THE GOD OF ALL GRACE

The God of all grace, who hath called us unto His eternal glory by Christ Jesus, after that ye have suffered a while, make you perfect, establish, strengthen, settle you. To Him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.—1 Peter 5:10-11.

No decision as yet, on farm proposition.

Keep them on a while yet—even if they do scratch.

As long as there are optimists there will be seed catalogs.

Don't pity the man with the hoe. He's probably after bait.

Straw votes are significant when the wind is blowing our way.

Another way to exterminate our wild life is to do more spanking.

Don't believe that a woman believes all that a man believes she believes.

Illinois divides on wet plan, but Illinois democrats vote approval by a big majority.

From a divorce report—"She claims that marriage is nothing but a delusion and a snore."

Wisconsin bookkeepers held a convention. We have been thinking some of buying a bee.

If the United States sends delegates to the arms conference should they be heavily armed?

It is hardly ever wise to trust the honesty of the man who thinks most other people are dishonest.

A crying need in radio is a broadcasting announcer who does not have the idea he is the entire program.

The Haugen bill, which is in Nebraska's favor and the only one of three bills that has been reported.

Now is a good time to look to your lawn mower and put it in shipshape. Your neighbor may want to borrow it.

The world will still be imperfect as long as people think they can change human nature by passing a law about it.

Wets mass forces back of Edge bill. Closing rounds of the assembly very hot and heavy. Many people call it a draw.

Fashion took the hatpin away from woman and left her with nothing but an automatic revolver with which to defend herself.

Americans are hard to drive. There's too much talk about enforcing the laws and not enough about obeying the laws.

A homely illustration of progress is the modern house dress which, containing one-third as much goods as the old-fashioned Mother Hubbard, costs three times as much.

A Kentucky concern has been accused of transporting bootleg liquor in its hearse. That is all wrong. These vehicles should be reserved for use of the men who drink the liquor.

The Congressional Record prints many speeches that have never been delivered. This system costs $48 a page but considering the saving in wear and tear on congressmen it probably is worth the money.

If we do not hold fast to fundamental principles, to the constitution—the bill of rights, and local self-government—the original free republic will soon become an empire with unlimited powers for oppression. The republic will be wrecked.

Italian pact upheld, senate refuses reconsideration.

Liquor hearing at Washington is nearing its end.

People will steal anything. A St. Louis man stole an ukelele.

Possibly the farmer's idea of relief is to have congress adjourn.

Sometimes a man gets so mad he quits being a hypocrite for a few minutes.

Everything else about an automobile may stop, but the payment will always run.

If you think we are living too fast get out and watch a bricklayer on a government job.

It is noted that those Russians who would restore the czardom are not residents of Russia.

A crusade has been started to bring cosmetics under the pure food act. What cowards men are!

Still if the nations were square enough to make the league work, they could get along without it.

One of the most remarkable things about a candidate is the way he can regard a personal desire as a public demand.

If Mussolini ever has a spare moment on his hands he might step over to Pisa and straighten up that leaning tower.

France lays new debt settlement offer before the United States. The proposal is well received, as a basis for negotiation.

Nowadays, when a girl shows an interest in learning how to cook, the neighbors wonder what that flighty thing is up to now.

"No party of the people," says Jim Reed, "big interests own White House and only a political upheaval can break their grip."

Over in London they have started a campaign to spell by sound. Over here, most of the stenographers already spell that way, if at all.

Frau Einstein says that he husband never explained his theory of relativity to her. Does he think that a woman cannot keep a secret?

When a woman has shopped all day without finding anything to buy, she saves it from being an utterly futile day by buying another patent scrub-cloth for cleaning aluminum ware.

Now that the senate has ratified the Italian debt settlement, ousted Brookhart and seen the Washington baseball team barely break even so far, what else can it find to get mad about we wonder.

Plenty of G. O. P. "timber" in the presidential race. Coolidge far from alone in yearning for the 1923 presidency. Dawes, Lowden, Borah, Hoover, Longworth and Watson, listed in Washington as aspirers.

Collier's Weekly offers cash prizes for the best fish stories. Has it come to this, that fishermen have to be paid filthy lucre in order to induce them to tell whoppers about their catches? Perish the thought!

