Whereas—Heaven has been most generous with its rainfall; Likewise having dished out a right smart of sunshine, and—

Whereas—We are promised bounteous crops of Wheat, Oats, Corn, Hay, Horses, Cows, Chickens and Ducks, and—

Whereas—In order to harvest the above fruit, it becomes necessary for the farmer to work days, nights, holidays and Sundays, if he chooses, necessitating the wearing out of many of our Big One work shirts, our Carhartt, Osh-Kosh-Be-Gosh and Ideal brand of overalls, now—

Therefore—To lessen the farmer's labors, to enable him to work in the field by lamplight, milk his cows and perform such other duties as he may find necessary, we do hereby pledge our hearty support and co-operation, by keeping our store open—wide open—Wednesday evening of each week, until we are sold out, or until such time as everybody is broke.

RAIL CHIEFS CHEER-ED OVER CROP CONDITIONS IN STATE

President Holden of Burlington Says Better Times Are Ahead in All Lines of Business.

From Saturday's Daily— Hale Holden, president of the Burlington system; Vice Presidents Burnham and Bracken and General Manager E. Flynn passed thru Lincoln Friday evening on the way to the northwest for a week's inspection of the railroad's property. They will go first to the Black Hills and later into Montana and Wyoming. Friday the party came from O'Neill to Lincoln, inspected the Havelock and Lincoln terminals and the new water supply source at Lincoln park.

"Today's grain loading on the Burlington lines west was 303 cars," said General Manager Flynn. "That is better business than it has been by far." Mr. Flynn said some of the loading was new wheat and that the road is prepared to handle well a heavy grain movement.

"We railroad men sit in our offices back in Chicago and get a view of the country thru reports from Washington," said Mr. Holden. "Sometimes we get pretty blue. Then we come out into Nebraska and look at the corn and wheat and cattle and hogs and see what people are doing and what their work means to the world. Then we conclude we are not so bad off after all."

"God has been good to this part of the world this year. He has not only given wonderful crops but He has given the crops in a year when production in other parts of the world has been low. It is bound to mean much for the west. The products of the farm will bring a lot of money into the country. Conditions are excellent for better business."

"When money comes west to the west," said Mr. Burnham, "people begin to buy. That puts men to work in the east making what the west wants to buy. It starts business all over and conditions improve."

Mr. Bracken was making his second trip over the lines west in two weeks, and Mr. Flynn was starting on his third trip in as many weeks. Lightness of traffic in the past few months made rather rigid economy necessary and retrenchment has been the order. Along with the coming of the officials on this trip came the announcement that car shop men are now working six days a week and that conditions are getting better.

POLK COUNTY MAN IS SELECTED BY DEMOCRATIC STATEY CENTRAL BODY.

CHOICE IS WELL RECEIVED

Meeting Largely Attended and Great Interest Shown—Candidate a Leader Among Farmers

Lincoln, July 24.—J. N. Norton of Polk was nominated as the democratic nominee for governor on the seventeenth ballot at the meeting of the democratic state committee here tonight. Norton's nomination was made at 8:30, after the committee had been in session only one hour of the evening session. On the nominating ballot Norton received thirty-five votes—one more than needed to nominate. The nomination was immediately made unanimous by acclamation.

Direct steps toward a nomination began with the opening of the evening session at 7:30. John Hopkins, of Omaha, who had led on most of the ballots taken during the afternoon session, announced his withdrawal personally as soon as the evening session was called to order. Hopkins' withdrawal was greeted with a sounding ovation from the members of the committee and the spectators.

"It is apparent that there is a deadlock in the committee," Hopkins said. "I propose to immediately withdraw my name in the interests of the democratic party. I feel that, under the circumstances, my nomination would be either a benefit to the party or to myself."

Immediately after Hopkins made his announcement, J. F. Rohn, of Fremont read a telegram from Dan V. Stephens, who was also one of the four leading candidates during the afternoon's balloting, announcing Stephens' withdrawal.

Stephens Urges Unity

"I deeply appreciate the great compliment paid to me by the worthy democrats of Nebraska," Stephens wired, "those who have thought me an available candidate for governor notwithstanding the fact that I would not be a candidate, and could not conceive of my nomination being effective under conditions I could not afford to accept. I am more convinced now than ever before that my statement was correct in view of the opposition to my nomination. I certainly could not undertake the burden of entering a great campaign of this kind without the united support of democracy back of me. I request that my name be withdrawn and urge that everything be done to provide for the carrying of Nebraska by Davis and Bryan this fall."

Norton's nomination was practically assured as soon as the recess was taken at 5 o'clock. At that time some of those who had been diligently searching for the most available candidate during the last two days of preliminary shifting believed they saw in Norton the best bet of the party.

Jim Dahlman continued to find a place on the ballot to the last (receiving at least one or two votes on practically every one of the seven ballots.)

Governor Bryan's closest friends on the committee, including one or two holding office by his appointment, finally drifted to Norton, despite the governor's former opposition to the man from Polk.

Officers Appointed

At the close of the meeting to-night Chairman T. S. Allen of the state committee announced the appointment of the following officers of the committee:

Vice-chairman, J. C. Byrne, Columbus; vice-chairwoman, Mrs. Anna Fall, Beatrice; secretary, L. B. Stoner, Seward; assistant secretaries, George E. Baird, Hastings, and L. C. Chapin, Lincoln; members of the executive committee, N. C. Stoner, Seward; Douglas, Cones, Pierce; Arthur F. Mullen, Omaha; Dr. E. O. Weber, Wahoo; William Grueber, Byron; Charles Chappell, Minden; Mrs. H. E. Newbranch, Omaha; Joseph Votava, Omaha; Clara Clayton, Lincoln; Nellie Deffenbaugh, Fairmont; Mrs. C. G. Ryan, Grand Island; Florence F. Martin, Harvard.

