MACHINE GUNS TO PROTECT PRISON

Warden Fenton Requests Arms to Safeguard Against Riot.

Lincoln, Dec. 19.—Machine guns on state penitentiary walls are proposed by Warden W. T. Fenton unless the legislature does something to relieve congestion at the institution. At the present time it is necessary for 150 men to sleep outside the cells in buildings within the walls.

This mode of protection against mob violence has been accepted at the federal prison at Leavenworth. Warden Fenton is thinking seriously of asking similar protection for his institution.

The warden wants an appropriation from the legislature for an entire new cell house at the penitentiary. It will necessarily be for the most part the shirt and overalls and furniture factories occupy all extra space within the walls. The warden proposes building the cell house directly across the road in front of the penitentiary.

In addition the appropriation of $150,000 or $200,000 will be necessary to rebuild the penitentiary power plant and provide power necessary for thoroughly lighting the new statehouse. The present plant, according to the warden, is inadequate to carry the load necessary to light the capitol when it is completed. At the present the penitentiary plant furnishes light for the governor's mansion, state asylum, old capitol, orthopedic hospital and state reformatory.

The job of lighting the few rooms in the new capitol has been temporarily assigned to the penitentiary plant, pending a settlement of a dispute as to whether the contract for lighting the new statehouse shall be awarded to a privately owned plant or to the municipal plant in Lincoln. "We can take care of the load for the few rooms completed," the warden said, "but if we are forced to light the entire statehouse with its flood lights, legislative halls and supreme court chambers we must have a new power plant."

HOOVER AND YOUNG PLAN A MERCANTILE CENSUS

Washington, Dec. 21.—Secretary of Commerce Hoover will discuss soon with Owen D. Young a plan for inaugurating a mercantile census to supplement the census of manufactures. Mr. Young is the chairman of a committee which will be appointed by the secretary to carry forward the preparatory work.

Editoring the distributing trades—jobbers, wholesalers and retailers—in the value of a census of distribution is regarded as the most important consideration preliminary to the actual inauguration of the census. The broad economic advantage to be derived from mercantile census lies in the fact that it will constitute a medium for increasing the production against distribution and consumption. It is stated.
