A nail driving contest was staged and the first time a tie was made between Mrs. E. McCowan and Mrs. Earl Merritt, and on the second trial Mrs. Merritt won the silver service which was the prize.

Are Improving The Streets.

Union has been doing some very much needed improvements. The Main street of Union has been a problem for inhabitants of this progressive city, and they have grappled with it in a number of ways and they have concluded to try the matter of a good coat of gravel and have put the surface to grade and are spreading a good coat, some four inches of gravel, which will be replenished when it is well beaten into the ground.

This should greatly improve the main street which at times of bad roads presents a very trying condition and this the people are endeavoring to avoid.

BODY TAKEN TO HOME

This morning the body of the late Mrs. E. C. Hill was taken to Lincoln on the early morning Burlington train and will be held at the Wadlow chapel there until more definite arrangements can be made for the funeral and which are expected to be held at Beemer, Nebraska, the old home of the Hill family where they resided before moving to Plattsmouth and where also still resides the family of Mrs. Hill. A number of friends were at the Burlington station to pay their last tribute as the body departed on its journey to the last resting place.

At the Hayes home this morning a short prayer service was held by Rev. Frank Emory Poutz, pastor of the Methodist church, and attended by a number of the old time friends. The pallbearers who bore the body on its last long journey were R. B. Hayes, William Baird, J. E. and J. L. Wiles, E. H. Wescott and A. J. Beeson.

DEATH OF OLD TIME RESIDENT OF THIS CITY ON SUNDAY

Judge Jacob Levy of South Omaha Passes Away at Hospital Yesterday Afternoon.

From Monday's Daily— Judge Jacob Levy, for many years a familiar figure in the activities of the South Side in Omaha, passed away yesterday afternoon at a hospital in Omaha following an illness of several months and at the advanced age of eighty years.

Jacob Levy was a native of Poland and while a boy came to America and settled at Troy, New York, and later came west to Nebraska and settled at Plattsmouth where he lived for a few years and made his start in a long and successful business career in this city. He was located in the store room that is now used by the A. G. Bach grocery as a warehouse, and from his store he would make trips out over the country handling merchandise and built up a great trade in this way and later disposed of his holdings here to Israel Pearlman and moved to South Omaha. Here he established the first general merchandise store in that city.

He later became a justice of the peace, and though he was never admitted to the bar, he was the father of many of our laws. In his long term on the justice bench he never once had a decision reversed. He was always considered the friend of the poor.

While justice of the peace, Judge Levy tried more than 10 thousand law suits. He also married more than 3 hundred couples, and was famous for a justice known as "the marrying judge."

Surviving Judge Levy are his widow, Estler, a son, Hyman of Chicago, and three daughters, Mrs. A. H. Blank of Des Moines, Ia.; Mrs. Ben Prusiver of Sioux City, Ia.; and Mrs. E. V. Lewis of South Omaha.

The son-in-law of Judge Levy, A. H. Blank, of Des Moines, is the well known moving picture magnate and is the owner of the Rialto and Strand theatres in Omaha.

DOINGS IN DISTRICT COURT

The time of the district court yesterday afternoon following the return of the verdict in the Green case, was taken up with the hearing of the action in which Joseph Lahoda is the plaintiff and the M. W. A., and Opal Lahoda Parsons and Margaret Lahoda are the defendants. This is the action involving a dispute over to whom the Modern Woodmen is to pay the value of an insurance policy carried by Henry Lahoda, deceased. Mr. Lahoda carried a policy made payable to his daughters and a few days prior to his death a request for change in beneficiary was made, but before the issuance of a new policy the death of Mr. Lahoda occurred. The Woodmen have paid over the amount of the policy, $1,000, to the clerk of the district court awaiting the determining of the heirship. The case was heard before Judge Begley without jury.

SUNFLOWER PORTLAND CEMENT

Bread Baking and Cement Making

"These facts every woman knows from experience— That proper proportions of rich, pure ingredients are only the first step in making a fine loaf of bread.— That the yeast, sugar and salt must be thoroughly and evenly mixed with the flour.— That you cannot properly mix these materials dry.— That without the milk and water, it is impossible to uniformly coat each particle of flour with exactly the right amount of yeast, salt and sugar. "Cement making is much the same. Uniform quality depends on perfect mixing of the proper raw materials. "Five years of research work on the part of the International Technical Staff combined with its 20 years' experience in cement making resulted in the perfection of the International Wet-Blending Process. This process is now used in the mill of the Kansas Portland Cement Company at Bonner Springs. "Their product, SUNFLOWER PORTLAND CEMENT, offers the cement buyer two things he wants: [1] Quality that exceeds the U.S. Government standards by over 50%. [2] A control which insures uniformity at all times. "Yet this super-grade product costs no more than other cements. It has our unqualified endorsement and recommendation."
