Mellon Praises Plan. Secretary Mellon believes that the plan evolved has the advantages over the suggested practice of dealing in government securities in the open market in that the exact actuarial requirements of the law will be met. The requirements furnish the basis of annual appropriations to the special fund and the more they are kept key to all operations in connection with the bonus payments and its financing.

The bonus act authorized the treasury to invest soldier bonus funds in interest bearing government obligations, and to sell the obligations for the purpose of the fund.

The secretary in a statement said that in order to make the funds sufficient to meet bonus payments, it is necessary to keep the moneys invested at 4 per cent from the time of their receipt until payments are required.

Since there are no government securities with interest payable annually, or yielding the exact 4 per cent interest, the statement said, it is apparent that purchase of any of the outstanding obligations will not meet the fund's exact requirements and will probably be unsatisfactory for sale when their sale becomes necessary.

The secretary said it was expected that the special certificates of indebtedness will be redeemed from time to time to provide needed cash, and that any of them remaining at the end of the year will be refunded into other certificates or notes, and that when these mature, they will be refunded into similar securities until payments fall due in the adjusted service certificates some 20 years later. The advantages of this method were summed up by the secretary as follows:

Bond Market Not Disturbed. The securities exactly fit the needs for maintaining the fund. The bond market is not disturbed by purchase of a large block of securities in early January and subsequent pressure for their sale to provide needed cash throughout the year, the effect of which would be buying on a high and selling on a low market. It is not necessary to borrow additional cash on December 15 and to carry it until January 1 at less interest until it can be invested.

Cash demands of the fund can be well satisfied and the whole plan has great flexibility.

The treasury can meet conditions existing in 1924, when the adjusted service certificates mature, without selling a lot of government securities unsuited to the market, and to the treasury's program.

TREASURY MAPS OUT PLAN TO PAY SOLDIERS' BONUS

One Hundred Million Dollars Deposited Friday; Similar Amounts to Be Added Annually

Washington, Jan. 2.—The treasury has mapped out its financial program for meeting the requirements of the soldiers' bonus and today made its first deposit—$100,000,000—in a special account from which the adjusted service certificates will be paid.

It is the plan to add each year a similar amount under the law to this special account and this sum, with its interest compounded annually at 4 per cent is calculated to be sufficient to meet all payments on the service certificates when they mature some 20 years hence. Provision is made whereby the fund is equipped from this date to meet such maturing certificates as may be due as a result of deaths of the beneficiaries and the additions to the fund are expected to be able to care for the gradual increasing maturities of the future years.

The first step taken by the treasury was the issue and sale to itself of $50,000,000 in five year, 4 per cent treasury notes and a like amount of special certificates of indebtedness, the latter being redeemable at the option of the treasury, so that funds instantly will be available when required. By issuing the special securities for the bonus fund and selling them back to the treasury, all disturbing influences of open market operations are eliminated. The securities are handled always at par value of 100 cents on the dollar and the amount of income therefore never will fluctuate.

The Treasury Secretary also stated that he believed the plan evolved has the advantages over the suggested practice of dealing in government securities in the open market in that the exact actuarial requirements of the law will be met.

The requirements furnish the basis of annual appropriations to the special fund and the more they are kept key to all operations in connection with the bonus payments and its financing.

Since there are no government securities with interest payable annually, or yielding the exact 4 per cent interest, the statement said, it is apparent that purchase of any of the outstanding obligations will not meet the fund's exact requirements and will probably be unsatisfactory for sale when their sale becomes necessary.

The secretary said it was expected that the special certificates of indebtedness will be redeemed from time to time to provide needed cash, and that any of them remaining at the end of the year will be refunded into other certificates or notes, and that when these mature, they will be refunded into similar securities until payments fall due in the adjusted service certificates some 20 years later. HOWELL ALTERS SHOALS BILL Washington, Jan. 2.—Discussion of the so-called power trust, which Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, would have the federal trade commission investigate, again occupied much of the time today that the Underwood bill for the leasing of Muscle Shoals was before the senate.

