Making light of your troubles will help you see the way clear!

A Bank Account will make your troubles light.

The "If" Bank Account

There is no such thing as making a start—"if". Savings are opened when "ifs" have been entirely eliminated.

In other words the way to open a bank account is to OPEN IT—No "ifs" and "ands."

Let us show you how easily it may be done.

While Mr. Lewis was a good barber and very accommodating with the public, all will find his successor, Mr. Frans a very clever barber and one of the most obliging people you may chance to meet. We bespeak for him success and are sure he will merit it. Give him a trial, boys, and he will treat you right.

BIBLE SCHOOL LESSON

October 5

By M. S. Briggs

Golden Text.—"Freely you have received, freely give."

The Mission of the Twelve. "Avaits it whether bare of shod, Those feet the paths of duty trod; If from the bowers of ease they sped, And sought afflictions humble bed, If fortunes guilty bribe they spurned, And home to virtues cot returned; Those feet with Angels wings shall vie, And tread the palaces of the sky." —CLEMENTS.

Obedient to the command of the Master, the twelve, even Judas went out and healed the sick, cured the lepers, restored sight to the blind, and carried the good tidings of the coming of the kingdom of the Lord. They had been blessed by an abundance of grace, and as the Master had commanded them, freely they had received they were to freely give.

When the Master sent out the twelve he expected them to do a certain work and they did it well. He had chosen the twelve Disciples and knew what they were worth in a campaign. Even Judas was chosen for a purpose, and he well served that purpose, for he was in the beginning a good worker, but loved money more than he did the Master's will. His betrayal of the Master had in it, much we see in the character of many persons at this time, they are willing to trade honor, justice, right, and even one's life for a few paltry dollars, and the price of him which should be the Saviour of the human race was only thirty pieces of silver.

Few of the disciples were anywhere near perfect, and many even of the most zealous had their faults. Peter who was named Cephas, a stone with all his earnestness and zeal, and the courage of a lion, fell when the tapering finger of a woman was pointed at him and the scornful voice charged him of being one of the followers. The Disciples were given power to cure all manner of diseases, to cleanse the lepers, to cast out unclean spirits. There was a three-fold purpose in giving them this power: In order that they might relieve the suffering of humanity, that they themselves might be made strong in the faith and when the time came which was to be after His Crucifixion, they could give absolute testimony that Jesus the Christ the Christ was indeed and truth the Son of God and that when He came that they might believe for He came to redeem the world and He was preparing his credentials as the True Messenger from heaven.

His messengers the twelve embraced all manner of men. Peter the courageous, the first mentioned, while a fisherman seemed a born leader and had no fear of any personal harm. But when the finger of scorn of a woman was pointed at him, he denied the Christ. Andrew the brother, who was the first disciple chosen, was before a disciple of John the Baptist, before coming to the Master. He was the one who went and told Peter to "Come, we have found the Messiah."

James and John were also fishermen and sons of Zebedee. James later became Bishop of Jerusalem and John the beloved disciple, the author of Saint John, also the three epistles. It was he who on the island of Patmos had the Revelations given him of the things to come which many wise men have endeavored to interpret even until now.

Philip, which means lover of houses, was the man who called Nathaniel who is called Bartholomew in this passage and of whom Jesus said, "Behold an Israelite in whom there is no guile." These came Matthew the publican, sometimes called Levi. He was a tax-gatherer. He purchased taxes at a discount and collected the full amount. Some added to the amount and collected that also. Then came the other James, known as James the Less. Thomas, who some call the doctor, but in reality he only asked a reason. Simon the canonical and a very zealous person. And last of all Judas Iscariot, the only one not a Galilean.

Christ said to them as he say to us: "Freely ye have received, freely give." They were only to go to the Jew

For to these alone had the Master come, until they rejected Him. Then when he was crucified the redemption came to all the world.

DOCK STORK VERY BUSY DURING THE PAST WEEK.

The past week has been a very busy one for old Dock Stork and Dr. E. H. Worthman has reported the following arrivals, which have brought much joy and happiness to the parents: A fine boy to Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Schneider of Cedar Creek, Mrs. Schneider is at the home of her mother, Mrs. Rachel Noyes and is being attended by her aunt, Mrs. Rachel Carter, who is a trained nurse and very efficient.

A girl was delivered to Mr. and Mrs. George Satterfield, in Sarpy county, on Friday, and another sweet little girl arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Stull who reside in the south part of the town with Mrs. Stull's mother, Mrs. Anna Leedy. Mrs. Stull is a granddaughter of the late Chris Duerr.—Louisville Courier
