SHORTAGE OF CAT- TLE SEEN BY RANGE MEN OF NORTHWEST

Prediction Made That Feeders Will Be Much Higher This Fall if Normal Demand Exists.

Range men from the northwest are telling the market managers that there really is a shortage of range cattle, a more pronounced shortage than has been taken into account and that this shortage will be felt more surely in two years from now than now. They say that feeding cattle will be harder to get next fall and that if the supply has anything to do with the price, that the dry feeders will be much higher. It is said that all of the older cattle have been sent to market from the ranges and that ranchers who once ran their cattle on grass until they were three years old are now turning them to market as yearlings and that the increase is thus cut down and the source of supply removed.

Northwest ranchers report that breeding herds have been cut down two factors figuring in this change. One is the demand and the other the lessening of range territory and the higher price of feedstuffs. The dry farmers are encroaching, the buffalo grass is disappearing and weed are taking its place.

In one way the foot and mouth quarantine in California has helped to conserve the supply on the ranges. That quarantine cut off any rising market and shipments could not be made.

Grass started early on the Wyoming and Montana ranges but the dry spell coming in with the growing season has caused it to quit growing with the result that range prospects are not the best.

BEET SUGAR IS GOOD FOR CANNING.

Beet sugar is just as good for canning and jelly-making as cane sugar. The reason for the average housewife's prejudice against beet sugar is based on the fact that in the past much of the beet sugar on the market was not so highly refined and contained impurities, states the Agricultural College authorities. A properly refined cane sugar may be less desirable than a highly refined beet sugar. However, impurities in sugar will come to the surface in a boiling solution and may be removed as a scum.

The sugar bee is in reality the source of much of the so-called same sugar on the market. According to the pure food laws this is not considered misbranding because the two sugar are so chemically alike. If maple sugar were refined, it would lose its characteristic flavor and become the same as beet or cane sugar. The slight color which some sugar has is due to chemicals used in the refining process. For canning and jelly-making it makes no difference whether the sugar is coarse or fine, but for cake-making a refined sugar is preferable because it gives a finer texture to the product.

UNIVERSITY TAKES OVER CONSERVATION

Administration of Dr. Condra's Department Under Control of the Board of Regents.

An erroneous impression has to some extent prevailed that the work of conservation and surveys located at the university under the charge of Dr. E. Condra is not a part of the university's own activities but that an affiliation exists akin to the part of conservation is under separate legislative enactments its administration is now entirely under the control of the regents of the university, is paid for in part out of general university appropriations, and is as integral a part of the institution as the agricultural experiment station, the sub-stations, agricultural extension, or any of the other non-teaching activities.

For a number of years Dr. Condra's name has appeared among the university professors as professor of geography and economic geology in the graduate college. His title will appear hereafter as professor of industry and surveys, and subject to the approval of the faculty concerned he is authorized to offer courses not only in the graduate college, but in any of the undergraduate colleges of the university.

The extension of the teaching activities of the department involves no change in the university budget. It is exactly the same as the chancellor's extension of the department in chemistry with the approval of the college concerned and without extra remuneration for teaching services.

The purpose of this reorganization is to make a large amount of survey material, apparatus for visual instruction, and other equipment in the division of surveys available for a certain amount of undergraduate instruction. It is also desired to utilize the services of experts connected with the division of industry and surveys to some extent as undergraduate instructors in the fields in which they are specialists. The situation is somewhat similar to the employment of Professor Loveland as an instructor in meteorology except that in his case the weather bureau is not one of the university's own activities.

This statement is given out by the chancellor to clear up any misapprehension in regard to the change in title and extension of the work involved to include some undergraduate teaching.

CHURCH WOULD BAR THE FIGHT SATURDAY

Protest Against the "Go" Scheduled to be Staged in Indiana, Wired to Governor of State.

Springfield, Mass., May 28.—A protest against the holding of the Carpenter-Gibbons boxing contest at Michigan City, Indiana, Saturday, was telegraphed to Governor Emmet F. Branch at Indianapolis by the Methodist Episcopal general conference late today.

The message reads: "In behalf of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, in session here, representing more than 3,000,000 Methodists in the United States of America, and by unanimous vote of said general conference, we do hereby protest against the holding of the alleged boxing contest scheduled to be held at Michigan City, Ind., May 31, 1924.

