Volstead Act is Assailed and Praised as Well

Senator Edge Starts Row in Attack of 18th Amendment; Bruce Calls It Insane Experiment.

Washington, Dec. 16.—Prohibition furnished the vehicle Tuesday for the first extended debate in the senate at this session.

For more than three hours the Volstead act was assailed and defended in the raging fire of discussion.

A rather large number of seats and half-filled galleries followed the debate, precipitated by Senator Edge, republican, New Jersey, who delivered a prepared address urging his bill to legalize 2.75 per cent beer and revise the restriction on prescription whiskey.

Before the senate turned to other subjects Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, had joined forces with the New Jersey senator and Senators Willis, republican, Ohio; and Shepherd, democrat, Texas, had vigorous attacks that forces which they contended were trying to break down constitutional law in this country.

Insane Experiment. Both Senators Edge and Bruce declared the Volstead act was a failure and that its operation had been attended by general disrespect for law, at one point the Maryland senator asserted, "prohibition is an insane experiment."

Senator Willis and Shepherd disputed these contentions, the former contending that Senator Edge's speech was only a group of views of those opposing the prohibition act. The Texas senator served notice that the prohibitionists of the country will not permit any modification of the Volstead act, but would demand it be strengthened. The Ohio senator who was first to reply to Senator Edge, declared there was a universal demand for modification of the Volstead act. He declared that the plain fact was that "the underworld is boldly challenging the forces of law and order in this country."

Drunkness Increase Denied. A declaration by Senator Willis that prohibition had resulted in a decrease of drunkness, brought Senator Bruce to his feet with statistics from police chiefs in all important cities showing that the arrests for drunkenness had been increasing steadily since 1920, the first year after ratification of the 18th amendment.

Senator Willis and Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, disputed that these figures indicated an increase in drunkness. The Tennessee senator said that in preprohibition days many drunken men could be seen on the streets of Washington but that since prohibition, the sight of a drunken man was rare.

BIBLE SCHOOL LESSON

Sunday, December 20th By M. S. Briggs

Golden Text: "Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, Good will towards men."—Luke 2:14.

The Savior of the World We are leaving Paul at Rome for a week before we bid him good bye for a while. We will try and see him again next week. Today as Christmas comes next week we will try and make this a Christmas lesson.

Away back when the morning stars sang together at the dawn of creation, God said "Let there be light, and there was light." And the evening and morning were the first day.

He prepared the earth for the growth of grasses and trees and all things that have seed produced after their kind and the evening and morning were the third day. So with each succeeding day the earth was prepared until the sixth day when God said, "Let us make man in our own image and give him dominion over the earth, the sea and all therein."

So man was created and on the seventh day God rested for he saw the creation that it was very good.

Then he created a garden eastward in Eden, making it a home for man, a veritable paradise. He placed man, Adam, and his helpmate, Eve, there in to keep the garden, requiring only one thing, namely that they should not eat of the fruit from the tree in the midst of the garden, warning them that the day they did they should surely die.

Then came the serpent (Devil) and said to Eve, "Take the fruit of this tree; eat, it is good and will make you wise, knowing good from evil; and you shall not surely die." Then Eve took of the fruit, ate of it herself and gave to Adam and he did eat.

For this God cast them out of the garden. They had sinned and forfeited life in its fullness. The world became a dying people ever since. Their own eldest son murdered his brother. Sin became rampant. After 2300 years the people had become so wicked that a flood came, drowning all but eight people, Noah, his wife, and three sons and their wives. When the waters had subsided God spanned the earth with a rainbow as a token that he would not again destroy the earth with a flood. From this small group the world was repopulated again.

But the people again became wicked and when the earth was 4004 years old wickedness was again rampant in the land.

Now, many prophets had written that God would send a redeemer for the world who would be both Son of Man and Son of God, as in Micah 5:2, where it stated there should be born a governor who shall rule my people, Israel.

Under command of Herod, all the Jews were required to go to their own tribe to be numbered and taxed.

So went Joseph with his espoused wife, Mary, to Bethlehem, their old home, though they had lived in Galilee. Of this selfsame Mary of the lineage of David, prophets had foretold that unto her would be born the Savior and redeemer of mankind.

