Last week, Dr. J. P. Ross of Colorado Springs, Colo., spent the week with us and preached very acceptably each night. There was no meeting on Saturday night. On Sabbath morning we observed the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. Our hearts were gladdened by an accession to our membership of ten new members.

Two of these were received by letter from other churches; three were received on profession of their faith, and five were received on profession of their faith and baptism. Our membership now is exactly one hundred. We hope to have more accessions in the near future.

Our young peoples' choir rendered very efficient service during our meetings last week. If we who are older could put as much enthusiasm in all our church work as the children have put into the song service, we could accomplish great things for our Master, Jesus Christ.

Services every Sabbath at the church. All are cordially invited to attend.

Communists' Schools Organized in U. S.

"Young Workers' Are Used in Fight Against National Education Week.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 17.—Communists' schools, teaching the theory of communism Leninism, are being organized in a number of cities in the United States, communist leaders here declared tonight.

A. Hathaway, national organizer of the worker's party, established the school here under direction of the central executive committee in Chicago. The school opens tomorrow to run for 20 weeks.

"Young workers, the junior communists, are being supplied with literature for distribution in the city's schools, aimed to offset American education week in the public schools," said Hathaway.

"We want education for action, not abstract education. We are teaching our young people that the constitution of the United States is the bulwark of class rule and that workers must promote the need change."

In New York and Chicago, he said, schools are in operation to teach the instructors for the communist schools in various parts of the country. The literature for distribution in the third international of Moscow, he said.

Courses consist of English to aid foreign workers especially; the communist theory, public speaking, trade unionism, advancement economics and Leninism.

Mr. Hathaway said he does not expect any interference with their plans to distribute communist literature to the public school students as this has been done before without trouble.

The central executive committee, he said, considers national education week, when the schools and churches are emphasizing the need for capitalistic education, as a good time to show our young people that this education is not for the workers.

A special publication, "The Young Worker" is being issued from Chicago headquarters in connection with the anti-education week movement, Hathaway said.

While Hathaway did not have specific information as to just what cities schools are being or have been established in, he said classes will be organized in Milwaukee Thursday, and other schools will be started "in every leading American city."

BIBLE SCHOOL LESSON

By M. S. Briggs

Golden Text: "Herein I also exercise myself to have a conscience void of offense toward God and man always."—Paul. (Acts 24:16.)

Preaching to the World

One week ago we left Paul, where the authorities at Jerusalem had discovered his Roman citizenship. He however, was brought before the council for further examination and after a tumult had arisen, he declared, "I am a Pharisee, the son of a Pharisee, and for the hope of a resurrection of the dead am I called in question."

As there were both Pharisees who believe in the resurrection of the just and the unjust and the Sadducees denying both, a tumult arose and Claudius Lysceas, the captain of the soldiers, sent down and had him brought to the castle. This was the day following his arrest. The Jews banded together over forty and swore by an oath that they would neither eat nor drink until they had slain Paul.

During the American war of the rebellion, better known as the "Civil war," but far from civil, Gen. Zachary Taylor, a commander of the Confederates, while fighting in Kentucky, swore with an oath, that he would water the horses of the cavalry of his division in the Ohio river the following morning or water them in hell. This was just before a battle. However, he was not able to water the horses in the Ohio river.

Paul was taken that night to Caesarea and stayed there for two years, after which he was sent to Rome. Those forty Jews must have gotten pretty hungry and as thirsty as some since this country went dry.

A nephew of Paul's, a mere lad, had heard this pact of the Jews and told Paul who sent him to Claudius Lysceas, who when informed of the pact, sent Paul to Caesarea under a guard of 200 men. He also sent a letter to Felix, the governor, in substance as follows: "This man was taken by the Jews and would have been killed by them, but for being rescued by the soldiers. He is a Roman. Their accusation is a matter of the Jewish church law. I am sending him to you. His accusers will come to accuse him."

Then the Jews, with Ananias, the high priest, and one of the most noted attorneys of that day, Tertullus, after they had studied the matter for five days, went down to Caesarea where the case was heard, accusing him in a round-about way. The attorney first threw a bouquet at Governor Felix, saying, "Seeing that by thee we enjoy great equalities and that very worthy deeds are done unto this nation by thy providence, we accept thee with all thankfulness."

Then he turned upon Paul, with all thankfulness. "Then he prefers these charges against Paul: 'We have found this man a pestilent fellow and a mover of sedition among all the Jews throughout the world and a ring-leader of the sect of the Nazarenes who hath profaned the temple and who is now endeavoring to profane the temple whom we took and would have adjudged according to our law, but the chief Captain Lysias came upon us, and with great violence took him away out of our hands, commanding his accusers to come unto thee. By examining him thyself, thou mayest take knowledge of all these things whereof we accuse him.'

