TURATI TAKES UP REINS

Rome, March 31.—Intransigence remains the watch word of the secretary of the fascist party, but whereas the slogan of Roberto Farinacci, the retiring secretary-general, "was merciless intransigence towards our enemies," August Turati, the new chief of the black shirted mass is "unflinching intransigence towards ourselves."

The new secretary appointed with four vice secretaries after a night long session of the supreme fascist organization, began his tenure of office with a practical illustration of his determination to work hard and avoid unnecessary oratory.

In one of his brief statements, Turati said that his advent to power did not indicate a change of policy. Intransigence towards the few remaining organized opposition groups, he asserted, would continue but would occupy a secondary role, "because of the enormous consensus of opinion in favor of the regime."

"A more important factor would be self criticism and self perfection of the fascists."

MRS. SHELBY LOSES SUIT

Los Angeles, April 1.—Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, mother of Mary Miles Minter, was informed Wednesday of the loss of her battle Tuesday, in the Louisiana courts to secure her mother's entire estate, said to consist of gas lands valued at $1,400,000.

The court, the report stated, awarded half of the land which Mrs. Julia B. Niles left and which lies in the Monroe (La.) oil belt, to Mrs. Hazel Jordan of Mobile, Ala., granddaughter of the deceased woman and niece of Mrs. Shelby.

Mrs. Jordan attacked the right of Mrs. Niles to leave the entire estate to Mrs. Shelby, whom she charged hypnotized and influenced the aged woman while she was visiting her in Los Angeles. Mrs. Jordan introduced a will giving her half the estate. The court held this will to be valid.

Give Impressive Musical Program for Good Friday

Methodist Church Has Very Beautiful and Impressive Service Last Evening.

From Saturday's Daily—The observance of Good Friday, a day hallowed in the christian world as an anniversary of the passion and death of the Savior, was most fittingly carried out last evening at the First Methodist church.

A musical worship in keeping with the impressiveness of the event given by the choir of the church.

The services were opened by the prayer by the pastor, Rev. Frank Emory Pfoutz, fittingly dedicating the services of the evening.

The choir selected for the impressive musical observance of the evening selections from the "Seven Last Words of Christ" by DuBois and also the "Pardon" from "Penitence, Pardon and Peace," by Mauder, each of these being very beautifully given and in the true reverence that the occasion merited.

It was one of the most inspirational Good Friday services that has been held in this city and one that worshipers of all the christian faith could join in true spirit of penitence and worship.

The solo parts of the selections were taken by Clifford Cecil, Mrs. E. H. Wescott, Mrs. Ed Roman and Leroy Fager with the wonderfully trained and beautiful voices of the choir chorists assisting in giving the numbers a real reverence and impressiveness.

Rev. Pfoutz, pastor of the church, gave a short sermon, "Christ's Last Night," giving the story of the hour in the garden when the vision of the world redeemed from sin and inspired by the Savior to lay aside the weakness of the earthly man and ascend the cross to give redemption to the world. The pastor urged his audience to heed the sacrifice on the cross by their lives leading to the realization of the vision of the Christ of the world loosened from the bonds of sin.

WHO STARTED THE FIRE?

From Saturday's Daily—The Plattsmouth golf course has boasted a very interesting hazard on the 7th fairway that has proven a stumbling block to the aspirations of many a budding golfer, but which was the pride and joy of the grounds committee as making the course much more difficult for the golfers and lessening the skill in making through this hazard.

At the place of the hazard there is a small ditch and in addition four small sized trees have grown up around an old stump and which made it necessary for the golfer to drive over both the ditch and the trees.

Now a few days ago the grounds committee was started to find that someone had burned the trees and thereby made the going on the seventh fairway much easier. Who started the fire is a deep dark mystery that would require the services of Sherlock Holmes. Dr. Watson is to unravel although it is plain to the grounds committee why the offending trees were removed.

The committee has been working on clues that have been uncovered at the scene of the fire and as the chairman of the grounds committee is also the ex-president of the fire department and an expert in handling fire causes he has been able to gather up several finger and foot prints as well as cigarette butts and other clues that have led to suspicions as to the fire's origin.

If the public attempts to use the tonic as "beer," General Andrews said it would be withdrawn instantly from the market. He explained that the manufacturers of the extract, which will contain 25 per cent solids, had accepted responsibility for legitimate distribution.

Solicitor Britt of the internal revenue department took a hand in the discussion by expressing the opinion that states could prohibit sale of the tonic if they so desired, although it was pointed out that grocery stores generally have on hand products containing more alcohol which, like the tonic, are unfit for beverage purposes.

Stressing the point that the tonic would be fit to drink, J. H. Doran, prohibition bureau chemist, said that a man by consuming one quart of it "probably will get the equivalent reaction one stiff drink of liquor gives."

All Right with Alcohol

"If a fellow gets an edge from this tonic," he predicted, "he will be so full of malt sugar he will pop. Try and trim down this syrup with water and you will dilute it to the point where it is no good."