It so happened that when this couple had gotten to Bethlehem they found all the hotel space had been taken, the only shelter they were able to find being in a livery stable, with the opportunity of being able to sleep on some straw. There in humble surroundings the Savior of the world was born with no veritable "spoon" as the expression goes, in his mouth. He was born as the most lowly on earth are born today, he suffered in his life as we suffer, being human in all respects as we are, yet without sin, that he might give his life, which was spotless, to buy our way back into immortality.

The night that the Son of God was born there were a number of shepherds who were camping out in the evening looking after their flocks much as the sheep herders do on the western ranges at this time. They had their work done and as they sat or lay on the ground looking up into the heavens, seeing the many bright stars, they no doubt wondered at the vastness of creation and the infiniteness of the creator of it all, when there came a band of Angels, singing "Glory to God in the Highest, and on Earth Peace; Good Will Towards Men." Telling them of the birth of the Savior of the world, who is Christ the Lord, the Angels directed the shepherds to go to Bethlehem, where they would find him with the mother lying in a manger. So the shepherds worshipped him and went on their way.

In Persia the people were worshippers of Zoroaster and believed in one God, but worshipped the sun and the stars as his emblems, they being in a manner star worshippers. The priests were called Magi. Three of them, Casper, Melchior and Balthazar perceived a certain star in the east, which they associated with the coming of a king whom they had heard the Jews who had come into Persia at the time of the exile, talk about, and they set out on a journey to Judea to find this king and do him homage.

Following the star they came to Jerusalem, where they inquired of Herod, who called the well versed Jews asking where this child should be born. They, referring to the Scriptures, found, Micah 5:2, as again in Luke 2:11, "For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord."

Herod charged the "wise men" that when they had found the abode of the babe they were to come and tell him, so he could worship him, for he wanted to kill him.

It was of no use for Herod to design to kill the Christ child, for that could not be done until his mission had been fulfilled. In like manner we are protected by God's elements while we are fulfilling the mission for which we were born. Well, does the singer sing, "No water can swallow the ship where lies the Master of ocean and earth and the skies." The wise men went to Bethlehem, where they found and worshipped him. As was the custom, they brot into the presence of this new born babe of Bethlehem gold, frankincense and myrrh, each significant, the gold signifying that he was a king, myrrh as a symbol of mortality and designating him as the Son of Man, frankincense a symbol of prayer and that he was the Son of God. Being warned by God in a dream, they did not return into Jerusalem, but went direct to their homes another way.

Herod, when he knew that the Magi did not come again to Jerusalem, resolved he would kill all the male children of Judea that he might get the Christ, Joseph and Mary, still at Bethlehem, were warned in a dream to go to Egypt, there to abide until they should be informed by God.

We celebrate Christmas by giving gifts and sending felicitations, by visiting each other and expressing joyous thoughts. A happy season indeed is this time of commemoration of the birth of the Savior of the world. This happy season should contain more than it does to many of us, for it is the celebration of that event which brought into the world the greatest life ever born before or since.—He who took upon himself the sins of the world and gave us an inheritance of eternal life. No wonder the Angels sang, "Glory to God in the Highest, and on Earth, Peace; Good Will Towards Men."

The Young-Old Folks at State Masonic Home

Now is the winter of our discontent. Made glorious summer by this son of York.—Shakespeare.

I doubt if the kiddies in the Home in Fremont, are looking forward to Santa Claus' visit with fonder anticipations than are the young old folks at the Masonic Home here. And why shouldn't they? For the young old folks have the added pleasure of childish memories of the time when they were kiddies and impatiently waited the coming of Saint Nick. Santa Claus was a real-fur personage in those days. How we forced away sleep from our eyes that we might hear the tinkle of his bells and the pitter patter of the reindeers on the shingles over our heads.

Some lean years there was no money to buy barber pole sticks of candy and nuts from the foreign chimes. Then we had to be content with little cookies our mothers made, cutting them to represent every animal in Noah's ark; native nuts, gathered in October, in the adjacent woods, perhaps a rosey cheeked apple and maybe a cake of maple sugar.

How we bounced from our bed at break of day on Christmas morning and rushed to the row of stockings hanging from the mantle. Our gifts were not many and the cost was little, but oh what joy they brought to our young hearts. It was the fashion then to have large families and I am sure that the number added to the charm (and noise) of those occasions. Bro. Taylor, the latest arrival at the Home tells me his father's family consisted of one wife and twenty three children including two pairs of twins and one set of triplets. My! what an array of stockings would have hung from that mantle if all could have met there on Christmas eve. It would have resembled a clothes line on wash day. My friend Mr. Little tells me it is not much more expensive to raise a large family than a small one, for Mr. Little explains, that they grow up every Little helps. But we cannot tarry longer amid the scenes of our childhood days, so between two bats of our eye lids we are carried in memory 3000 miles in distance and three quarters of a century in time back to the Masonic Home on the banks of the big muddy. Ah yes! There is Jerry Saunders. He is afraid Santa Claus will not remember that he is not the sockless Jerry that represented Kansas in congress some years ago. A glance in his room will disclose a clean pair hanging in a conspicuous place.

