Influenza microbes—
Little germs galore—
Make the doctors busy.
And their patients sore.
The sooner you get through the better.
It isn't always the fighting person who puts the congregation to sleep.
Some people expect you to suffer in silence, even if you have the flu or the whooping cough.
If there are not enough jobs for the soldiers they might be kept in service to guard the money some profiteers put in the banks.
His male parent had the flu and his young hopeful was asked by a neighbor how his dad was getting along. "Oh, he's getting better—he's beginning to swear again."

It seemed rather unnecessary for the judge to ask Victor Berger if he had anything to say before sentence was passed. Mr. Berger always has something to say and that is why he is under conviction for sedition.

The President merely returned and started a discussion, but Mrs. Wilson, who for several weeks has been in the background, has come back and started a new style in hats.

In most races, love and hate are said to be kindred passions. The German race, however, is the godly exception, according to Doctor Self. "It is un-German to hate," he says. But Germany loves England like a brother.

Berah is trying awful hard to make the republicans believe he is the proper man for president. His opposition to the league of nations, is calculated that the republicans won't even allow him to look in the convention hall.

One of the big packers says, "There are times when I envy the tramp his freedom from care." Well, we are lucky, probably, that all the packers aren't tramps. The women would get practically no work done at all if they felt they were forced to keep the back door locked all the time.

When somebody proposed a few years ago that the boys of Georgia form pig clubs and raise pigs, it was declared to be a bad, and would not last. Throughout the west kid-dies have been doing the same thing—and with profit for years, and the Georgia kids went ahead, and figures show more than $200,000 worth of pork raised by them in 1918.

The Nation charitably looked up on Big Bill Thompson of Chicago as one of the numerous accidents of 1915, but since Chicago Republicans purposely gave him a majority for the senatorial renomination last summer, and renominated him for mayor again last Tuesday, nothing remains but to accept Chicago as one of those stubborn hard lumps in our melting pot. If Chicago won't melt, perhaps a few weeks in a mortar with a pestle would help.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured
with LOCAL APPLICATIONS as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions, and in order to cure it you must take an internal remedy. Hall's Catarrh Medicine is taken internally and acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. Hall's Catarrh Medicine was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years. It is composed of some of the best medicines combined with some of the best blood purifiers. The perfect combination of the ingredients in Hall's Catarrh Medicine is what produces such wonderful results in catarrhal conditions. Send for testimonials, free. F. J. No more severe cold weather—Oh, no!
The girls aren't mad at anything. The spring styles just demand that the hats be pulled down over the eyes that way.

At first it was feared Mr. Mann might be chosen speaker of the next House, but the Republicans reconsidered and chose a safety.

The mother who speaks of her boy as coming through the war without a scratch seems to have forgotten about the cotter.

Southerners who fear an over production of cotton this year, have our consent to plant watermelons instead, but we don't suppose they will.

"Hats were not worn by the ancients," says a headline. Recalling a number of hats we have seen, we are sure there must be some mistake about this head line.

The German president, under the new constitution, has the power to declare war. But the Peace Conference has the power to arrange matters so he won't have the means.

Taft today is really the most popular republican before the people of this country today, and he is elected president easier than any man the republicans can nominate, if they only knew it.

A physician says the proper exercise for a man between 50 and 60 is swimming and walking. This will sound dreadfully severe to the young man from 21 to 25 who is almost exhausted after winding the photograph.

One of our esteemed subscribers says he has a pain when he lies on his right side, and wants to know what to do about it. If he will get into the newspaper business he can lie on both sides and it won't hurt a bit.

We don't believe the story that since the prohibition amendment was ratified, many who never fought liquor before are now buying it in quart and gallon quantities. The story probably is true and as we are strong for prohibition we do not believe it, nevertheless.

The republicans may look to Nebraska for their vice presidential candidate, and should that be the case, all eyes will be on our splendid young governor McKelvie. He can prove a success in the position as vice president, as he is proving true as chief executive of Nebraska.

