OBJECTS OF THE COUNTY AGENT PLAN OF WORK

NOT AN "EXPERT AGRICULTURIST" FOR NO ONE IS TOO OLD TO LEARN.

His Mission is One of Teaching and Being Taught—The Plan is Not a New One.

From Wednesday's Daily. The original conception of the County Agent, that of an "expert agriculturist" is an erroneous one, for were it possible to combine all the qualities which this conception would require, the person would be worth more than the counties would feel they could afford, in some other avocation. True when one is thus qualified, and when one is a worker and thinker, the worth to the county is worth as much as could be obtained in other lines. For it has been proven that in a county in this state that the county agent has proven the plan adopted has benefited the county to the extent of $59,000 during one year. The idea is to demonstrate established agricultural facts that are of value to the community but not of general practice. To make available to the people of the country the results of agricultural experiments and to assist in determining the application of these principles to local conditions. To search for the best there is in farm practice of the best farmers of the county, and to give the widest possible publicity to their work. To study farming in all its relations and assist in the establishment of a system of farm management that is most profitable and consistent with a permanent agriculture. To be interested in and to render such assistance as is consistent with his prescribed duties to all work undertaken in the county for the improvement of farming or the advancement of rural life. To develop and inspire high community ideals, to stimulate co-operation, and to help the rural people in their organized capacity through the farm bureau, and all other local organizations, to make farming an attractive business and country life satisfying to man, woman and child.

As a teacher he teaches rather by demonstration, and in carrying out these he works rather with the individual, but the real purpose is to reach the community and thus benefit all.

The necessity for the demonstration ends only when the community have adopted the practice. This is illustrated in the matter of the oat smut and seed corn demonstrations. In many counties having had agents three years there no longer exist a necessity for further demonstrations, for either of these. In some places where the sanitary precautions to prevent and stamp out hog cholera has been such that it is no longer necessary to pursue a demonstration on this subject.

REV. MCCLUSKEY AND WIFE ARE HOSTS TO YOUNG PEOPLE AT THE MANSE.

Games and Merriment Indulged In by All—Refreshments Served Before Guests Depart.

REV. MCCLUSKEY AND WIFE ARE HOSTS TO YOUNG PEOPLE AT THE MANSE.

From Wednesday's Daily. The members of the Intermediate Society of Christian Endeavor, were pleasantly entertained by the Pastor and his wife at the Presbyterian Manse last evening. From the moment of their entrance into the house, the young folks found something had been planned for their pleasure. When the entire crowd had assembled, which well filled the house, they were seated at tables and indulged in the main game of the evening, that of progressive hearts. This they found to be most fascinating, and it was with difficulty that the hostess was able to call the game to a close. But the lateness of the hour compelled her to do so. Miss Helen Roberts was found to have won the most number of games, for which she was privileged to contribute a musical selection, for the benefit of the others. Delicious refreshments were served, after which the young people further indulged in music and a contest game of throwing hearts, the old horse-shoe game, made appropriate for the season. As the young people were leaving, all were very expressive of their delight in the evening's moments so well filled with pleasure. The folks of the manse hope it will not be long until their home may again ring with the cheer of such pleasant young people.
