Rough and wife were visiting in Omaha last Friday where they went to see their daughter, Mrs. Louis Ross, who is in a hospital there and where she underwent an operation on her throat, which was affected as were her tonsils which she had removed. She was resting and showing some improvement, it is hoped she will be able to return home some time this week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. St. John were enjoying a visit of their daughter, Miss Esther St. John, last Sunday, she being a student in a business college in Lincoln, and was also accompanied by Miss Mary Ketch, who is also attending school there. Meets With Severe Accident.

Uncle George McFadden, Sr., who lives east of town, while blasting some stumps from the ground which he was clearing, had the misfortune to try to investigate why a charge had not fired. As he was just going to see the blast did go off with the effects that Mr. McFadden was quite seriously injured, and it is feared that he will not survive the loss of an eye. He was severely injured otherwise than his eye and was taken to the hospital in Nebraska City immediately.

FARM BUREAU NOTES

"Bull Nose" Pigs Devoured His Profit

One hog raiser in Northern Nebraska realizes the fullest extent of the truth of the above statement. It was only after he had raised a healthy crop of pigs that he realized the great amount of money he has been losing each year. One evening about a year ago, he was reading about "ton litters" in his breech paper and got to comparing his own litters with them. He figured up his 1922 pig crop and found that from ten sows he raised fifty-five pigs averaging about one hundred sixty pounds at six months of age. That meant he was only raising eight hundred pound litters. He knew he was feeding them properly as they were receiving corn, buttermilk, oats and sweet clover pasture. He finally resolved it was a question of disease. In fact, he even remembered a statement his veterinarian had made in reference to his pigs being wormy and having some intestinal trouble. He concluded to call the county agent and talk it over with him. He did so a few days later. The county agent after being told what the veterinarian had said, advised him to raise the next crop of pigs under more clean conditions and prevent them from picking up round worms eggs and disease germs. After thinking over this suggestion and reading over bulletin 222, which the county agent secured for him, he put a tile floor in his hog house at the cost of forty dollars. He brushed his sows and washed the hog house with kerosene lye water. When the pigs were two weeks old, they were moved to small hog houses in a clean pasture, where they were kept until they weighed an average of one hundred pounds. He fed them exactly the same as on previous years. Did it pay him to go to all the trouble? Figure it out yourself. He raised sixty pigs from ten sows. They weighed two hundred pounds average at six months of age. Each sow raised him four hundred forty pounds more pork in six months than she did last year. At $7.00 a hundred this tells its own story.

Plowing Under Sweet Clover for Corn Sweet clover seeded in small grain in April of one year is at its best to plow under in the April or May following year. Analysis of the sweet clover at various times of the year by the Ohio station indicate that a very little nitrogen is accumulated by the sweet clover plant after May 1st.

its second year of growth. Sweet Clover plowed under in late April, therefore, will furnish the maximum of benefit to the corn crop which is to be planted in May. The Ohio figures also indicate that an acre of good sweet clover will add fully 135 pounds of nitrogen to the soil, or more than enough to produce 100 bushels of corn. In all sections of the corn belt where the soil is rich enough in lime so that the sweet clover makes a vigorous growth, the seeding of sweet clover with small grain to be plowed in April of the year following is probably the most practical way of building up soil fertility. An acre seeding of scarified white sweet clover this year costs about $2.00. The fertility added by a good growth of sweet clover is worth at least ten times this much. ENCROACHING ON RIGHTS

Wichita, Kas., March 9.—United States District Judge John R. Pollock, in a lecture to the federal grand jury here today, declared that it would be better if, after the first fifteen, no other amendments had been added to the federal constitution. The sixteenth provided for the income tax, the seventeenth for the direct election of United States senators, and the eighteenth for prohibition and the nineteenth for woman suffrage.

NOMINATION OF CHARLES WARREN KILLED BY SENATE

Administration Forces Receive Shock In Rejection of Appointee For Attorney General.

Washington, March 10.—In a dramatic session, the senate today rejected President Coolidge's nomination of Charles Becher Warren of Michigan to be attorney general in his cabinet, the vote being 41 to 39. The vote was a shock to the White House as well as to the republican leaders, all of whom had counted upon a confirmation of the appointment by a safe margin.

Vice President Dawes was blamed for Warren's defeat, for on this crucial occasion, when the vice president might have cast the vote which would have saved the day for the administration and put Warren into the cabinet, Dawes was missing from the senate.

Dawes Not Located

Despite frantic efforts by administration senators to find Dawes and drag him to the senate in time to cast the deciding vote in favor of Warren, he could not be found and Warren's defeat was made final, when, after failing to muster a majority on the motion to confirm the nomination, the senate by a majority vote laid on the table a motion made by one of Warren's supporters to "reconsider" the vote by which confirmation was denied.

After his sensational scolding of the senate for its "archaic" rules in his inaugural address, senate leaders were bitterly amazed by Dawes' absence at a time when his vote was so greatly needed.

"Announce the Vote"

When the roll on the question of confirmation was first called hasty checks made by Warren's supporters revealed that the vote was a tie, 40 being cast for Warren and 40 against him. Dawes could have made it 41 to 40 for confirmation had he been present.

Warren's opponents, realizing the vote was not sufficient to confirm Warren, made insistent demands to have the vote announced, and Senator Moses, presiding purposely held back the announcement while pages scurried about the capitol looking for Dawes.

"Announce the vote," shouted Arthur of Arizona, in his loudest voice.

Overman Switches

"It will be announced in due time," Moses calmly replied. When it was found that Dawes was not in the building, Reed of Pennsylvania changed his vote from "aye" to "nay" for the purpose of making a motion to reconsider the previous vote, and thereby gain time for Dawes to reach the chamber.

Then the vote was announced, 39 to 41. Reed made his motion, which was immediately followed by a motion by Walsh of Montana to lay Reed's motion on the table. On the roll call on Walsh's motion the vote was 41 to 39. Overman of North Carolina, who had supported Warren, changing to the opposition and voting for Walsh's motion. This ended Warren's chance for confirmation.
