DEAD UNTO SIN;

ALIVE UNTO GOD

Reckon ye yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord. Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body.

—Romans vi, 11-12.

Big Fourth of July celebration.

Absence of winter makes the heart grow fonder.

The biggest things in life are the small things.

Remember you and your friends are welcome.

The slogan should be, "McAdoo and Victory."

Missouri votes to be cast for McAdoo as a unit.

And that a good time is assured to all who come.

An optimist is a man who enjoys working for a living.

Everybody on a political machine wants to blow the horn.

Many a garden plot has ceased to be the land of promise.

Wooden legs are not inherited as wooden heads often are.

Looks as if the backbone of winter is just about broken.

It is hard to sing "Home, Sweet Home" in a rented house.

The hard thing about making money last is making it first.

People who think too much of themselves do not think enough.

Some people who fail in business, seek public office to make a living.

The proper way to wake up business is with a few rousing cheers.

Every true democrat is holding his breath until a nomination is made.

They do not shake hands at all in China, and not enough in America.

One day our swell ball team wins. Next day our rotten ball team loses.

Men have been wearing ties hundreds of years without knowing why.

Trouble with knocking around the world is it knocks you around instead.

Perhaps time really is money. Anyway, time is all some friends spend.

The height of foolishness is on the same level with the depths of despair.

Dark horses are in evidence in New York and a mistake may occur. We hope not.

Even if she does rouge nicely, find out if she can cook. Two can't live on rouge alone.

Sad thing about having the old pep all night is you have the old pep all the next day.

Idealism, so profusely injected into the Coolidge candidacy caused by the late nominating speech, has been saved. Slump will not reign.

The Nebraska delegates did not take part in the McAdoo parade or the Anti-Klan parade. Neither one could get the Nebraskans off their seats.

Stylists in Paris have dealt a death blow to the corsets, according to a dispatch. Blame it on the stylists if you will, but masculine arms and straight facing never did harmonize.

"Rhode Island Solons Routed by Chlorine Gas," reads a news headline. Training in Nebraska would have made them immune. Our legislators are accustomed to gas of the most damaging kind.

Plattsmouth is arranging to pull off the biggest celebration ever held in the old town, and it seems that all the people within a radius of twenty miles are preparing to be here. Come on, boys and girls, and old folks, and enjoy the time of your life.

LINES TO REMEMBER

Our instruments, our very hearts, our hands are given us to work with in this time—to struggle with the evil, to bring out the good in this time; in order that people may look back in after days and say: "See what has come down to us from it; see what good has removed all of the wrong which those who dwell in it tell us of; see what there is in it to imitate." —Frederick.

Everything seems lovely so far in New York. We hope it will continue to the end.

The small boy's idea of heaven is a place where they use ice cream bricks for paving streets.

Experience isn't such a wonderful teacher—if you spend all your time on the same lesson.

All good feelings should be expressed. Most of them arrive as if they were sent by freight.

There are many able men in the New York convention and they should be able to pick a winner.

While passing out pointed remarks, remember the porcupine. His only friends are other porcupines.

Even if women do have more sense than men, you never see a man with about a million buttons on his shirt.

If you take a fly in and treat her nice she wants you to give a party for all of her friends and relatives.

Your lot could be worse. Suppose you were a society girl and had to sit down and be still for a few minutes?

Some mysterious person in Florida is shooting mules at night, possibly under the delusion that they are jazz bands.

A golf ball leaves the club head at about 135 miles an hour, which is about as fast as a golfer leaves the office.

Biggest and greatest convention ever held in the United States. The Nebraska delegation is for McAdoo, reports say.

Three armed bandits got $43,500 from a New York jeweler, so that now they have enough to spend a week-end at a fashionable summer resort.

The suggestion of the chief of the weather bureau that, if a thirteenth month be added to the calendar, it be called "Sol" will probably be vetoed by the K. K. K.

The keynote of Senator Pat Harrison is one of the greatest speeches ever delivered before a democratic national convention. It is surely a keynote of the right kind.

There's many a slip 'twixt cup and lip, murmured Flapper Fannie as she slipped the thirteenth coat of red over her lips to protect them from the afternoon sipping of tea.

The fireworks display at the 4th of July celebration will be one of the big features of the day. Ten massive set pieces will be displayed, as well as a world of bombshells, rocket bombs, illumination rockets, aronic displays, etc. The grand finale will come with the set pieces, the American Legion emblem, the Red Cross and Our Flag, fired in rapid succession, amidst a crash of bomb shells that can be heard for miles. The fireworks are now here and the work of erecting frames for the set pieces will begin at once.

Be a live wire and you won't be stepped on.

The second crop of straw hats will be ripe soon.

During the mud dog season, hot dog might bite you.

Nothing has the same big pull on the second time around.

As usual, the June bride is getting in her deadly work.

Only one week till July the 4th. And we are all ready for it.

It's not what you fall for, but what you stand for that counts.

This freakish weather has given the front porch a long vacation.

It's a waste of time to argue the flaws of matrimony in May or June.

Much of common sense consists in doing nothing when there is a row on.

Before letting your conscience be your guide, be sure you have a conscience.

It's a stiff upper lip and a limber backbone that make some people look ridiculous.

Some fellow with a lot of time to spare is trying to perfect a pucker-less persimmon.

Hickory nuts are the best if some one would think up a fancy trade name for them.

