Our Saying So Doesn't Make Our Service "Good"

But our doing so does make good service—and doing so creates good will among the people—and good will among the people brings old customers along with them.

Therefore, our service is consistently the best service we can make it.

Miss Callie Carlson who suffered a stroke of paralysis some time since, at Weeping Water, and who is at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Fleming is still in a very precarious condition from the effects of the stroke. Her case is really growing more serious instead of better, although all is being done that is possible in the way of nursing and medical attention.

Will Horchar, the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Horchar, was taken to Omaha where he entered the Swedish Immanuel hospital and underwent an operation for relief from appendicitis, and since the operation, which occurred on last Friday has been getting along nicely. Dan, his brother, was over to Omaha on last Sunday to see the brother, and found him doing nicely.

Ray Creamer and the family who kept their home at Overton, where they are engaged in farming, drove over to Murray, arriving last Friday evening, making the distance of two hundred and twenty miles in the day, and visited with the folks here until Sunday when Walter Sans and wife with their son, Harlan, of Omaha were down for a short visit again, departing on Wednesday morning for Overton, where the farm work is awaiting Ray.

Entertained the Bridge Club. Mrs. G. L. Taylor entertained the Murray bridge club at her home last Monday evening, where all enjoyed the occasion very much, and are a unit in declaring that Mrs. Taylor is queen of entertainers and are waiting until it comes her time again to be their hostess. The games were very spirited and Miss Beulah Sans was the fortunate winner of the grand prize which was an ornamental lamp shade, while the consolation prize went to Miss Marion, another of the instructors of the Murray schools. Light refreshments were served which added to the pleasure of the evening.

Hears Sister Had Died. Word came to L. C. Horchar on last Sunday telling of the death of his sister, Mrs. George Harch of Sioux City, Iowa. Mr. Horchar had not seen the sister for some time and did not know of her illness, which was contained in a very meagre message. Mr. Horchar departed on Monday afternoon for Norfolk, where the funeral and burial were had. The sister, who was fifty years of age, left six children, they being four sons and two daughters. A fuller account of the life of this excellent woman will be given in another issue of this paper.

Married At Shenandoah, Iowa. Last Thursday Mr. Otto Wolfarth of Plattsmouth, and Miss Violet Kell of Murray were united in marriage at Shenandoah, Iowa, and the event was broadcasted over the radio from the Henry Field station. The friends when they returned did not have to be informed of the happy event, and were ready with their congratulations. The bride is the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Kell and is favorably known to all of the people in this portion of the county. She is one of the most agreeable and highly esteemed young ladies of Murray and is surely deserving the excellent husband which she is getting in Mr. Wolfarth. They are visiting at the present at the home of the bride but will arrange to go to house-keeping in the near future.

On last Tuesday afternoon Mrs. John Hobschelt, gave a miscellaneous shower for her friend, Mrs. Wolfarth, and which was held at the home of the bride's parents as the home was large and commodious. A very large number of the friends of this very popular young woman were present to enjoy the gathering and to extend congratulations and well wishes to the happy bride.

Many Pay Respects.

The funeral of Henry C. Long was well attended and many people were present to pay their last tribute of honor to a man who has assisted materially in making Cass county the good place to live which it is.

Mr. Long came to Nebraska and settled in Cass county about fifty years ago, and here raised a family and while so doing made a competency, and leaves the wife and children a heritage of excellent citizenship, and a life of upright living, excellent character. A large gathering of people assembled to celebrate the last rites when it was consigned to its last resting place, one who they had learned to love and honor. Besides the friends here there were from distant points the following relatives and friends, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Kelsey of Farragut, Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. Orta Perry of Holbrook, Nebraska; Fred Long and son, of Blair, Neb.; Charles Long of Sidney, Iowa; Edward C. Cook of Greenwood, Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Mitchell, Copay Phillips, Shenandoah, Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Reese, Sterling, Neb.; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ernest, Johnson, Neb.; Hiram Reese of Tecumseh, Neb.; and Mrs. Cora Earhart of Exira, Iowa.