"The professional character of the principals, the general advertisements and reported sale of tickets indicate that said contest will be in fact a prize fight, and therefore in violation of the laws of Indiana. We, as you, stand for the enforcement of law, and we appeal to you to prevent the contemplated infraction of the laws of Indiana relating to prize-fighting, to compel obedience thereto and to preserve the peace and dignity of the state."

Divorce, education and labor were the public matters which received attention from the conference today. A uniform divorce law amendment to the federal constitution was asked of congress and the Sterling-Reed bill, providing for a department of education in the cabinet, now pending in congress was endorsed. A committee composed of Bishop William F. McDowell of Washington and others will present the education bill plea to the house and senate.

The right of labor to organize and to share in the control of industry was recognized in a report on industrial relations adopted on presentation by the committee on the state of the church. The report demanded a living wage and proper safeguards for the workers' health and security.

COOLIDGE TO ANSWER VETS' BUREAU CHARGES.

Washington, D. C., May 30.—Senator Reed, Pennsylvania, announced tonight after a conference with President Coolidge that he would reply in the senate, probably tomorrow, to the charges reiterated there yesterday by Senator Odzie, republican Nevada, that the veterans' bureau was controlled by a "ring" which prevents adequate care of former soldiers.

NEW UNIVERSE IS SEEN IN HARVARD PHOTOGRAPHS

Faint Haze in Sagittarius May Prove That Heavens Are Formed From Ice.

Washington.—Government scientists identified with glacial research work in Glacier National park are showing interest in the new theory developed by the Viennese scientist, Dr. Haas Hoerbigner, that glacial cosmogony "explains" the origin of the heavens.

This idea, that ice is the building material with which new universes are constantly forming in the heavens, recently stirred scientific circles of Europe. Now it is being given particular attention in America in connection with the recent discovery at the Harvard observatory, where photographs were taken showing that a faint and nameless luminous haze in the sky in the constellation of Sagittarius, the Archer, is a distinct universe.

From these photographs Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the observatory, estimates that it takes 1,000,000 years for light to travel from this newly found universe, which, he says, is the most distant object ever viewed by the eye of man. He bases his statement on the fact that the most distant stars known prior to this measurement are only 250,000 light-years from our earth.

The new universe found by the mammoth lenses measures six quintillion miles away. It took a 100-inch reflecting telescope, the largest ever made, to find this "cloud of stars."

Babylonian Seals Found New Key to Ancient Past

Philadelphia.—Through the possession of more than 800 Babylonian seals, the translation and classification of which recently have been completed by Dr. Leon Legrain, curator of the Babylonian section of the university museum, the University of Pennsylvania has supplied the archeological world with an unbroken chain for the future study of the origin, development, art, religion and epigraphy of Babylon.

For two years Doctor Legrain has been at work classifying and translating the seals, which include five royal cylinders.

To the eyes of thousands who yearly flock to the university museum the latest exhibit will attract more than common interest, but to students of the historical mysteries of thousands of years ago the seals will supply three new elements of information.

First, an early chronology going back to nearly 5000 B. C.; second, an early Elamite art on painted seals and vases, undoubtedly executed before 3000 B. C., and third, a better-known Akkadian empire, of about 2700 B. C.

Would Sell Mechanical Army to United States

New York.—Nells W. Aasen, quiet, scholarly Danish inventor, has expressed his intention of coming to this country shortly to offer his "mechanical soldiers" and superbombs to the United States.

A line of soulless mechanisms buried in the earth along frontiers, waiting for years for the hand on an electric button that will release them to shower bullets and poison gas on invaders—that is Mr. Aasen's substitute for flesh and blood defensive armies. His human equivalent is reduced to a few engineers to guide the defensive lines and, on the offensive, to aviators whose function would be poison-gas bombing, and to naval crews operating his newly invented depth bombs against enemy shipping.

With different war lengths, successive tiers of the underground successions could be exploded to stop the advance of any army whose positions could be reported by radio from observation airplanes.

Humming Bird Dies of Grief Over Mate's Loss

Oakland, Cal.—Otto Emerson, Hayward (Cal.) naturalist, who found two humming birds a few days old and raised them until full grown, reports that one of them died of grief because it accidentally caused the death of the other.

Emerson said the birds were inseparable. For hours they would play together, and at night they would roost close to each other. One day in their aerial swinging, one knocked the other with force against a wall. The injured bird retired to a dark corner and paid no attention to the solicitous chirpings of its mate. The next morning it was dead. The bereaved bird seemed dazed all that day. His feathers drooped, his head hung. He neither flew nor ate. The next morning he, too, was dead.

