ANOTHER FINE BANQUET OF BIBLE CLASS

YOUNG MEN'S BIBLE CLASS OF METHODIST CHURCH OBSERVE TWELFTH.

ED P. SMITH OF OMAHA SPEAKS

Local Speakers Make a Very Snappy Opening Portion of Program—Feast is Sumptuous.

From Wednesday's Daily
With each passing year at the banquets of the Young Men's Bible Class of the Methodist church the guests have felt that it was the best that had been held and that the events that might come after would fail to reach the height of the enjoyment, but as the years roll around the class meets together with the young men of the community it is found that there is always a treat and a surprise that makes the banquet always a little better.

Not the least of the success of the banquets has been due to the ladies of the church who prepare the menu and serve the repast and their wonderful ability in this line always affords a rare treat.

This was found to last evening when the guests entered the banquet hall in the basement of the church to find there arranged very attractively the tables around which the men of the community were to be seated. With snowy linen, the brightness of the red candles and their soft glow as well as the greens and flowers that were used in decorations, the tables were objects of the greatest beauty and charm.

The active serving was looked after by the younger women of the church and the girls while the ladies of the aid society arranged and prepared the feast.

That it was par excellence may be judged by the menu which was as follows:

- Salted Peanuts
- Pineapple With Grated Cheese
- Chicken Pie
- Mashed Potatoes
- Gravy
- Candied Carrots
- Cold Slaw
- Rolls
- Butter
- Apple Pie With Whipped Cream
- Coffee

During the course of the banquet the Holly orchestra under the leadership of W. R. Holly gave a delightful program of high class numbers with xylophone solo numbers by Anton Bajek. The members of the orchestra were Mrs. M. V. Nicholson, piano; W. R. Holly, violin; Jack Ledgeway, cornet; Cyril Kalina, clarinet; Anton Bajek, xylophone.

The invocation was offered by Rev. W. S. Crom of the Mynard U. B. church.

The committee and the class were fortunate in their selection of the toastmaster for the banquet in securing Raymond C. Cook, who in this role was at his best and his gentle roasts of the various speakers were well put and to the point and with equal grace Mr. Cook made the broadside that the taunted ones gave in return.

The first speaker was Hallie B. Perry, the class president, who gave the visitors a cordial welcome to the banquet and an invitation to the fellowship of the class if they had no other church home and assured them of the opportunity of Christian service that they might find in the class and its work.

In response to the address of welcome Mr. Fred J. Warren, master counselor of Cass chapter, Order of De Molay, responded to the president and expressed the general feeling of pleasure at the repast the ladies had prepared and the work of the class in the community as well as paying a well deserved tribute to the work of the faithful teacher of the class in the years that he has labored with the class.

Given the subject, "Latch Strings," Searl S. Davis proved a real entertainer and his clever array of jokes on the various speakers and well known persons at the banquet board kept the audience in rare good humor.

The banquet was the first opportunity that had been given the new pastor of the church, the Rev. Frank E. Pfoutz, to appear before a Plattsburgh audience outside of his church congregation and his remarks while short were well chosen, his subject, "Door Knobs," was illustrated as the life of the individual or the church, that the door that opened outward was ready to swing wide to the best things, the higher ideals and the Christian brotherhood if the individual gave the opportunity of turning the knob on the door from the inside to welcome the visitor.

Last year the banquet committee was disappointed in failing to secure Ed P. Smith of Omaha, then the chief executive of the state metropolis, but this year they were more fortunate and altho the train was delayed the speaker of the evening arrived in time for the pleasant gathering and justified all the fond anticipations that had been held by the banqueters in his address that followed.

Mr. Smith took up at the commencement of his address the numbers of wonderful inventions that had brought together the big world and knitted closer the ties that bound all parts of the globe, the inventions and comforts that had come to bless mankind and that they were not a part of the story of the past in the way of achievement.

The speaker in addressing the young men held out to them the possibilities of the future that was to be theirs in the way of great benefits to the human race and first of these he held up the sacredness of the American home, the love of virtue and honor among the coming leaders of the nation. Mr. Smith pointed out in the great city of Omaha the growing tendency to regard lightly the vows of matrimony, the hundreds of cases of domestic infidelity and broken homes that required the service of one judge of the district court, week in and week out, to try and which was but a symbol of the spirit that was leading to the destruction of the home. This was the cause of the state having to maintain homes at Geneva and Kearney for girls and boys who had transgressed the laws of the land and were drifting away from the pale of good citizenship. Also the need of more higher standard of manhood was touched upon in the record of the homes for the unfortunate at Milford and at the Salvation Army home at Omaha.

Another of the chief points brot out by the speaker was the fact that the great wealth of the nation was being piled up while the many were suffering and that the accumulated wealth of the few, the speaker taking as an example the great dividend of 400 per cent declared by the Standard Oil company while the workers in the industries were engaged in a great industrial struggle against conditions that oppressed them. The need for universal treatment of this problem was stressed by Mr. Smith and he offered as the second great problem that confronted the next twenty-five years, that of a more just equalization of the capital and labor of the nation for industrial peace.

The Christian life and the practicing of the teachings of the Master for the betterment of the world was urged by the speaker forcibly and eloquently and made a deep impression on his hearers.

At the conclusion of the banquet Attorney C. A. Rawls offered the benediction on the gathering that had enjoyed an evening of the greatest profit as well as pleasure.

FUNERAL OF MRS. CATHERINE O'SULLIVAN

Mother of Mrs. P. J. Flynn of this City Laid to Rest at Cemetery at Belle Fourche, S. D.

