"ON THE CORNER"

PLATTSMOUTH AND SCHOOL FOR DEAF PLAY A TIE GAME

Battle Yesterday Afternoon in Mud
Local Backfield Shows up Well
In the Game.

From Tuesday's Daily—

In a field heavy with mud of several days' rain, the team of the Nebraska School for the Deaf and the Plattsmouth high school battled yesterday afternoon to a scoreless tie, before a small but very appreciative crowd of rooters, who, with the enthusiasm of high school boys and girls, made the air ring with their cheers and yells and the music of the "rube" band.

The local team was apparently lacking in its line work as there was little interference given for the backfield in carrying the ball and they were especially weak in withstanding the attacks of the visitors who were able to drive through the entire length of the field in a series of line rushes in the latter part of the game. It was in the straight line attacks that the visitors proved the most effective as the wet condition of the grounds and the equally slippery pigskin made the passes incomplete and the aerial game was used but very little by either of the teams.

For the locals there were several very good end runs made, Gorder, Chase and Krejci making gains in this manner in the first quarter of the game but which were lost on fumbles and intercepted passes. The visitors in the opening quarter also tried passes but the wet condition of the ball made it difficult to hold and these were abandoned practically after the opening of the game.

In the second quarter the locals were close to the coveted touchdown as, by end runs and a well placed kick they had the ball on the five yard line of the visitors, but lost before the driving tactics of the deaf school players and their defense crumpling the visitors forced the ball back into the Plattsmouth territory.

In the opening of the second half the locals used Godwin for several long runs which, however, did not result in material gains as they were soon forced into the defensive when they were unable to make their first downs.

In the last quarter the Plattsmouth team opened with several ground gaining plays, Krejci gaining five yards and Chase advancing the ball farther into the enemy's territory but on a costly fumble by the locals the visitors gained the ball and started their march down the field toward the goal of the Plattsmouth team and the final whistle saw the battle raging near the local goal and with the line smashing machine of the school for the deaf working in good shape.

The Plattsmouth team will have, perhaps, their hardest game of the year on Friday afternoon when they battle the South Omaha high school team on the local lot and the game will be a real test of the mettle of the Plattsmouth boys as the visitors are a much larger and heavier team.

Between the first and second halves of the game the boys of Troop 1 and Troop 2 of the Boy Scouts played a few moments of football which were real exciting and the kids showed up well in making passes. Ed Wescott raised considerable mud as did Kenneth Henry, while Roscoe Hayne proved a veritable wall which the players of Troop 2 battled against in vain. There was no scoring in the game.

RETURNS FROM CHICAGO

From Tuesday's Daily—

C. C. Wescott, senior member of the firm of C. E. Wescott's Sons, who has been at Chicago for the past ten days attending the convention of the National Retail Clothiers association, returned home this morning. Mr. Wescott found the convention one of the largest held in a great many years and large representations from all of the state to discuss the problems of the retail trade as well as to look over the lines of the large Chicago houses and the representatives of the eastern wholesale house who were in attendance at the meeting. Great displays of all lines of men's wearing apparel were made at the convention hall which was located on the municipal pier. While there Mr. Wescott also enjoyed a visit with his son, Mason Wescott, who is a student at Northwestern university. The last few days of the stay of Mr. Wescott were marred somewhat by the fact that the reports of the floods in Nebraska given by the Chicago papers were not reassuring as to this dry, and, unable to get a wire through, Mr. Wescott felt that perhaps the storm area included Plattsmouth and was much relieved and assured when, upon reaching the city, he found everything peaceful and quiet and safe from harm.

RAISING FUNDS FOR RELIEF OF THE LOUISVILLE FOLKS

Plattsmouth Chamber of Commerce
Raises $400 From Citizens for Immediate Relief.

From Monday's Daily—

This morning the Plattsmouth Chamber of Commerce through its committee conducted a campaign among the residents of the downtown districts and the business men of the city and as a result of its efforts there will be between $300 and $400 this evening to turn over to the people of Louisville to apply on any cases of personal need and want that may be found among the homeless and desolate of that city.

Henry A. Schneider, chairman of the Cass county Red Cross chapter, took up the matter of the activity of the Red Cross in the relief work and the tender of the funds for the use of the suffering in Louisville, with W. F. Diers, one of the active Red Cross workers of that city, and was advised that it would be best to wait until Tuesday when the Louisville people could definitely check up on the needy and destitute there and know just what would be needed, which could be given by the Red Cross. When it is, the Red Cross will be ready to go to the fullest extent of its resources to aid the suffering.

The Plattsmouth contribution is the voluntary expression of a feeling of grief and sympathy at the terrible disaster that has visited our neighboring town and will be used for procuring shelter, food and clothing for those who have suffered greatly in the flood, and was unsolicited by the Louisville people, and will be at their disposal at once for such immediate cases that may come up.

RETURNS FROM TRIP TO HIS NATIVE LAND

From Monday's Daily—

Ludwig Miller, wife and children returned yesterday morning from a visit of the past summer in southern Germany, the former home of Mr. Miller, and the experiences in that troubled land were very interesting and at times not exactly the most comfortable owing to the unusual conditions that are prevailing there at this time.

