FRENCH GENIUS IS SUPREME IN FILMY EVENING MODES

THE genius of the French for beauty reaches its climax in romantic clothes for evening—whether they undertake to make them gorgeous or only gay and dainty...

In the two evening dresses from Paris, shown in the sketch, the outstanding style points of the season are most successfully embodied...

The dress at the left is very simple by comparison with more gorgeous affairs, but just as effective as any of them. It consists of a straightline underdress of rose satin partly covered with tracery in gold and black thread...

Pearl-white satin and white georgette give a good account of themselves in the clever dress at the right. The straight underdress is of satin embroidered in pale gold and the overdress is plain except for a little tracery along the hemline, also in gold...

Farm Bloc Asks for More Extended Relief Law

Prepared to Wage a Fight for Direct Means of Handling Surpluses—Oppose Jardine Plan.

Washington, Dec. 23.—The congressional farm bloc will not be content if the administration confines its program for solving the farmers' difficulty to the pending co-operative marketing measure.

Leaders from the western farm belt are preparing to wage a fight for some direct means of disposing of farm surplus through an export corporation.

Their plan apparently goes much further than any either President Coolidge or Secretary Jardine has been willing to approve.

Before any move is made in congress by the farm bloc, efforts will be made to get the support of President Coolidge for their idea.

Several bills have been prepared to set up a government corporation to handle surplus crops and the McNary-Haugen bill, which failed of passage at the last session, has been reintroduced in both the senate and the house.

Senator Cummins (rep., Iowa) also has drafted a bill which virtually is a modified McNary-Haugen measure.

Senator Capper (rep., Kansas) one of the recognized leaders of the movement, declared today that they still hoped to get President Coolidge "behind legislation to create an export corporation."

Senator Cummins (rep., Iowa) also has drafted a bill which virtually is a modified McNary-Haugen measure. He has attempted to get the endorsement of President Coolidge and Secretary Jardine, but so far has been without success.

General Andrews Orders Less Extravagance, Condemns Mayflower Hotel "Rum Trap."

Washington, Dec. 24.—Warning prohibition agents against "reducing and extravagant" use of funds for the attempted conviction of minor offenders, as in the now famous Mayflower hotel case, General Lincoln C. Andrews Wednesday sent a letter to all prohibition administrators ordering them to direct their main efforts toward discovering and stopping the main source of liquor supply.

General Andrews placed a particular ban on "rum traps" as methods by which suspects are lured into open violation of the law have come to be termed.

Describing the Mayflower incident, in which $1,000 was spent in an effort to trap two hotel employes as a "telling object lesson to the whole organization," General Andrews directed immediate dismissal of any agent guilty of "reckless, unjustifiable expenditure of public funds."

Continuing, his letter said: "You know that I consider these under-cover investigations probably the surest way to break up the bootleg industry, and to bring the operators in this country to justice, I have asked congress for a considerable increase in the amount of the appropriation which may be used for the purpose, but of course I have assumed, and you must justify by assumption that this money will be used intelligently and economically and never used without complete justification."

Andrews urged the administrators to take counsel with their district attorneys to "avoid any such conduct as will make possible a successful defense of the accused on the basis of 'entrapment.'" Even lacking such a defense, he pointed out, a cluprit might avert punishment by showing expenditures of public funds so large as to impress a jury unfavorably.

GERMS LOSE POWER IF OUT OF PLACE

Russian Scientist Makes Valuable Discovery.

Washington.—Germs of diseases that are deadly to an animal or a human being if they find their way into the part of the body they usually afflict, may be entirely harmless if they are planted in another organ or tissue.

These experiments, which promise revolutionary results in the sciences of bacteriology and pathology, are being conducted at the Pasteur Institute in Paris by Dr. A. Besredka, a young Russian scientist, according to Dr. Erwin F. Smith, pathologist of the United States Department of Agriculture, who has just returned from a tour of inspection through European laboratories.

Doctor Besredka, he says, has discovered an entirely new principle in bacteriology which has been named "local immunity." According to this principle, disease-causing organisms are frequently quite impotent to do harm away from their usual habitat.

Anthrax, for example, is always an affliction of the skin and surface tissues. Doctor Besredka devised means for planting cultures of the germs deep in the muscular tissue, in the lungs and elsewhere in the bodies of guinea pigs.

Less serious skin infections, like those caused by staphylococcus, the germ of boils, were shown to act in the same way.

Doctor Besredka's discoveries have already become of practical importance in medicine. After showing that susceptibility to bacterial infection was local, the Russian scientist also showed that immunity could be conferred more effectively by serums and other preventive means if applied equally directly to the regions usually attacked by the disease.

Since typhoid fever is a disease of the digestive tract, Paris physicians are now following Doctor Besredka's principle, and administering antityphoid serum through the mouth rather than by means of injection into the arm.

Doctor Besredka claims that when administered in the ordinary way the serum gets no chance to act until the blood has carried it from the muscles of the arm into the intestinal tract.

Norris to Fight House Tax Bill

Howell Too, Declares He Will Work "To Secure for Equitable and Just Law."

Washington.—Condemning the tax bill passed by the house of representatives on December 18 as a "millionaire's bill," Senator Norris of Nebraska has announced that he will fight the measure when it comes before the senate.

Senator Howell of Nebraska declared that when the bill came into senate he would work to "secure for Nebraska and the nation a more equitable and just revenue law than has been passed by the house."

"The revenue bill as passed by the house is indefensible," Senator Norris said. "Practically all reductions made in revenue under the bill are made from taxes on incomes of those who are immensely wealthy. Reduction of surtaxes is almost entirely on incomes that are very large."

Called Backward Step. "The reductions in inheritance taxes on the big fortunes, contained in this bill, are a greater step backward than has been taken by congress since the war."

"An inheritance tax with a large exemption is no hardship to anyone. It ought to be a permanent method of dealing with large fortunes."

"The house bill also repeals publicity of income tax returns and thus invites men of great wealth to conceal their real incomes."

Senator Howell said reduction of inheritance and surtaxes is, in his opinion, a grievous mistake.

"I also regard the repeal of the publicity feature a distinct step backward," he said.

WANTS A TARIFF CUT UPON COTTON GOODS

Washington, Dec. 22.—As one of a series of bombardments of republican tariff policies, Representative Oldfield (Ark.), chairman of the democratic national congressional committee, introduced in the house today a resolution for the appointment of a special committee of five members to investigate duties on cotton goods with a view to downward revision of rates.

In a statement explaining the purpose of the resolution, Mr. Oldfield singled out four cotton mills controlled by Senator William M. Butler (rep., Mass.), chairman of the republican national committee, as an example of what he regarded as giving preferential existing duties are unnecessarily high.

The Butler companies named by Mr. Oldfield are the Butler Mill, the Hoosac Cotton mills, Ned Bedford Cotton mills corporation, and Quisset mill. The Butler mill, the New Bedford Cotton mills corporation and the Quisset mill, he said, each have reported stock dividends during recent year besides regular dividends of from 6 to 8 per cent.
