the advance was close upon four miles in depth. The latest news reaching Paris says the battle continued well into the night, the Germans counter attacking without success and the French reconstructing the trench systems under the cover of their artillery.

According to information from a reliable source the double offensive of the British north of Arras and of the French on the Aisne disarranged the German plans. Field Marshal Hindenburg, it is declared, was preparing an offensive against Riga and another against Italy, while on the western front he was considering an attempt on Calais on the one hand and on Paris on the other. The allied western offensive spoiled all this by obliging him to bring back a large part of the effectives intended for the Russian and Italian fronts.

Counter Attacks Repulsed.

The Germans made three desperate counter attacks in the Champagne last night. They were checked by the French, who inflicted heavy losses on the attacking troops. Since Monday the French have captured upwards of 14,000 unwounded Germans. In the Champagne large numbers of machine guns and trench mortars have been captured and also twelve cannon, including three of large caliber.

The services are growing in interest and drawing larger congregations to enjoy them.

125,000 MEN ARE STRIKING CITY OF BERLIN

Vorwaerts Says It Is for Food, for Peace and Political Reforms.

Von Reventlow Says That Only Victory Can Save the Hohenzolern Throne.

Amsterdam, Via London, April 18, 11 a. m.—Count von Reventlow, writing in the Tages Zeitung, asserts that victory is necessary if the German monarch is to endure. He says: "We have long expressed the view that German victory and the German monarchy are mutually dependent. Without a German victory the German monarchy will soon cease to exist."

Copenhagen, April 17, Via London, April 18.—The number of strikers in Berlin is placed in even the semi-official report at 125,000 and is distributed, according to the Tageblatt, through machine works, some electrical establishments and a part of munition plants.

The latter statement is interesting in view of a dispatch from the official news bureau, denying that the munition factories were affected. The Tageblatt says, however, that the great munition industry at Spandau has not been involved.

Report in all the Berlin newspapers which have arrived here agree that the demonstrators were usually orderly, although roughs resorted to occasional window breaking in the Unterden Linden, the Frederick and Leipzigerstrassen and other central thoroughfares. Soldiers as well as police were used in conditions thrown about Unter Den Linden and the imperial castle.

Great crowds gathered in the neighborhood of the castle during the day and the temper of the crowd particularly the women, is described as very bitter. The strikers denounced the farmers, the wholesalers and the government in equal measure for responsibility for the food situation. Even socialist leaders who opposed the strike, made it evident to the authorities that further curtailment of rations from any cause could not be borne.

Labor representatives interviewed Lord Mayor Wermuth and the Prussian food commissioner, Michaelis, yesterday. They were given an assurance in regard to food which it is hoped will induce workmen to abandon the strike.

The Vorwaerts alone of the big Berlin papers, ventured this morning to comment editorially on the strike, said that the demonstration was based not only on the food situation and the demand that international reforms be no longer delayed, but also on the deep longing of the people for peace.

While claiming that the peace sentiment has a decisive role in the movement, the Vorwaerts argues that the strike cannot be regarded as anti-governmental, since the "Austrian and German declarations justify the hope that the policy of the central powers is now on a path which will soon lead to peace."

The paper laments the fact that the demonstration will have exactly the opposite effect probably from that desired by encouraging Germany's opponents to continue the war and by diminishing the output of munitions. It also regrets that among other excesses a crowd gathered in front of the vacant British embassy, yelling and catcalling.

No reports of a strike movement in labor centers outside Berlin have been received as yet. A Kiel dispatch says that the radical anti-war party got control of the greater Kiel socialist convention and passed resolutions against voting war credits. Another sidelight comes from Munich, where a woman teacher was put on trial for "pacifist intrigues." She was acquitted on the ground that she was demoted from over-strain.

RULES FOR FLYING THE AMERICAN FLAG

War Department Approves Regulations Issued by Patriotic Society.

Everybody is waving the flag and shouting the national anthem these days, but not half the people who are displaying flags know which way to hang them; and if you want to start an argument all you have to do is to proclaim positively that any one of a number of songs is the national anthem.

The War Department has issued to the army divisions instructions concerning the flag in the soldier's life, but the regulations are not extended to include the flying of the flag by civilians. The department has placed sanction upon the following regulations issued by the Society of Patriotic Decorations and Civic Improvements:

The flag should be raised at sunrise, or after; never before.

The flag must be lowered at sunset. It is a mark of disrespect to fly the flag thru the night.

When used out of doors the flag should always fly in the breeze. Whenever possible it should be flown from a staff or mast, but should not be fastened to the side of the building, platform or scaffolding. It should not be used as a cover for a table, desk or box and where anything can be placed upon it.

When used as a banner, the union (the blue field) should fly to the north in east-and-west streets and to the east in north-and-south streets.

The flag should not be draped or used for clusters and drappings out of doors. Indoors, it may be combined with bunting for draping or draped alone, but is should never be hung below the height of a person sitting.

When the flag is at half-mast as a sign of mourning, it should be raised at the conclusion of the funeral.

When the flag is to be lowered to half-mast, or to be lowered after having been at half-mast it should first be raised to full staff.

The flag should never touch the ground.

The flag should be displayed at full staff on these holidays: Lincoln's birthday, Feb. 12; Washington's birthday, Feb. 22; inauguration day, May 4; battle of Lexington, April 19; battle of Manila Bay, May 1; Memorial day, May 30; flag day, June 14; battle of Bunker Hill, June 17; Independence day, July 4; Labor day; Lake Erie day, September 10, Lake Champlain day, Sept. 11; battle of Saratoga, Oct. 17, and the surrender of Yorktown, Oct. 19.

On Memorial day the flag should fly at half-staff from sunrise to noon and at full staff from noon to sunset.

When the flag is used for unveiling monuments it should not be allowed to fall to the ground, but should be carried aloft to remain during the ceremonies.

When the flag is laid on a bier or coffin the stars should be at the head of the bier.

To these regulations the American Flag Day Society, thru its national president, Dr. Bernard J. Cigrand of Batavia, Ill., add these:

When a flag is hung on a wall the union should be to the left of the person facing the wall.

The union should always be up, whether the stripes are horizontal or perpendicular.

In the display of bunting the blue should be placed at the top, the white in the middle and the red beneath. Other organizations have said the blue should be below, but Dr. Cigrand justifies his point by reference to the heraldic laws of the symbol, which require the blue basic field to be always to the right and to the top.

To these requirements others have added also further rules for the flag: The union of the flag down is a signal of distress.

When hung across a street the flag should be hung at an equal distance from each side.

United States laws forbid the use of the flag in trade-marks.

On the death of a President the flag is flown at half-mast for one day only.

Now—go out and see how much the Americans know about flying their flags.

War department regulations provide that men in the army shall stand when the national anthem is played. Captain William Bryden, aid to Major General Thomas H. Barry, U. S. A., commanding the central division, says this applies only to "The Star-Spangled Banner" which, he declares, is the only recognized national anthem. "The Star-Spangled "Banner" is not supposed to be played as part of a medley, but if it is, it is not obligatory on the soldier to stand up. It is not obligatory, he says, to stand for "America."

There is nothing to compel a citizen to follow these rules in regard to the national anthem, but the War Department regulations are generally accepted by civilians.
