SHOPMEN WILL FORM NEW SOCIAL ORGANIZATION

"The Reindeers" will be Name of Social Club Organized by Burlington Employees.

From Friday's Daily
A new social organization is being launched in the city that will embrace in its membership the employees of the Burlington shops and provide a fine opportunity for recreation and social pleasures for the shopmen and their families.
The new organization will be known as the "Reindeers" and have arranged to have their club rooms over the store of Frank Fanger in the Dewey building, which makes a fine place for club rooms and a central point for the organization.
The club has prepared for their winter program by the election of officers; Mr. Art Ewing being named as president and Mr. James F. Doyle as financial secretary of the organization.

The plans are to have the rooms arranged so that various social gatherings for the members, their families and friends may be held during the coming winter season, and the greatest anticipation of the forthcoming pleasures is being held by the membership, already well in excess of the one hundred mark.

CHILDREN'S BOOK WEEK PROVES TO BE VERY POPULAR

Little Folks are Showing Keen Interest in Display at Library and Better Literature.

From Friday's Daily
This has been a notable week in the various cities over the nation that are fortunate enough to possess a public library as it has been designated as "Children's Book Week" and if you do not believe the children are taking a real interest you should visit the library and see them busy in pouring over the splendid array of better books that Miss Olive Jones and Miss Verna Leonard have arranged for them.

The exhibit of books for children is being held in the junior department of the library and is one that is worth while looking over. The picture books for the tots are there as well as the more advanced books for the older children and among these are "The Treasury of Heroes and Heroines," "Anderson's Fairy Tales" and "Uncle Remus," by the beloved Joel Chandler Harris, and in the pages of these works the little ones can find pleasure and profit.

The purpose of the week and the display of the books is to prompt the buying of better books for the home that the little ones of the household can enjoy the opportunity of their study. The librarian and assistant are delighted to show the parents the exhibit and to give any suggestion that might be desired as to works suitable for the little folks that are worth while.

The children are voting on the books that they like the best and that are worth reading and remembering and the books that receive the largest vote will be purchased from time to time at the library for the youngsters.

The Plattsmouth public library is one of the real worth while institutions in the city and has an array of volumes of the gems of literature as well as a fine study and reference library and everyone in the community should become more acquainted with this institution.

POSSIBILITY OF TROOPS HERE IS NOT REMOTE

REPORTS FROM OMAHA INDICATE R. R. MAY ASK INTERVENTION OF STATE.

The situation relative to the often discussed question of calling for state troops seems to be growing more grave. Judging from reports from Omaha relative to the feeling of railroad officials that their employes are being subjected to indignities and intimidations that the local authorities do not seem to be able to cope with.

While there has been nothing of a really serious nature until the last few days, there have been a number of cases of painting houses and personal squabbles with men employed in the shops that has not passed well with the men and caused the general expression that they were not being given the protection they desired.

The affairs came to a climax in the shooting of Tom Robb Wednesday night and since that time the possibility of martial law being proclaimed here has become more and more menacing.
The railroad officials have been very much dissatisfied with conditions here and are in the mood to apply to the higher authorities of the state to take action if an earnest effort is not made to check the frequent disturbances that occur over the residence section of the city and in which their men are involved.

As has been indicated by Governor McKelvie in his speeches and in his visit to this city last August, he is not desirous of calling in troops unless all possible efforts of the civil authorities have been made to restore order and failed and there is no one here who would desire to have the city placed under the regime of armed authority if it can be avoided.

The local situation is in the hands of Sheriff C. D. Quilinton, and he has had the matter of law enforcement and co-operation up with the business men of the community to devise some way that would restore order and check the possibility of outbreaks in the future and in the sheriff may and it necessary to send a large number of deputies to patrol the city and see that conditions which might lead to trouble are eliminated so far as it is possible by the machinery of the law to eliminate them.

The best way to avoid the possibility of martial law and its attendant interference with the life of the community is for a genuine co-operation with the local authorities to keep down trouble.

MUSIC MEMORY CONTEST INCLUDES AIRS FROM OPERAS

First of a Series of Forty Selections Announced This Week—Prizes Will Go to Winners.

A music memory contest has been started in the High school and the grades. Forty classical pieces, chosen mostly from the Operas, will be studied and heard by all the school children. A contest will then be held in which the pieces will be played and anyone who is able to write correctly the name and composer of each of the forty selections will be awarded a prize.

Anyone in Plattsmouth may enter the contest. Each week a short story of the piece to be studied will be found in the Journal under the heading, "Music Memory Contest."

The piece for this week is: No. 1.—Humoresque, by Dvorak.

The music of Humoresque carries along with it the pathetic story of a court jester. The first part of this beautiful piece puts into short, ray notes the jokes and the comic words of the jester who must make the king laugh; but the second part is slow and solemn because it tells of the death and life of this man who must jest though his heart is heavy; then again at the end the music brightens up to show that the jester is merry once more, forgetting his own sorrows in order to give pleasure to others. A great deal of the meaning, however, is left to the imagination of the audience.

It was written originally as a piano number but has attained most of its popularity as a violin solo.

Dvorak was born in Bohemia in 1878 and died in 1958. He was the son of an inn keeper and a butcher and was destined to follow his father's trade. However, he took violin lessons of the village school master at an early age and later studied organ, piano and theory with good teachers. He is probably Bohemia's greatest composer. He lived in America from 1892 to 1895. While here he spent about a year in the state of Missouri, where he studied the music of the American negro. When he went back to Bohemia he wrote his greatest work, the Fifth Symphony or better known as the "New World Symphony." In this he makes use of a number of negro melodies.

DEATH OF MRS. O'BRIEN OF WEeping WATER

Mrs. Henry O'Brien died at a hospital in Lincoln Friday, November 16th.

She had been ill for some months and the care of her husband through his last sickness proved too much for her and after he had passed away, she had a nervous breakdown, which no doubt hastened her death.

Mary Brunetta Conley was born in Pottawattomie county, Iowa, on November 14, 1881, and passed away November 10, at the age of 41 years.

At the age of four years she came with her parents to Wayne, Nebraska. Later she came to Weeping Water, where she has lived since.

She was united in marriage January 1, 1909, to Henry O'Brien, who preceded her August 12, last.

She leaves to mourn her loss one daughter, Elsie, a mother, two brothers, George, of Weeping Water, and Frank, of Jonesville, Michigan, and two sisters, Mrs. Fannie Rector, of Weeping Water and Mrs. Rosa Grable, of Eaton, Colorado, besides a host of friends.

Funeral services were held at the home at 2 p. m. Tuesday, conducted by Rev. C. I. Rose, pastor of the Methodist church. The music was furnished by Clyde Jenkins, Mrs. C. W. Bish, Mrs. H. Ratnour and Victor Wallick, and the body was laid to rest in Oakwood cemetery.

All the relatives were present excepting her sister Rosa, who was unable to attend.—Weeping Water Republican.

How Not to Take a Cold

Some persons are subject to frequent colds, while others seldom, if ever, have a cold. You will find that the latter take good care of themselves. They take a shower or cold sponge bath every day in a warm room, avoid over heated rooms, sleep with a window open or partly open, avoid excess, over eating, becoming overheated and flush chilled and getting the feet wet. Then when they feel the first indication of a cold, they take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy without delay and it is soon over. Weyrich & Hadraba.
