Enough rain. :
A little cool yet. :
Farmers putting in time. :
Everyone wants the best of it. :
Lots of improving going on. :
How about the dandelion crop? Will it be sufficient for all necessary purposes? :
The less important a man is in his community the more careful he is of his dignity. :
Italy owes the United States quite a bit of money and everybody knows how hard it is to be patient with your creditor. :
It's only a question of a little time now until we all will give in to the temptation of those early strawberries. :
Pretty flowers seem to be the beauty of the ladies new spring hats. But then those flowers can't make the lace underneath beautiful. :
Why, oh, why, does death take persons like Sidney Drew out of movieland and leave in perfect health all those who made censorship necessary? :
Freak styles in men's fall clothes are confidently promised. And not the least of the freak features is the promise of the clothiers that they will go no higher in price. :
The rich still have special privileges. No poor girl could ask her wedding guests to listen to a wedding march played on bagpipes, as Miss Margaret Carnegie succeeded in doing the other day. :
When we read how far a $10 bill will go when contributed for relief of sufferers in war stricken lands abroad, we wonder why the blamed thing won't go as far when we spend it for our own relief. :
The republicans are very much interested in knowing as to whether President Wilson will be a candidate for the third term, or not. At the same time they claim he would be the easiest one to defeat. :
When a suave, loquacious gent begins to prate of his love for the plain people, if the plain people possess half the sense he credits them with they will scot for the tall timber as the crow flies. :
Mr. McAduo seems to have practically disappeared from the news, except in the movie news films, where his position as Pooh-Bah still entitles him to prominent space next to pure reading matter. :
Since Premier Orlando's explosion it appears that President Wilson had it all right last winter, with the exception of one word. Instead of "open covenants of peace, openly arrived at," it seems to be the "open quarrels of peace, openly arrived at."

General Strike seems to be the most popular officer in Germany at present. :
Now the question is, will the Japs while in Paris do as the Romans do? :
Some men are like telescopes. They can be drawn out, seen through and then shut up. :
Why strut when there are at least fifty-seven other ways of making people detest you. :
The really unimportant man always believes that every "hint" item in the paper refers to him. :
Nature gives you the privilege of taking everything in sight, but nature also makes you pay the price. :
And now there seems to be room for doubt as to whether the ex-crown prince broke his arm in a motor cycle accident or on his wife. :
Paris quotations on brotherhood of man stock indicates that somebody has dumped a considerable quantity of it on an unsupported market. :
If you are as anxious to share your good times with others, as you are to share your troubles, that is popularity. :
We appreciate just how the brave young volunteer felt when he came home and found his best girl in the arms of a slacker and fanning her with his exemption card. :
Teaching the army nurses at Camp Bowie to box must mean that they are preparing to discharge them into civilian life, many of them probably intending to marry. :
A strange new "ring worm," has been discovered in the act of attacking the young and helpless alfalfa plant. But Nature has never invented an enemy of the dandelion. :
Let's see, wasn't it only about a week ago that Mr. Lloyd George assured Parliament that the rumors of dissension in the peace conference were the English equivalent of "unqualifiedly false?" :
The Huns profess not to comprehend the doings of the Peace Conference at Paris, but they probably will have no trouble in understanding Mr. Hoover, who deals in a language they can understand. :
A New York judge says his twenty-five years' experience has convinced him that all women tell lies. This must be one of those old fashioned lawyers who always insist that the witness tell his or her age. :
It would be of more interest to the people in general to have the return soldier put on the program of the four minute talks. They can interest the auditors in original talks from the battlefields. And some of them are good talkers, too. :
It is said that Premier Orlando isn't so peeved at the President for opposing his claims as he is at the President's telling about them in such a loud tone. It is possible open diplomacy had been so long coming that Premier Orlando had given up looking for it altogether. :
Representatives of several governors are meeting with Secretary Lane in Washington trying to devise a permanent federal employment plan. Politicians and Cabinet officers for many years have tried to devise a plan by which political jobs may be made perpetual, but this is a different project, which meets with more success.

Winter holds on. :
But we will have May flowers. :
The rain can hold up for awhile. :
Decoration Day will soon be here—May 30. :
Again we ask: Are we to have base ball? :
Plattsmouth is a little slow on amusements. :
A humbug is had enough, but a bedbug is worse. :
June 1 would be a good time to take down your heaters. :
School time is pretty near over. Put the youngsters on the farm. :
The hens are working over time these days, but eggs are still at the same price. :
All kinds of weather predicted for this week. That's no more than we have had for the past week. :
Conscience makes cowards of us all; or else cowardice makes us conscientious—one or the other. :
Here's hoping Uncle Sam gets more with the money we're lending him than we've been able to get. :
How about the peach crop? Are we to have any peaches in Cass county this year? Don't all speak at once. :
The man who says he always keeps an even temper either is a liar or never tinkered with a bulky gasoline engine. :
The senatorial succession seems in a way to have succeeded through presidential concession, despite no extra session. :
There are sections in the east where the democrats are booming Senator Hitchcock for president. Well, why not? :
Mr. Hoover has ordered Europe back on a war bread diet. Hoover and Foch seem to be about the only bosses left over there whose orders still go. :
Bootlegging still goes on, but not as lively as heretofore, but it takes an army of officers to keep it down, at the expense of the taxpayers of the state. :
Occasionally you find a fellow who believes that his mouth can triumph over anything, and may, for a short time, or until the mouth is located. :
No, Debs in jail is no martyr. He is undergoing the penalty that organized society must impose on law breakers unless it is to see its fabric dissolved in anarchy. :
After a strenuous trial the other day an army tank failed to make the top of Pike's Peak, but there probably isn't much up there to interest an army tank anyway. :
It is believed they have solved the problem of re-employment of soldiers in Australia. Any employer who refuses to take back a returned soldier is fined $2,000. :
Cut This Out—It Is Worth Money.
