An overture is a composition usually used as an introduction to an opera and generally contains portions of the musical numbers found therein.

The libretto of Rossini's opera was deduced from the drama "William Tell" which was written in 1804 by Schiller. The drama tells of the three counties in Switzerland who rebelled against Duke Albrecht of Austria. Gessler, his bailiff, harassed the people and ordered them to bow down to his hat which was placed on a pole. Tell refused to do this and was ordered to shoot an apple from the head of his son as a punishment. Tell, being a fine marksman with the bow and arrow, hit the core of the apple but did not injure the boy. Then, swearing vengeance, he made an attempt to kill Gessler.

Part I—"At Dawn"
The story of William, as told in this music, begins with an early morning in the mountains along the shores of Lake Lucerne. Day is beginning to break thru the gray of early dawn.

In the last part of this composition we hear a roll of distant thunder which tells of the approaching storm. Rossini (1792-1868) was a native of Pesaro, Italy. His music is generally characterized as theatrical.

Part II—"The Storm"
This is one of the most highly descriptive pieces that has ever been written. The opening notes suggest the hurrying and scurrying of all animal and bird life to some place of shelter. Refuge scoured, they seem to hold a general discussion. Then the storm breaks in all its fury. The lightning flashes, the thunder roars and finally when nature's horn is sounded, and peace and calm again settle over the mountain side.

Part III—"The Calm"
After the storm the villagers come from their houses. The shepherd is heard as he leads his flock. The oboe plays a four measure theme which is echoed by the flute. Then the oboe gives new outlines a new design twice the length of the other which the flute embellishes with thrills, etc.

Part IV—"Finale"
The thought of the finale is military throughout. The first fanfare of the trumpets is the call to arms. Then is heard the familiar tune, "To the Tap of the Drum," which suggests the rapid assembling and marching of troops. This number ends with a brilliant climax suggestive of a glorious victory.

32—Salut d'Amour.....Elgar
The title of this selection means "Love's Greeting." It is a modern serenade by one of England's most noted composers. Dignified words have been set to this beautiful melody.

SEARL S. DAVIS GETS OFF ON THE "RIGHT FOOT"

This is Subject of Very Interesting Talk at Methodist Church Last Evening by Mr. Davis.

From Wednesday's Daily.
Last evening, Searl S. Davis was the speaker at the weekly meeting of the Young Men's Bible Class of the Methodist church and Mr. Davis gave a most interesting as well as instructive discussion in his pleasant informal manner for the benefit of the young men who had filled the room in anticipation of this unusual treat.

Mr. Davis in his remarks, which he stated was not an address, but just a few words given in "visiting" with the young men, urged the development of the physical, mental and spiritual and moral part of man so that they would fit the representatives of the nation for the task that was before them. Mr. Davis urged the development of a broader viewpoint by well selected reading and especially urged a study of history as a broadening and enlightening making of nations and the study also of the outstanding figures as the history of individuals and the proper reading one gained the impression of the great world even though the sphere of the reader might be limited to their own immediate vicinity.

Mr. Davis in touching on the moral phase of the life of the world, urged strongly a single standard of morality for everyone and the abandonment of the present narrow viewpoint of society that excused the actions of women and condemned those of the women and the speaker pointed out the fact that the one was equally as guilty as the other and should be so judged.

The remarks of the speaker were touched with many amusing stories and incidents that kept the audience in a good humor and showed exceptional cleverness of the speaker as an entertainer.

At the close the "eats" committee served some very much enjoyed refreshments.

From Wednesday's Daily.
Michael Whelan, one of the old residents of the city and a veteran employe of the Burlington, is in very serious condition at his home on Wintersteen hill as the result of an attack of pneumonia and the attending physicians and the family have been greatly worried over his state as he has been sinking quite rapidly in the last few days and last night was thought for a time to be dying but has shown some slight improvement, so little, however, as to give small encouragement to the members of the family.

Mr. Whelan has had two very severe attacks of grippe this winter and the last which he was taken with a week ago has developed into pneumonia of a severe type. Francis Whelan, a son, arrived here last evening called by the serious illness of the father.