One change in the bill was approved by the senate after it had been accepted by Senator Underwood, was proposed by Senator Howell, republican, Nebraska, and would limit to 8 per cent profits that might accrue from the sale of power or fertilizer. Its author explained that it was intended to "combine the various profits and make the production of fertilizer more attractive."

The Norris resolution was brought to the front again by its author, but Senator Erge, republican, New Jersey, again blocked its consideration. Senator Norris then gave notice that eventually the senate would be required to go on record on the proposed inquiry.

VANGUARD OF SO-LONS IS OPPOSED TO LABOR LAW

Byrum Says Has Drastic Amendment to Intangible Tax Law—Rodman Leads for Speaker.

Lincoln, Jan. 2.—A substantial vanguard of the legislature arrived in Lincoln today and brought with it the first definite indication of what is going to be the color of the 1925 session. The arrivals today were almost entirely the seasoned members who have withstood the baptism of fire of one or two sessions, and naturally those who will take the lead in the organization of the session which will begin on next Tuesday.

Several definite prophecies might be made from conversations with the members who are here tonight. Perhaps the most pronounced impression to be had is that the federal child labor amendment which will be before the session for ratification is likely to be turned down. The farmers are against the amendment. Everybody else also seems to be. The only protagonist of the amendment who has yet shown up in the Lincoln hotel lobbies is Senator J. C. McGowan, of Norfolk, who represents the labor union thought in each session.

Gilmore Against It J. C. Gilmore of Prosser, a farmer, and one of the two or three ranking members of the house at this session in point of length of service, told the World-Herald today that he was against the amendment, not because he believed in child labor, and not because he did not believe that a real menace existed in some states in this respect, but because he believed that it concerned a matter which could be best regulated by the separate states, and should not be made a part of the constitution of the United States.

A. H. Byrum, veteran legislator and probably the outstanding liberal leader on the republican side of the house, said that he was opposed to the amendment. "I think the tendency to tack amendments on the constitution of the United States is wrong," Byrum said, "I think that we here in Nebraska will have no trouble over child labor and that we can take care of it ourselves."

Byrum insisted that his mind was open, however, but indicated that his openness on the subject of child labor was rather formal and just part of a general liberal policy of not crossing bridges irrevocably until they are reached.

Every other member of the legislature interviewed this afternoon expressed himself as against the amendment.

Want Short Session Byrum confessed that he had some drastic amendments to the intangible tax law up his sleeve, and that he was willing to fight for them. Byrum was the leader of the opposition to that measure when it was passing through the 1921 session.

"I'm not going to propose to repeal the law," Byrum said, "But I'm going to introduce a bill, if necessary, to make the rate of assessment of intangible property at 75 per cent instead of 25, as the law provides."

James Rodman of Omaha and A. G. Burke of Bancroft were leading the field in the contest for the speakership of the house among the members who had reached here tonight. Rodman had a perceptible lead on Burke.

As usual, members here this early were solemnly declaring that they had no bills up their sleeves, generally speaking, and that their one desire was to see the list of bills introduced small, and the session soon adjourned.

LIVING COSTS ARE STILL PLENTY HIGH Survey Shows Now About 65 Per Cent Above 1914, but 9 Per Cent Below Peak.

According to a comprehensive survey of the cost of living in the United States for November, 1924, just completed by the national industrial conference board, the weighted increase of all items combined was only one-tenth of 1 per cent between October 15, and November 15, 1924. All of the separate items included in the cost of living showed variations in this period.

Between July 15, and November 15, 1924, there was an average increase of 2.2 per cent in the cost of living. This change was occasioned by increases in the average cost of food, clothing, fuel and sundries and a decrease in the average cost of shelter. The average cost of light, which had been slightly lower during this period, had returned in November to the level of July, 1924.

Between July, 1920, when the peak of the rise in the cost of living since 1914 was reached, and November, 1924, the cost of living decreased 52.2 per cent.

The increase in the cost of living since 1914 was 65.2 per cent. The following increases over 1914 are shown in percentages: Food, 50; shelter, 84; clothing, 73; fuel and light, 68; sundries, 68.

The purchasing value of the dollar based on the cost of living in November, 1924, was 60.5 cents as contrasted with one dollar in July, 1914.

