STRESEMANN CABINET FACING DISSOLUTION
New Crisis in Berlin as Radicals Demand Repeal of the Emergency Edict—Try Compromise.
London, Oct. 2.—Hans Von Ranner, the German minister of economics, has resigned, says a Reuter dispatch from Berlin tonight.
Berlin, Oct. 2.—The early retirement of the cabinet of Chancellor Stresemann was unofficially forecast this evening as the outcome of the parliamentary deadlock over the chancellor's program for economic reforms and the opposition of the socialists to the existing state of emergency. At 8:30 o'clock this evening the chancellor was conferring with President Ebert.
At 9:30 p. m. the chancellor was still closeted with the president, and the belief was expressed in authoritative circles that the resignation of the cabinet might be expected sometime during the night in consequence of the socialist party's threat to support the communist resolution demanding immediate repeal of the state of emergency.