And there is Bro. Wells who wears two pairs of socks at a time for cold feet. He would like Santa Claus to know he does not expect him to fill both pairs.

Some of the ladies are very busy darning the larger holes in their stockings in order that nothing be lost. Mrs. Vanlin was heard negotiating a trade of stockings with Mrs. Goodspeed. What is the big idea sister? One of our ladies thinks she should receive special attention from Santa Claus. Why? Because she is the bell of the Home. Mrs. Robertson has gotten word to Santa Claus that she did enjoy the American magazine during the year just drawing to a close. Indeed she did not see how she had ever kept house without it. Of course she does not expect the subscription will be renewed—but—a hint to the wise ought to be sufficient. The ladies of the Home affectionately address Mrs. Alverson as "granda". This is not on account of her advanced age, for she is not so very old, but because she is the most lovely woman in the Home.

Our "Nick" is thinking of discharging his crutches before long and he would be pleased if Santa would bring him a swagger stick to taper off with.

Charley is a fine young man; our Charley is a dandy. Our Charley helps the helpless ones to turn in bed, to move from their beds to their rockers and from their rockers back to bed. In a hundred ways he gives of his strength and heart to cheer the despondent. May Santa remember Charley.

Mrs. Delpain, who has lived in Plattsmouth and vicinity for over sixty years, and who for the past 15 months has been a resident in the Masonic Home has called my attention to the fact that Miss Olive the city librarian and Miss Vera Leonard, her assistant have for a long time been rendering valuable service to the residents, and especially to the shut-in ones, who are unable to get to the library for books. Every two weeks these ladies take a large number of books to the Home, so these shut-in ones may select such books as they desire to read. These ladies aid them in making selections, inform them about new books and I understand this service has been without compensation and Mrs. Delpain does not recall that any public acknowledgement of these acts of kindness has ever been made. If that be true an expression of our appreciation and gratitude has been too long delayed. Why not scatter a few roses along their path now, while they can enjoy them? Why not divide your Christmas cheer with these ladies who have done so much to cheer others. "DOC."

SALM KIDNAPPING RUMORS REVIVED West Palm Beach, Fla., Dec. 15.—Persistent rumors that attempts have been made to kidnap the infant son of Countess Ludwig Salm von Hoogstraeten, the former Millicent Rogers, were given renewed currency Monday night, when it became known that private detectives guarding Waikiki, the countess' Palm Beach home, at an early hour Monday had fired six shots at two men.

The guard at the countess' home was increased Monday night, two members of the Palm Beach police department being detailed to work with the private detectives.

Despite the shooting episode and the report that the count had filed suit for separation, the countess maintained the silence that has characterized her stay in Palm Beach.

COUNTESS CANNOT ENTER New York, Dec. 14.—Countess Catherine Karolyi's latest effort to enter the United States has been rebuffed again by the state department with word that the attitude of the department remains unchanged. Yesterday an appeal sent to President Coolidge on December 5 asking for the specific charges against the countess which have caused her to be denied admittance. In reply they received a letter from W. R. Castle, Jr., of the state department announcing the unchanged attitude of his office toward granting her a passport.

UNDEMOCRATIC, UNREPUBLICAN, UNAMERICAN The efforts of Princess Nina Kizloff, French widow of a Russian general to enter this country also are engaging the attention of the state department. Dispatches from Paris said that she has been refused a passport visa. The Libertes union plans to protest against her exclusion.

Congressman Lozier, Democratic member from Missouri, in a recent statement on tax exemption, said: "The policy of exempting any securities from their proportion of the tax burden is undemocratic, un-republican, and un-American, and a vicious form of government favoritism. It tends to create a privileged class, which is antagonistic to the basic principles on which our government is founded. It strikes viciously at our progressive income tax system, in that it permits a comparatively few individuals with large incomes to escape their quota of taxes, and correspondingly increases the burdens of those who have only moderate incomes."