Mr. Miller states that about the only familiar feature of the old home was the scenery that lies around Kempten, Bavaria, as the people around that town were very interesting and at times not exactly the most comfortable owing to the unusual conditions that are prevailing there at this time.

The residents of all of the parts of Germany visited by the Millers were found to be very nervous and filled with unrest and uncertainty as to the future. This was in no small part due to the fact that the finances of the country are in such condition that there was pretense of stability and the mark, the unit of value of the money of the country was constantly falling. When the Miller family landed at Bremen, they exchanged American money for German marks at the rate of 7,000 to the dollars and on leaving the rate of exchange had fallen to 63,000,000 marks for a dollar.

The inhabitants of Germany make no pretense of saving any more, Mr. Miller states, and it is a struggle each day to dispose of what money there is on hand as there is no knowing to what extent the fall of the mark will go before there is some change made that will place the money of the country on a stable basis. Mr. Miller states there is no question but that the large business interests of both France and Germany are working together to eliminate the middle class of small dealers and manufacturers in Germany.

One of the most difficult things in the occupied area is the constant expulsion of the inhabitants by the French troops and Mr. Miller states that they are sent off with only a few hours warning and with only the clothes that they can carry and must leave their property behind.

NO "DOPE" AT DRUG STORES

From Tuesday's Daily—

The following from one of the drug trade papers gives a different light on the drug habit as far as the securing of supplies from drug stores by addicts is concerned. Those who saw the great picture of Mrs. Wallace Reid in Omaha showing the effects of the drug habit on the human race can appreciate the illegitimate manner in which the "dope" is handled and the article printed below gives a view of one of the large trade papers on the subject:

"If the use of narcotic drugs has been increasing, as a portion of the public press would have us believe, the drug store cannot be held responsible. The last report of the Prohibition commissioner clearly proves that.

"He reported that the legitimate consumption of narcotic drugs, that is, their sale by prescription of physicians and dispensing by druggists, had decreased 500 per cent for the year ending June, 1922. As the method of checking the sale of narcotic drugs through legitimate channels is the most perfect of any country in the world, this report may be accepted as absolutely correct.

"It shows that the attempt in some quarters to associate the drug trade with the alleged increased use of narcotic drugs is without foundation. If there has been an increased use, smuggling and illegitimate traffic, which so far the government has not been able to control, are alone responsible."

William Ballance was among those going to Omaha this morning to spend a few hours there attending the historical parade.

WALKING IS GOOD

From Monday's Daily—

George K. Petring, of the Plattsmouth Motor Co., Friday night, when the railroad traffic was all tied up, demonstrated that he is not wholly dependent on the Universal car for traveling purposes. Mr. Petring was in Omaha and when the announcement was made of the fact that there would be no train service between Omaha and Plattsmouth, the Ford dealer decided that it was up to him to make the trip as he used to travel in the army, (on foot) and accordingly after reaching Fort Crook by street car he started out to hike the remaining distance to the Platte river wagon bridge where relief in the shape of an auto was promised.

As Mr. Petring was traveling along the track he ran across another who was also engaged in traveling by foot and whose garb proclaimed him a knight of the road and who had evidently seen a great deal better days. The two walked as far as the flooded area near the Pappio where it was necessary to do some wading through the stream and here the knight of the road balked as he told Mr. Petring he had only the one suit of clothes and did not propose to take chances and turned back when approaching too near the water. George, however, was not frightened by the water and came on to the bridge where he was met by the auto and brought on home to this city.

DEPARTS FOR CONVENTION

From Monday's Daily—

One of the largest gatherings of the P. E. O. sisterhood in a great many years is to start at Seattle, Washington, this coming week and which will have among its representatives members from every chapter of the nation and each state in addition is sending a number of its state officers to attend the meeting.

Mrs. William Baird of this city, past state president of the Nebraska P. E. O., was among those selected by the last state convention to attend the convention and she departed Saturday afternoon for the west. Mrs. E. A. Wurl, president of Chapter F of this city, who was also named as the local delegate to the national gathering, departed with Mrs. Baird for Omaha from where they will join the remainder of the delegates and in a special train be taken to the west. They will be joined by delegations from Iowa, Colorado and Wyoming to form a special train that will be devoted exclusively to the P. E. O. ladies and which will carry them on to Seattle.

Following the convention at Seattle, Mrs. Baird and Mrs. Wurl expect to visit at Portland, Oregon, for a short time and later go to San Francisco and Los Angeles where they will visit the former Plattsmouth residents and enjoy the many interesting sights of the great west coast country that has called so many Nebraskans there to reside.

HAVELOCK HAS HIGH WATER

From Tuesday's Daily—

The town of Havelock, which is situated in the Salt Creek basin, has been the victim of a great deal of high water following the rains of Friday and Saturday and according to reports from that place there was a great deal of damage done at the Burlington shops where the water stood on a level of twelve inches all over the boiler room at the shops. In the wheel pits there was eight feet of water and various parts of the shops were out of commission from Friday night until Monday. The workmen were kept busy cleaning up the shops for two days and nights before there was anything like normal conditions prevailing.

Fred J. Warren was among those going to Omaha on the afternoon Burlington train to spend a few hours looking after some matters of business.
