PRESBYTERIANS EXTEND THEIR ULTIMATUM TO REV. FOSDICK

Decide He "Ought Not Continue in Church if He Cannot Accept Doctrines"—No Review.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 28.—If Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, a Baptist, desires to continue to occupy the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church, New York city, he should enter the Presbyterian denomination; if he cannot accept the Presbyterian doctrinal standards, he ought not to continue in a Presbyterian pulpit.

This was the verdict of the one hundred and thirty-sixth general assembly of the church in its session today. The assembly, in adopting a report of its judiciary commission, after refusing by a majority of 193 votes to review the entire case, made this decision.

The New York Presbytery, therefore, is directed to take up with Dr. Fosdick this question, to the end that he may determine whether it is his pleasure to enter the Presbyterian church and thus be in regular relationship with the first church of New York as one of its pastors.

The fight over the Fosdick case, which has been an outstanding issue of the church since last year's assembly admonished the New York Presbytery to make the preaching in First church conform to the confession of faith, did not come on the adoption of the commission's report. It centered instead, upon an attempt by the fundamentalists to throw the case upon the floor of the assembly.

When the vote was taken the number favoring review was 311, while those opposed to such action numbered 504 votes.

It was an acknowledged blow to the fundamentalists, the first suffered by them on a major matter since the assembly convened a week ago. It was not, however, regarded as so much of a victory for the "road" faction, which drew strength from both sides.

Another defeat for the fundamentalists came when the assembly voted unanimously against the Philadelphia overture, which would require reaffirmation of faith in the standards of the church by seminary teachers and the officials of other agencies of the church.