A lot of folks who never really awoke to the war will open their eyes at the announcement that it will take twenty-five years to pay for it. Many had regarded it about as they regard buying a photograph on the installment plan, but the idea that it might be as serious as a piano had never occurred to them before.

When the country first began to write under the abuses of the malefactors of great wealth, the cry was "Get the man higher up." When Bolshevism threatens, it is well to remember that the man higher up is frequently the lowest down man.

Every day for a week you have read that America is the only nation Europe will trust. This is very flattering. It also happens that America is about the only nation left which has any money, and therefore is the only nation Europe hopes will trust her.

A NATIONAL HIGHWAY.

Another good suggestion which is gaining momentum day by day, along the good roads plan for this country, is working out of a plan for the construction of national highways. Whether we go on building roads from one town to another, assessing all the expense to property owners in that restricted area, or even better, participating in the aid for road construction offered by our federal government, there is certain to come out of these former two ways, this larger idea which for convenience at this time can be called, "the national highway policy."

In some sections of the country, particularly on the eastern coast, one of the strongest arguments for this national highway policy is the enormous interstate traffic. Truck loads of great numbers which are becoming more numerous as time goes on; run out of New York City, crossing state lines, such as Connecticut and New Jersey, and the question is immediately brought up, if this traffic continues this rapid growth, which seems apparent, whether or not such highways should not be in part maintained by a larger unit than that of the road district or even state, as would be in the New Jersey case.

All of the arguments that have been set forth justifying the expenditure of large sums for good roads building would, of course, equally apply to any national highway plan, and as time goes on, this interstate traffic not only in commercial vehicles, but in pleasure cars, will continue to grow to enormous proportions.

This government campaign to "See America First" which has been conducted in conjunction with their enormous expenditures in maintaining our national parks, can in no way be so well supported through some national highway plan which will serve to end in increasing interstate travel which already has grown to big proportions.

Regarding the trucking problem which is just in its infancy, and this mode of transportation which will bring live stock and garden products of all kinds into the cities, it is merely awaiting proper road construction to make such a thing possible on anything like a large scale.

An interesting item comes from Omaha recently, showing that a total of 21,486 hogs were hauled in trucks to the Omaha market during the month of January this year, with 252 cars used in this work. These figures will appear infinitesimal in a few years from now, if our national highway, federal aid, or any other system can be put to immediate use in insuring permanent roads covering this state.—Lincoln Trade Review.

RAKING THE ASHES OF WAR.

Across the clover field a French burial party was slowly moving. Single figures, their hands and arms tucked to the elbow in baglike canvas mits or gauntlets, wandered alone; the main party dug or, standing to windward of the graves, surveyed their task and the pleasant sunlight world about them with the detached and somewhat macabre humor of those permitted by their age or other infirmities to be philosophers. Now and then one of the single figures waved his gauntlet hand, and a couple of others started toward him with a stretcher.

The story of what had happened there was told in innumerable guns, overcoats, helmets, papers, pictures and letters scattered everywhere. Particularly there were German things. Here, for instance, was a novel, "A Child of His Time," telling with gloomy sympathy, for complacent German readers the tale of a young Frenchman who had fought in the tragic war of '70, and ever afterward been pursued by a sort of perverse fate. There was a Social Democratic newspaper and the Lichnowsky Memoir. Of the attempt to make Lichnowsky appear unbalanced, it said in italics: "The full results of this case will only be felt after the war. Then the crazy people of today will be regarded as wise, and the sages of today will be cases for the pathologist." A Berlin Tageblatt only a few days old showed that they were playing "Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Traviata" in the capital. There was an American picture in one of the Berlin movies, and the advertisement carried a cut of an American in a Stetson hat and the still untranslated caption, "The District Attorney," and the Berliners were assured that the film would show some of the rough riding of the famous "Cowboys aus Texas."

Much of the war was a case of two people throwing bricks across the wall which hid each from the other. The open warfare of the latter days was quite another matter. And the woods were full of things so recently thrown down that their position and odor, and the very bends and wrinkles in them seemed to disengage a personal something from the men who had but yesterday held them in their hands.—Collier's Weekly.