If alcohol were mixed with it, he added it might be drinkable, pointing out that this could be done with near beer.

At the capitol there was another jull Wednesday so far as prohibition is concerned. It didn't figure in house or senate debate, although Senator Edge, republican, New Jersey, offered an amendment to his beer bill making states having enforcement laws exempt from its provisions, and slightly modified his bill removing the restriction on prescription whiskey.

The debate was judged by J. F. Showalter of the Omaha Tech high school and the decision was given to the Plattsmouth team who made an exceptionally strong showing.

The Auburn team has won five of their debates so far and the first defeat of the season was that at the hands of Plattsmouth.

The Auburn debating team was composed of John Pierson, Miles Lambert, and Cloe Lechliet, while the Plattsmouth victorious team was composed of Evelyn Robb, George Thacker and Violetta Begley.

Drys Assured Malt a Medicine, Not a Beverage

Drinker Who Gets "Edge" on 3.75 Product Will Pop with Sugar, Says Federal Chemist.

Washington, April 1.—Calm in the face of the flurry caused by the word that 3.75 per cent malt tonic would be on sale shortly, prohibition officials Wednesday assured dries, disturbed by the announcement, that they need fear no breakdown in enforcement and cautioned the drinking population not to regard the extract as a beverage.

By no stretch of the imagination can the product be regarded as "beer," said Assistant Secretary Andrews, in charge of prohibition, adding that its sale was "practicable and reasonable."

If the public attempts to use the tonic as "beer," General Andrews said it would be withdrawn instantly from the market. He explained that the manufacturers of the extract, which will contain 25 per cent solids, had accepted responsibility for legitimate distribution.

Davis Swears Knew Nothing of Cash Bribe

Former Governor of Kansas Takes Witness Stand in Own Defense in Bribery Trial.

Topeka, Kan., April 1.—Testifying in his trial on a charge of bribery, former Governor Jonathan M. Davis of Kansas Wednesday declared that his son, Russel Davis, had acted without his knowledge and consent in accepting $1,250 in delivering a pardon to Fred W. Pollman, convicted banker.

The son, who is being tried jointly, had asserted on the stand previously that his father knew nothing of the acceptance of the $1,250. Young Davis said it was a case of taking advantage of an opportunity to make "some easy money" that he learned by accident that his father was issuing a pardon to Pollman, and that he merely got his father's consent to deliver the document and on his own account took the money that Pollman had offered.

The former governor declared that he had issued the pardon in good faith and asserted that his suspicions were not aroused when Russel asked that he be allowed to take the pardon to Pollman.

He admitted that one sentence contained in a statement which he addressed to the public after the expose of his son's actions were "not exactly the truth," but explained that the statement was hastily dictated and that he was so busy at the time that he forgot.

In the statement the elder Davis had denied any knowledge of a visit by Pollman to his estate at the Davis farm a few days before the pardon was granted.

Today the former executive admitted that his son had mentioned the Pollman visit. He testified, however, that his curiosity had not been aroused and that he did not question Russel in regard to the object of the pardon applicant's call.

FUTURES TRADE CONTROL

Washington, March 31.—The senate agriculture committee which has been endeavoring to work out legislation of benefit to the farmer, today reported a bill to prohibit transactions in grain or cotton futures excepted persons under oath to make actual deliveries.

The measure, sponsored by Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, who said farmers generally favored its passage altho traders had indicated their opposition, would penalize telegraph companies and others involved in transmission of orders as well as dealers in futures who violate its provisions.

In addition to taking favorable action on the bill, the committee continuing its hearings on farm relief proposals, heard Charles L. Stewart, associate professor of economics at the University of Illinois, who today approved the McKinley farm export bill.

When the house agriculture committee temporarily sidetracked the corn belt bill to stabilize the prices of crop surpluses by collection of a fee on farm products and listened to arguments of Representative Little, democrat, Kansas, in favor of his proposal for fixing of prices and storing of surplus wheat in bonded elevators.

Pilgrims to Jerusalem

Jerusalem, April 1.—Jerusalem, exalted in the memory and imagination of Christians and Mohammedans, again is filling with thousands of pilgrims and tourists as the annual Easter celebrations draw near. The faithful, traveling by train and automobile, on animals and afoot, thru the orange and banana groves of Jaffa and the Jordan valley, across the plain of Svatkar, past the cactus and eucalyptus trees, all are alike in their sincerity. The Moslems are coming to pray where Mohammed prayed; the Jews to weep beside the walls of their vanished temple, while the Christians are gathering around the place of Jesus' passion.

Members of American missionary and relief societies are vying with the hopes and convents in extending hospitality to tourists from the homeland. The American Near East relief, which already has welcomed 7,000 American tourists to the holy land, this season has arranged to have groups of American pilgrims escorted to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre from its orphanages at Bethlehem and Nazareth.