COOLIDGE OPPOSES BORAH ARMS PARLEY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 2.—An international economic and armament conference with Germany and Russia included, such as has been proposed by Senator Borah, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, is not favored by President Coolidge, who feels that such a meeting would be too broad in scope to obtain practical results.

Mr. Coolidge has not studied any draft of Senator Borah's proposed resolution directing the president to call an economic and armament conference, but on the basis of preliminary descriptions of the resolution is inclined to regard it as too broad in scope to be practical.

SENATE GETS BILL REDUCING SECOND CLASS MAIL RATES

Proposal of Administration Sharply Revised by Postoffice Committee. Washington, D. C., Jan. 2.—Sharp revision of the administration bill providing increases in postal rates to meet the cost of the proposed advances in salaries of postal employees was made today by the senate postoffice committee. At the instance of the committee, Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, formally reported the amended bill to the senate.

The new measure provides for greatly modified temporary rate increases in second class mail as compared with recommendations of the postoffice department. Minor charges in first and fourth class matter also were made. Senator Moses estimated the bill would raise about 60 million dollars additional revenue compared with 68 million dollars proposed to be raised under the postoffice schedules.

Cut Number of Zones. All reducing portions of publications now subject to second class rates would be charged 1 1/2 cents a pound, a reduction of one-fourth of a cent from the present law and three-fourths of a cent from that recommended by the postoffice.

Rates on advertising portions of publication subject to zone rates are revised with the eight zones reduced to three. A charge of one cent a pound will bring in 20 million dollars, provided, 6 cents a pound on the fourth, fifth and sixth zones, and 8 cents a pound on the seventh and eighth zones.

This is an increase over the present law of 1 cent on first class mail and rates, except an increase from 1 to 2 cents on private mailing cards and souvenir post cards.

Special Parcel Delivery. A new provision creates an expedition service for the parcel post at a cost of 25 cents per package. Under this service, packages would receive special routing, dispatching and handling from the point of origin to delivery.

While reduced rates are asked for second class mail as compared with those proposed by the postoffice department, Senator Moses estimated the 2-cent service charge on parcel post will bring in 20 million dollars additional and the new expedition service at least 3 million dollars annually.

Likewise, the reduction on advertising matter in the upper zones is expected by Mr. Moses to bring a considerable increase in volume of second class mail by eliminating the use of express and freight by way of the larger publishers. The reduction in weight of packages acceptable as third class, he believes, also will drive business into other classes requiring higher rates.

Acting in almost record time after the conclusion of hearings on the bill, the committee was able to get the measure before the senate before it votes Tuesday on President Coolidge's veto of the salary increase bill.

BANK RUN RESULTS WHEN THE CASHIER IS DISMISSED Decatur, Iowa, Jan. 2.—A run on the Decatur State bank was terminated today after the retirement of R. A. Engbertson, as president, and the reported absorption of 71 of his 251 shares of stock by the other stockholders.

Two days ago it became known that Engbertson, who controlled the bank, had dismissed E. R. Haines, the cashier, without consulting other directors. Depositors, angered over the dismissal, began a run on the bank last Tuesday which continued throughout Wednesday and was resumed this morning after the New Year holiday.

PIKE'S PEAK FIREWORKS AFTER TOUGH CLIMB Colorado Springs, Colo., Jan. 1.—Fighting their way through a snow storm borne on the wings of a mountain gale, five intrepid climbers scaled the treacherous heights of Pike's Peak yesterday to uphold the tradition of the Adamant club, an organization which for years has celebrated the coming of each new year by staging a display of fireworks from the peak.

Early in the morning the quintet of climbers began the ascent in one of the worst blizzards of the winter. Thousands of residents watched through the early hours after dusk for the sky rockets which would announce the safe arrival of the party at the summit. At 9 o'clock the flares shot skyward lighting for miles around the frozen ranges of the Rocky mountains.

At midnight another burst of fireworks turned the gray mountain sky into a kaleidoscope of color as the advent of a new year was heralded. Shortly after midnight the one new member which the Adamant club accepts each year was initiated.