CONDITION IMPROVED

The park board is highly pleased with the co-operation being given it by parents of most children who frequent Garfield park and enjoy the riding board installed there for their use. There are still a few so far removed from parental control as to make the handling of matters there a disagreeable task, and unless they conform to the rules they will not only be barred from playing there, but will be turned over to the custody of the officers as well.

DEPENDS CONVICTION BY CASS COUNTY JURY.

From Saturday's Daily— The jury that convicted Charles C. Parmele, former wealthy banker of Plattsmouth, was justified in that conclusion is the declaration of Attorney General Spillman, in a brief filed Friday with the supreme court.

The conviction was on an indictment returned by a grand jury in Cass county which charged him with embezzling a $1,500 note given by Luke Wiles to be applied on a $5,000 note owing by Wiles to Mrs. Douglas. It was alleged that he had used this note as collateral to a loan negotiated at an Omaha bank, that Wiles had eventually to pay it and that he never got credit for it on the Douglas note.

In his appeal Mr. Parmele laid particular stress on the refusal of the trial court to allow testimony to show that the transaction had been settled to the satisfaction of all concerned; that the evidence was insufficient to show that he was guilty of the offense charged with and went rather to support a charge not made, and that the appointment of a

LOUISVILLE HAS A VERY FINE TIME ON BARGAIN DAY

Merchants There Hold Special Bargain Day and Public Entertained by Band Concert.

From Thursday's Daily— Last evening was a very gala occasion in the enterprising little city of Louisville when the merchants of that city held a special bargain day festival and the residents and the visitors were entertained by a fine concert by the Weeping Water band.

The roads leading into Louisville were filled with cars from early in the evening until the threatening clouds warned the residents of the country districts that they had best proceed homeward and taken as a whole, the occasion was apparently one of the greatest interest for the good people of Louisville and their friends and neighbors who were there to enjoy the time with them.

The band concert was given on the street intersection at the Bank of Commerce corner and the musicians were surrounded by a very large crowd to take in the well balanced and arranged program that Director Hawkins and his Weeping Water musicians were offering and two hours of the fine program was given for the benefit of the auditors. As the evening was very hot and the musicians working hard, Mayor Lee J. Mayfield and a force of assistants were on hand to see that the band had plenty of cool drinks.

During the evening the representatives of the Plattsmouth Legion post were able to assist quite a large number of the Louisville service men in getting their compensation insurance blanks made out. The service men were at the Bank of Commerce where Reese Hastain and Ralph Larson are in charge and they also being service men placed their room at the disposal of the flying squadron. Incidentally, Mr. Hastain says that the visiting delegation was not neglected in the way of suitable refreshments.

There is one thing in which the people of Louisville as well as Cedar Creek and Plattsmouth should have a just complaint and that is the fact that there are several very dangerous places along the Louisville road that are a menace to the persons passing along that road at night and especially the driver who is not familiar with the highway and these should be repaired or marked so that there will be no possibility of anyone driving off into the deep ditches and creeks there. The road is decidedly rough, due to the continued rains and the lack of opportunity of dragging the roads and this is especially true of some of the hills just east of Louisville. On the eastern part of the road there was some dragging done yesterday that helped to make the road a little more suited for travel.

At suitable hour dainty refreshments were served that added to the enjoyableness of the occasion. Those participating in the event were Mesdames John P. Wehrlein, W. H. Wehrlein, Ida Tritsch, Arthur Sullivan, F. W. Nolting, Henry Nolting, John Bauer, Jr., Misses Mable Sullivan and Grace Nolting.

VOTES SUM FOR RURAL PUPILS' TUITION FEES

The rural school districts of Cass county have voted the sum of $32,148 to be used in paying the cost of the pupils from the country districts in the various high schools.

The tuition fees of the districts will enable the pupil to attend any school they may desire and as the available high schools are located in all of the principal towns of the county, the list that may be attended is quite large. The pupil is entitled to attend any high school in the state, but as a rule the school in the town nearest to the home of the pupil is selected as being most satisfactory. The number from the rural schools attending the high schools is constantly growing.

HEARING ON ESTATE

From Saturday's Daily— This morning the time of the county court was occupied in hearing the matter of the probate of the late will and testament of Adam Leff, deceased, of near Cedar Creek. Meisinger, all of this locality and children of the deceased pioneer.

VISITS IN PENNSYLVANIA

Henry Snoke enjoyed a visit last week from his brother, Isaac Snoke of Denver, who was returning from a pilgrimage to the old family home in Pennsylvania—the old homestead that has been in the Snoke family since the earliest settlement—the days when the Indians roamed over Pennsylvania as they did Nebraska fifty years ago. Mr. Snoke came on Tuesday of last week and left for Denver on Friday.—Eagle Beacon.

WORK AT OIL WELL IS STILL HELD UP

From Saturday's Daily

The work of drilling at the oil well on the Z. W. Shirader farm between Murray and Nehawka, in Mt. Pleasant precinct, is still being held up by the fact that the diamond drill used in drilling the well has been stuck two months ago and since which time there has been no work done in the way of sinking the well farther down in the depths of the earth and the efforts of the workmen have been devoted to trying to get the drill released from the rock formations where it has been lodged. The removal of the drill has been a real task and one that requires a great deal of effort on the part of the company that has the drilling in charge to remedy. The drill that is used in boring through the rock formations is one that has $8,000 in diamonds in it and is very valuable aside from its working powers. The residents of the vicinity of the oil well are hopeful that the efforts of the workmen will soon result in releasing the drill and permitting the work of sinking the well to be resumed and eventually secure a flow of oil that will bring wealth to this section of the state.
