LET THE FARMERS ALONE

Roundly scoring the "legislative mania which has turned our heads and depleted our pocketboks," in a message to visitors to the grange community exhibit recently held at Cnohomish, Wash., Governor Roland H. Hartley declared that the greatest favor the state can bestow upon the farmer is to "get off of his back and leave him free to go about his business unhampered by an army of regulators, investigators, inspectors, ad visors and dictators." The farmer, Governor Hartley de clared, is no different in his relation to the state than any other citizen. since the state is the product of the cooperative effort of all citizens, regardless of vocation or profession. He deplored any tendency toward "group government." Participation in governmental affairs is as much the business of the farmer as his purely agricultural pursuits, Governor Hartley pointed out, as all government ac tivity vitally affects the farmer.
