Mr. T. F. Jamison and Alva Hobson, of Weeping Water have been doing the work. Mr. E. L. Peterson was at Omaha last Tuesday, where he secured the needed fixtures for the completion of the work. When done the home will be modern in every respect.

To Have Free Camp Ground

Murray is to have a free camp ground by reason of the rustling of some of the energetic citizens and will try and be placed on the auto map. One of the best roads leading from the home in Murray to the county to the west passes through Murray and they are trying to make the appointments for the route such as will induce travel this way. The new free camp ground is to be located between the Missouri Pacific station and the residence of Mr. C. A. Trent with a very good place it will be at that. Located on the highway it is so it will be very convenient for all who are traveling on this road. The disposition of the citizens of Murray is to prepare this free camp ground in a way that it will appeal to all who pass and its popularity will also be reflected in the increased prosperity of Murray.

Have a Unique Wedding

The entertainment which was furnished the people of Murray last Saturday evening as the result of the training which Miss Margie Walker gave the little folks, was one which everybody surely enjoyed. The church had been decorated very beautifully with cut flowers and other decorations which made it indeed a bower of beauty. The affair not only pleased the people but brought a neat sum to the treasury of the Ladies Aid of the church as well. Master Edgar Howard officiated as the minister, while little Grace Louise Wiles was the bride and Bobbie Long was the groom.

FAITHFUL OLD DOG GONE

From Tuesday's Daily.

When Dr. P. J. Flynn and family came to Plattsmouth to reside they brought with them "Laddie," a fine collie dog that has in the years since become a familiar figure and the object of admiration from the children especially who found in him a faithful friend and playmate. The faithful old dog is gone now, however, as he has been gradually growing so feeble and old that he could not get around and it was finally decided to put him out of his suffering by felling certain he would make good in his line anywhere.

SELECTED AS INSTRUCTOR

Mr. W. L. Wernock, correspondent of the Reppert's Auction School, of Boulder, Colorado, writes the Journal relative to Col. Rex Young who came to Boulder as a student in the school. He had not been in the school but a short time when the management, observing his ability, placed him among the faculty of the school as an instructor, thus recognizing his ability as an auctioneer and a handler of men. We have known of Col. Young's ability along this line at his line anywhere.

THE MAN IN THE CAB

If you were in the cab of an engine speeding down the rails at forty to sixty miles an hour and some half drunk motorist came toward you whizzing down a country lane with his motor wide open, what do you think about while that poor crazy fool is flirting with death? You know that death rides ever under your wheels. You know that crossing your pilot approaches may be the last crossing some reckless driver will ever attempt in this world. With that possibility hanging over you dozens of times in every day's work what does it all mean to you? Chas. J. Barnett, locomotive engineer on the Illinois Central, gives this answer in an article in National Safety News:

"From my cab window I often see two or three automobiles speeding to a crossing, coming from different way. Each driver knows what I am going to do. I am going straight ahead on two narrow lines of rails, 4 feet and 1-2 an inch apart. I cannot turn aside, and I am not supposed to stop to permit them to pass. They all know that. But I have no way of knowing what he intends to do. One may race right up to the end of the ties and stop. I suppose he does that to give me a thrill. If so, he succeeds. Another may decide to chance it and cross. Maybe he gets across by reason of the shortness of his wheelbase and the fact that he is not carrying a spare tire. Sometimes they flit up from the fireman's side and I don't see them until No. 1100's engine is nosing past their tail light."

Engineer Barnett can't see why the power of the 700 tons in his train doesn't make some impression upon the caution centers in the motorist's brain. "A train moving at the speed of a mile a minute travels one-eighth of a mile in seven and a half seconds," he says, and adds, significantly, "and seven and one-half seconds is a mighty brief interval." And yet for all the speed and power of a swiftly moving train, thirty drivers last year lost their lives after driving through closed crossing gates. In April, May and June of 1922 seventy-seven motorists went into the next world suddenly after having disregarded or having run over crossing watchmen. In twelve cases the dead motorists lost their lives by running head on into a train that was actually blocking the crossing.

Under the circumstances it is no wonder that Engineer Barnett never climbs into his cab without feeling the strain of the possibility that the day's run may include a crossing fatality. And yet Engineer Barnett has never had such a fatality yet, although he has piloted Engine No. 1100 a distance equivalent to seven-tenths times around the earth.

VETERANS' TRIBUTE TO SCHUMANN-HEINK

Toast to Her Son Who Sank in German U-Boat, While She Sobs—Had Sons in U. S. A.

Minneapolis, June 30.—While his mother sat at the head of the table weeping, with her face buried in her hands, thirty men who bore on their bodies lasting scars of their service for the allies in the World War, last night silently drank a toast to a man who went down on a German U-boat in 1918 and never came back.

He was the son of Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink, in whose honor, as "the most distinguished delegate" to the convention of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, a dinner was given.

"I have two things to ask of you," Madame Schumann-Heink said. "Will you promise these two things?"

"First, that you will never believe any false stories you may hear about me, stories that I was a German spy, that I was untrue to this, my country, and to you."

"The second promise I ask of you, is that when I am dead, and it won't be many more years now, you will see to it that I am buried in America, in my country. And, boys, maybe I could have, in a way, the burial of a soldier. Not any fuss. Have them play 'taps' over my grave, as I have sung it to you. Will you promise?"

Every one of the thirty veterans silently stood up as she finished, raised his right hand and gave her his solemn pledge.

"I had a son in the German navy. He was mistaken, but he did what he believed was right. I will not apologize for him. I never have. Remember, boys, I was his mother, the same as I was the mother of four sons serving with my country's forces," said Madame Schumann-Heink.

"And now," George E. Leach, mayor of Minneapolis, said, "I propose a toast to that man who went down on the German U-boat in 1918."

Silently the thirty men arose and raised their glasses. Madame Schumann-Heink sank into her chair and covered her face with her hands. Her sobs could be heard by all.

And then those thirty men paid her perhaps the finest tribute she had ever received. Silently, with bowed heads, they stood there and waited until she had left the room.

REACHES MONTANA

From Tuesday's Daily.

John Richardson of this city, who departed two weeks ago for the big fistic show at Shelby, Montana, has had a fine trip barring a few miles of bad roads and is to arrive at Shelby today in time to learn the news of the calling off of the big fight between Dempsey and Gibbons. John wrote to friends from Billings that he had been delayed somewhat by bad roads but was having a good time and those who know the jolly and genial ferry man can well believe that Mr. Richardson will make the very best use of his trip and have a great experience even if he does not get to see the big fight pulled off.