The best that women can do is to gain equally under the law, no special privilege for none is a safe rule, and the only rule which will preserve the most precious thing that Americans have—free constitutional government.

YOUNG CRIMINALS

Youthfulness in criminals is, of course, no new thing, no phenomenon of recent development. Yet the public seems perennially surprised by it.

The criminal goes through no apprenticeship where his activities are unknown to the public. The lawyer's maiden case in a lower court at best does not get more than a few lines in an obscure corner of a newspaper.

The natural born criminal goes into crime at his first opportunity. The rules or organized society, custom, precedent, do not restrain him, for his activities are in defiance of all restraint.

Our fathers believed that bad spirits caused infectious disease and that the shape of a leaf indicated the kind of sickness it could cure.

Whoever abandons truth for expediency places more confidence in authority than he does in the facts in the case.

PROGRESS

Wages had been increased until the income of every toiler was ten cents every time his watch ticked.

People lived upon such indigenous fruits as could be eaten directly from the trees without stooping or reaching (either action being a violation of Union Rules).

It costs $6.167 to rear a girl and $6.077 to bring a boy to the age of 18, according to statistics just made public by the Metropolitan Life Insurance company.

It is futile to endeavor to stop the search for truth by persecution and inquisitions.

STATISTICS

It costs $6.167 to rear a girl and $6.077 to bring a boy to the age of 18, according to statistics just made public by the Metropolitan Life Insurance company.

It looks now as though the United States almost had its hands on that money the French owe it. The French are going to pay it over if and when they get it from Germany.

Wets to seek show-down at this congressional session. Plan to force fight on the senate floor through beer amendment to enforcement bill.

TRUTH

The fundamental thing that almost everybody overlooks in the various discussions over opposing theories is that truth is not a fixed thing.

Truth is fluctuating. Truth progresses. Truth is the hypothesis that most nearly fits the facts.

There is nothing fixed in the world but single instances, single data. The conclusions from these single instances, or the generalities, is what we call the truth about them.

Too many people regard the foundation of morals as something fixed, some authoritative statement which can be referred back to as the truth.

We learn later in life, however, that our morals change. They depend upon the facts in the case.

Truth is not a doctrine nor propaganda. It is merely a preponderance of probabilities. We believe two and two make four because they always have made four.

Someone has defined prayer as a request to God that he make two and two equal five.

It does no good to stress or believe anything that is not in concordance with the facts in the case. We should distinguish between a series of facts and the conclusions we draw from them.

Darwinism is a workable hypothesis. It is not an established fact. We should teach it as that assumption that most nearly accords with the known facts, and not as a dogma in itself.

We are never going to get rid of dogma and the dogmatic habit until we get over treating conclusions as facts, until we realize that the progress of the mind is a continual progress, and that truth is always before us.

Truth is not something that our grandfathers believed and which we must adhere to, but is something which we continually search.

The object of education is to put a child as nearly as possible in possession of all the facts of the past and to train his mind in drawing conclusions.

Our fathers believed that bad spirits caused infectious disease and that the shape of a leaf indicated the kind of sickness it could cure.

This belief in truth as a continual progress is the utmost importance. It is as necessary to the mind as vitamins are necessary to the body.

Whoever abandons truth for expediency places more confidence in authority than he does in the facts in the case.

Our minds should always remain open and hospitable. The worst thing that can happen to a mind is to shut itself up with a clique, tie itself up to some statement made by somebody else, and thus close it to all future progress.

It is futile to endeavor to stop the search for truth by persecution and inquisitions.

It costs $6.167 to rear a girl and $6.077 to bring a boy to the age of 18, according to statistics just made public by the Metropolitan Life Insurance company.

Production ceased. Consumption and disintegration, however, continued. Time, by virtue of whose elapse the gains of the toiler accrued, laid a destructive hand upon all that men, in the old, crude days, had created.

Things broke, rusted, rotted, wore out, tore, went out of style. Furniture and houses fell to pieces and were used for fuel, books having preceded them to the ash-heap.

All merchandise ceased to be. The poor working man found nothing more to buy. He began to want things. Thereupon, civilization, having passed under the wire, started on its second lap.

It looks now as though the United States almost had its hands on that money the French owe it. The French are going to pay it over if and when they get it from Germany.