When Tertullus, the learned attorney had concluded his arraignment of Paul and numerous of the Jews has substantiated his statements with similar ones of their own, Governor Felix nodded to Paul that he might answer for himself as to the things of which he had been accused.

Paul was quick to answer him, saying, "For as much as I know that thou hast been of many years a judge unto this nation, I do most cheerfully answer for myself. Because that thou mayest understand, there are yet but twelve days elapsed since I came up to Jerusalem to worship. They neither found me in the temple disputing with any man, neither stirring up the people in the synagogues nor in the city. Neither can they prove anything whereof they now accuse me."

Then Paul having thus afforded him a great opportunity, said, "But this I confess unto thee; that after the way they call heresy, so worship I the God of my fathers, believing all things which are written in the law and in the prophets; and have hope towards God, which they themselves also allow, that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both the just and the unjust. And herein do I exercise myself to have always a conscience void of offense toward God and toward man. Now after many years, I came to bring alms to my nation and offerings, whereupon certain Jews from Asia found me purified in the temple, neither with multitude or with tumult, who ought to have been here before thee and objected if they had ought against me, or else let these same here say if they have found any evil doing in me, while I stood before the council. Except it be for this one voice I cried standing among them, touching the resurrection of the dead, and I called in question by you this day."

Felix, who was well acquainted with the coming of the Christ, the details of his crucifixion and his being raised from the dead and ascending into heaven, as well as the founding of the Christian church, had watched the accusations and considered them as nothing. So to the Jews eagerly bent on Paul's imprisonment or death, he said, "When Lysias shall come down I will know the utmost of your accusations;" and dismissed the case, but kept Paul in prison, thinking he might receive some money for setting him at liberty. He commanded a centurion to keep Paul, but to allow him the lib-

Rev. Elliott Writes Friends From Florida

Former Methodist Pastor at Union and Louisville Writes to Friends From Home in Florida.

The following letter from Rev. C. L. Elliott, formerly pastor of the Methodist churches of Louisville and Union, to his friends in Cass county has been received. Rev. Elliott has been granted a year's leave of absence from his pastorate in Union, an account of his wife's ill health, and he decided to take his family to Florida, where he expects to work at the carpenter trade for a few months. His many friends will enjoy reading his letter which is as follows:

Sebring Fla., Nov. 8.

To our many friends in Cass county, greetings.

True to our promise we are going to tell you something about our trip to Florida.

We left Union September 29th, in the two vehicles, the Dodge and a Ford, traveling through the southern part of Nebraska, through Kansas, Oklahoma and entering Texas through Hugo, Oklahoma and Paris, Texas. We arrived at our first stopping place at Marshall, Texas, on October 7, where we spent 3 days. We left there for Kinder, Louisiana, on a Monday and arrived there that evening at 8. We made the 240 miles in a day.

We traveled from there towards our destination via Baton Rouge, where we crossed the Father of Waters, the Mighty Mississippi, taking a steam ferry. We then drove on to Mobile, Alabama where we again ferried the Ford. It took two hours and there were more than 50 autos on board, all bound for Florida.

We then crossed the line of Florida and again ferried a river near Pensacola. We arrived at Sebring, Florida, on October 25th, having of course, traveled with the Ford. It took two hours and there were more than 50 autos on board, all bound for Florida.

We turned over in Oklahoma and winding up at $1.53 3-4. The upturn in wheat had little effect on corn and oats.

WHEAT PRICES UP AS EXPORTS BOOM

Chicago, Nov. 18.—A big export business along with a radical advance in Liverpool brought a sharp rise in wheat prices in Chicago Tuesday.

Extremely bullish Argentine news added to the radical upturn. After the market closed the Argentine Chamber of Commerce said a cablegram announced this year's wheat crop should reach a total of 6,400,000 tons, materially exceeding last year's.

All deliveries sold at a new high on the present upturn and heavy profit taking was readily absorbed while the foreign demand was active. Wheat closed at 2 3-4 to 4 3-4c higher with May leading the trade and winding up at $1.53 3-4. The upturn in wheat had little effect on corn and oats.

MEXICAN SEARCH FAILS TO REVEAL SUPPOSED QUAKE

Los Angeles, Nov. 17.—A general check of all available sources of information in northwestern Mexico failed to reveal any earthquake in that territory, the estimated seismic of the shock registered on the seismograph at Berkeley, Cal., Monday morning.

Representatives of the Southern Pacific company in Mexico checked carefully but failed to locate any tremor reports, neither could the Mexican government wireless station at Mexicali, Lower California.