A man on vacation will spend more money accidentally than he will on purpose at home.

Falling in love is about like loafing. Both use up more time than a busy man can spare.

When a man conceals his faults he is likely to soon have quite a large private collection.

Hot time in New York, and will get hotter and hotter as long as the democratic convention lasts.

The more no-account a man is the more frantically he will remind you that he is just as good as anybody.

This is Bob LaFollette's last chance. He is 63 now, and will be too old by the next presidential year.

Everything free in Plattsmouth on the Fourth. Come on, boys and girls, and dance till broad day light if you want to.

Our idea of an old-timer is the citizen who can remember when the first sign of spring was sulphur and molasses.

The next controverted point of the great democratic battle is: How long can a politician in New York stay sober?

Pat Harrison's remark about this being "no cold storage convention" was a nasty thrust at Cleveland. Only one variety of breakfast dish is indelibly associated with cold storage. But does he want this described as a convention of fresh eggs?

COST OF HONKING

Motor vehicle owners in the United States paid over 471 million dollars in taxes last year.

There are only 43,000 miles of surfaced highways in the whole country. So auto and motorcycle owners in one year pay more than $1,000 taxes for every mile of good roads.

The hole made in the American pocketbook by autos reminds us of one of the craters on the moon. But the auto is easily three-fourths a necessity, only one-fourth a pleasure device.

It is cheap at any price, considering the time it saves.

Time, after all, is the thing of greatest value among our many forms of wealth.

THE FIELD OF HONOR

Ever since Woodrow Wilson's breakdown, many have spoken of him as a war casualty. Very few of the world's great figures have been so much revered and so much hated. That, even before his death, the reverence had deepened and grown and the hatred had lessened or died is not in point.

If we bear in mind that winning a war is not complete without winning the peace that follows, it is possible to measure and appraise the effort Mr. Wilson made after the war had been won. His effort was to win, for this nation and the allied powers, the peace. He had a plan, and he believed in it with all his soul. He believed that if the American people would accept his plan, they would win the peace.

On last Tuesday night, before the graduating class of the Medical College of Virginia, Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, Mr. Wilson's physician for eleven years, told for the first time in detail and in definite terms what Mr. Wilson's belief and faith led him to dare. He had been told, and he had enough general knowledge of his condition to know that the tour he contemplated would expose him to grave danger of breakdown and even of death. He was not constitutionally a strong man; he had been forced to abandon the practices which had kept him moderately well; he was in the dangerous sixties; on such a tour he could not take the exercise and rest he needed; the strain upon him would be heavy, and he might—almost surely would—be unable to stand up under it.

Solemnly realizing all this, he solemnly set out on the tour that shattered him. Because belief burned within him, because a passionate faith impelled him, he looked danger between the eyes and went out to win the peace. Just as surely as men were maimed and finally died to win the war, just so surely he was maimed and finally died to win the peace.

He lost? He lost, as did those men in khaki who lie in France while their brothers-in-arms won the war. He lost as they did, with their eyes open to torment and death. Only—we have not yet won the peace though he lies dead on the field of his honor.

WORDS WITH THE BARK ON

Whatever the democrats may do in New York, there are certain things of which they should be certain to steer clear. To name a presidential candidate who will not command universal confidence would be suicidal. He ought to be, above all, meticulously honest, as far removed as possible from any taint or corruption; he ought to be able; he ought to be experienced in the conduct of government, and he ought to be a recognized progressive.

An evasive platform would cost tens of thousands of votes; let the democrats act in this matter in striking contrast to the republicans. And it is most important that there be a minimum of friction. Discord such as that which now characterizes the republican ranks would be very unfortunate. Let the republicans fight among themselves; the democrats have too much at stake to emulate them.

ORDER OF HEARING AND NOTICE OF PROBATE OF WILL

In the County Court of Cass county, Nebraska.

State of Nebraska, County of Cass, ss.

To all persons interested in the estate of Adam Purnoff, Sr., deceased:

On reading the petition of Adam B. Purnoff and Philip Purnoff praying that the instrument filed in this court on the 24th day of June, 1924, and purporting to be the last will and testament of the said deceased, may be proved and allowed, and recorded as the last will and testament of Adam Purnoff, Sr., deceased; that said instrument be admitted to probate and the administration of said estate be granted to Adam B. Purnoff and Jacob Purnoff, as executors.

It is hereby ordered that you, and all persons interested in said matter, may, and do, appear at the County Court to be held in and for said county, on the 28th day of July, A. D. 1924, at ten o'clock a. m., to show cause, if any there be, why

with gasoline as with paint— it's BALANCE that COUNTS

HIGH quality pigments and oils don't guarantee a paint that spreads, covers and wears well. Neither do low, medium and higher boiling point fractions in gasoline assure superior motor fuel. In both cases balanced proportions determine real worth.

If altering the proportions of low and higher boiling point fractions in Red Crown would improve it, we would change it to a blended gasoline.

But Red Crown is so accurately balanced to give quick starts in any weather, burns up with such a slight residue of carbon, develops power so dependably and gives such big mileage per gallon that it would be a mistake to change it.

Innumerable experiments have proved that you can neither add nor take away any fraction of Red Crown and have as good an all-around motor fuel.

Drive in to any Red Crown Service Station and fill up with balanced gasoline. You will receive prompt attention, courteous service and full measure of gasoline that is suited to the needs of modern motors and Polarine motor oils that give protective lubrication.