Such instances of birds' affection are not unusual, according to Emerson.

Gasoline Prices Lower in Minnesota than in Nebraska

St. Paul, Minn., May 30.—Gasoline prices here and in Minneapolis dropped approximately 3 cents a gallon at all filling stations.

Low test gasoline sold for 18 cents a gallon and high test for 21 cents. The reduction followed the action of the St. Paul automobile club which sold gasoline to its members in an attempt to force reductions.

In a certain Nebraska town there was a merchant who refused to advertise in the local paper, said no one read the sheet and it didn't pay. One day the editor dropped into this man's store and caught him kissing one of his lady clerks. Nothing was said on either side but ever after that man was a steady advertiser. Evidently he made up his mind that someone might read the paper. This is a true story and will probably be read by the interested parties.

GENERAL BOOTH TELLS OF BRITAIN'S NEEDS.

Victoria, B. C., May 30.—General Bramwell Booth, head of the Salvation Army, arrived here today from Australia on the steamship Niagara. "The greatest problem in the British empire today is that of redistribution of population," he said. "The surplus population of some parts of the British empire should be moved to those sections where only inhabitants are gophers and rabbits."

General Booth has been touring Australia and India for a year. He is on his way to London.

FIXES TOLL CHARGES

In the district court today an order was issued by Judge Begley on the application of T. H. Pollock for the Platte River Auto and Wagon Bridge Co. further fixing the rates to be charged for transportation of vehicles over the bridge. The change made is that of charges on trucks, the following order for fixing rates being made:

Three-quarter ton trucks and over, with driver and loaded, $1.00.

Three-quarter ton trucks and over, with driver, empty, $.50.

FARMING NEBRASKA HOG LOTS

Hundreds of hog raisers in Nebraska are farming the old hog lots this year and are raising the pigs on a new patch of ground. Most of the men following out this system are raising the best crop of pigs they have raised for years. Reports of an average of seven and eight strong pigs per sow at weaning time are very common. These results furnish a marked contrast to the pig crop on the same farms last year where, in many cases, only four or five pigs were raised per sow and some of them were runt.

The preference on the part of Nebraska farmers for clean fields on which to raise pigs is becoming more noticeable each year, the Agricultural College, Lincoln has found. Hog raisers find that under this system the brood sow herd can be reduced in numbers. This reduces the overhead expense and the sows which are kept can be made to produce much more pork at less cost per pound.

GEMS OF THOUGHT.

Senator James E. Watson, talked of in Indiana as a candidate for vice president on the republican ticket, was the "keynote" speaker at the state convention of his party. His address was more remarkable for its omissions than for its contents; but that was natural enough.

He could hardly do any pointing with pride to the record of the nominal majority in the present congress. He could hardly eulogize the Old Guard, to which he belongs, for courage, regularity and consistent support of the president, since the old guard deserts Mr. Coolidge on the most important issues after proffering him Pecksniffian lip service. Neither could Mr. Watson mention prudently the record of the gentleman who was compelled by federal court and jury to transfer his residence from the Indiana executive mansion to a penitentiary.

What, then, could the poor man do?

He could and did dwell on republican achievement since the Civil war; he could and did express the view that the congressional investigation had been "a dismal failure"—despite returned indictments, dismissals of cabinet members—and that they were primarily the desire of partisan democrats to "blacken the government and besmirch the republicans." Further, Mr. Watson could and did denounce radicalism, without, however, saying one word about the McNary-Haugen bill, which many republican congressmen are prepared to vote for and which at least one member of the Coolidge cabinet has been supporting.

Senator did the best he could and that best was poor and sorry stuff. Warnings of republicans like Senators Pepper and Borah against buncombe and cant were ignored by the maladroited Indiana keynoter, and the voters were treated to a farrago of half-truths, evasions, paradoxes and rank nonsense.

No wonder the people of this country are weary of political bourbonism and political time serving for spoils only.

TAMMANY HALL

What is Tammany and why its name and power? Tammany was an Indian chief of the Delaware tribe. He was so popular among the white people that he was known as the patron saint of America. The Tammany society is an organization named after this chief. It was formed in 1879 at New York by William Mooney. It was called the Columbia club and was organized for social and charitable purposes. Later it was incorporated under its present name and became a democratic political club. Aaron Burr first placed it on a thoroughly organized footing and it was instrumental in making him vice president in the election of 1800. Since then, with a few setbacks, Tammany has been an increasing power in democratic politics. Its membership is now many thousands.