Funeral service of Mrs. Catherine O'Sullivan was held Monday evening of this week at the Catholic church, Rev. Donnelly preaching the sermon. Burial was at Pine Slope cemetery.

Mrs. O'Sullivan's body, accompanied by her son-in-law, Charles F. Hughes, and her daughters, Mrs. P. J. Flynn of Plattsburgh, Neb., Mrs. B. H. Harms of Omaha and Mrs. M. V. Nicholson of Valentine, Neb., arrived in Belle Fourche Saturday afternoon. The funeral had been planned for Sunday morning, but the severe storm of that day made it necessary to postpone the service.

Mrs. O'Sullivan was born in Boston, Mass., and passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Chas. F. Hughes, in that city on Tuesday, October 31, 1932, age sixty-five years, nine months and three days. On October 14, 1876, she was united in marriage at Plainview, Ia., to John Bernard O'Sullivan, who preceded her in death four years ago. To this union six daughters were born, all of whom are living. In 1904 Mrs. O'Sullivan came from O'Neill, Neb., to Belle Fourche, S. D., where she lived until she made her home there. A few months ago she went east to visit with her daughters, spending some time with Mrs. Nicholson at Valentine, then going to Omaha and Plattsburgh, where she visited with Mrs. Harms and Mrs. Flynn. Later she went to Boston to visit with her daughter, Mrs. Hughes, and shortly after her arrival there became ill. Her condition was not considered serious until a few weeks ago, when Mrs. Harms went from Omaha to Boston to be with her mother and the gradually grew worse although specialists were called into consultation and everything possible was done to restore her health.

In the passing of Mrs. O'Sullivan this community loses a most worthy and beloved citizen and the family is deprived of a mother whose every wish and action bespoke her love for them.

She is survived by six daughters, Mrs. M. V. Nicholson of Valentine, Neb.; Mrs. P. J. Flynn of Plattsburgh, Neb.; Mrs. B. H. Harms of Omaha; Mrs. Charles F. Hughes of Boston; Mrs. M. H. Moore and Miss Grace O'Sullivan of Belle Fourche; and eleven grandchildren.—Belle Fourche Bee.

LOSES OUT IN THE ELECTION

In the election in Butte county, South Dakota, this year, one of the former well known newspapermen of Nebraska was swept to defeat in a hard fought battle for county auditor. This was Rush O. Fellows, one-time publisher of the Plattsburgh Daily Post and the Cass County Democrat. Mr. Fellows, who was formerly a red hot republican, has repented his shortcomings and become one of the great unwashed hosts of democracy and as the candidate of the democrats met defeat by 188 votes. Mr. Fellows was second in a three-cornered fight and carried the city of Belle Fourche, his home, by a large vote.

Keep "Mufflers" Closed!

They aren't so noisy they require "traffic regulations," but there's plenty of pep to them "all the same" — bright cheerful colors — some fluffy wool — some knitted silk. They're all very smart and very useful too. Prices

"ON THE CORNER"

LEGISLATURE WILL CANVAAS THE VOTE

State Board of Canvassers Has Nothing to Canvass Except Vote on Congressional Vacancies.

Official election returns from fifteen counties have been received by Secretary of State Amsberry. Eleven counties in the Sixth congressional district have sent in returns on the election to fill a vacancy and Nemaha, Johnson and Pawnee counties have filed returns on the congressional vacancy in the first district.

The returns on the state tickets are in duplicate, one copy to remain sealed and transmitted to the legislature which canvasses the vote on United States senator, congressmen, judges of the district court, state officers and on all questions under the constitution voted for by the whole people of the state.

The secretary of state uses one set of the returns for the purpose of making an abstract of the vote which he submits to the legislature to aid in its work of canvassing.

Under the law as it now stands the state canvassing board canvasses the vote on president and vice president and the vote on vacancies in congress. If the legislature canvasses the vote on referred laws, there will be nothing for the state board to canvass this year except the vote on vacancies in two congressional districts. While Governor McKelvie declined to call special elections to fill congressional vacancies his election proclamation says the vote will be canvassed in the manner provided by law governing special elections.

The state canvassing board is required to meet ten days after election, or next Saturday, to canvass the vote on vacancies in congress. The same board is required to meet the sixth Monday after election, but if it cannot canvass the vote on referred laws there will be nothing for the state board to do December 18. This date after election was fixed by law years ago to permit plenty of time for the return of the soldier

OLD MAN IS FOUND ASLEEP BY THE WAYSIDE

Sheriff Quinton Called Out Near the Home of Mrs. Ida Tritsch—Man There in a Ditch.

Last night when Myron Stander drove in from his farm home west of the city he noticed a man lying along the roadside in a shallow ditch near the farm of Mrs. Ida Tritsch on the Cedar Creek road and when Mr. Stander returned home later in the evening the man was still lying there and a call was put in for Sheriff Quinton who responded promptly and reaching the scene found an aged man reposing in the ditch and apparently thoroughly chilled by the exposure to the elements.

The old man was brought on into the city and is at the county jail at the present time recuperating from the effects of the exposure from the cold and the weather. He stated that his home was over in Iowa and that he is a relative of James Glenn.

The aged man informed Sheriff Quinton that his name was Jack Hipschic and that he had walked out to the scene where he was found looking for the county farm where he desired to stop but had missed his way and gone too far. He was completely exhausted when found by the sheriff.

"Gifts That Last"

FIRELIGHT

Just as the warm glow of the burning log cheers our hearts and brightens our spirits, so the gift of jewelry stirs our deepest feeling with delight and appreciation. Unlike the hearthfire which dies to garnet embers and is gone, "gifts that last" are flames of tender sentiment which know no ashes.