Henry C. Long died as he lived, always doing something for someone, and that a kind act, which has characterized his life. Mr. Long had not been well for some three years and was confined to his bed a great portion of the time. He has been some better for the past several weeks. On the day which he died he had thought that he would bring the horse that they had to the yard to see some grass and had done so, and had driven a stake in the yard to tether the family horse, having in mind the comfort of the animal, when the call came for the quitting of life here to enjoy the life in that greater world beyond. We do not see how one could have quit his labors here better than to perform an act of kindness, the very last thing he was able to do on this earth.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to express our appreciation of the many kind words of sympathy and acts of kindness that were shown us at the time of our bereavement in the death of our beloved husband, father, and grandfather. We also wish to thank those who assisted at the funeral and also for the beautiful floral offerings that were tendered to our loved one.—Mrs. Henry C. Long and Family.

Golden Text: "All nations shall be blessed in him."—Genesis 18:18.

The Friend of God

An old man sat in his tent door in the heat of the day, and by the way it was hot, too, for that was a hot country, and the sun shone on the blistering sands, and then was reflected back into ones eyes with such intensity that people were blinded by the bright light. We see numerous instances of people being blind in the far east desert lands, and this was partially the cause. This old man was Abraham, and he was 99 years old. We, of our day, would call this being pretty well aged, and in considering the manner in which people live in these times, it is, too. His wife, Sarah, was also in the tent. Now she was 89 years old, just ten years younger than her husband. They lived in a tent and could pitch it anywhere they desired. They were located at this time under one of the towering oaks of Mamre. Now Mamre was a portion of the country in Palestine, located near the city of Hebron, where Abraham had gone after the selection of the rich valley of the Jordan by Lot, Abraham's nephew. While Abraham was a rich chieftain, he lived in a tent, and why do you suppose? He was in the cattle business and had cattle on a thousand hills. He was rich, and had besides all his cattle, herds of sheep, goats and camels and horses as well as silver and gold, and he had to be so situated that he could go where he could look after his stock. The hospitality of the Arab sheik is proverbial, as well as their craftiness.

Abraham was the friend of God, and being such was his ambassador. It was his duty to show kindness to all God's people. As he sat thus in the heat of the day, there appeared unto him three people, and as he raised his head and saw them approaching, he ran to meet them, notwithstanding his one less than a hundred years of age. He saluted them and asked them to stop under the shade of the historic trees of Mamre.

Abraham urged them to stop, saying he would prepare a meal for his three visitors. He had his wife, Sarah, make some bread, while he rushed to a nearby herd and brought a young calf, tender and juicy, which he had one of the servants dress and his wife prepare for them to eat. In the meantime he washed their feet, for the traveling there is over much sandy and gravelly country and as the common footwear were sandals, which allowed the sand and gravel to work in and produced excruciating pain at the end of a journey.

The matter of washing the feet after a tramp through the hot, blistering sands was a very kind act, and one characteristic of this great man. When the meal was prepared, Abraham stood by while the strangers ate, and in the conversation it appeared unto this great sheik that they were the representatives of the most high God, and they promised Abraham that he should have a son, and he doubted, though he was the "Friend of God," while his wife, Sarah, listening in on the conversation from the tent, laughed to herself, and was reprimanded by one of the Angels, for indeed they were Angels, for her unbelief.

And so it came to pass, even in their old age, this couple was blessed soon by a son, Isaac, which meant laughter, but far from this was the life of this patriarch, for, indeed, he had his share of grief.

After having finished the meal, the strangers assayed to go and as an act of courtesy and an expression of hospitality, Abraham went a distance with them. And as they came to an eminence overlooking the valley of the Jordan, the strangers made it known unto Abraham that the Lord was displeased with the wicked cities of Sodom and Gomorrah, and that they would be destroyed. Abraham, having Lot in the city, asked that if there might be found fifty righteous people in the town, it might not be saved for their sake. This the representatives (or as some hold, God himself) consented to, and then Abraham asked if there lacked five of the fifty, and this was acceded to, when he asked again if forty were found, and the Angels agreed, then thirty and then twenty and later ten. The Angels agreed that if ten were found the city would be saved. Now, some towns are so badly contaminated with sin and crime that it looks like they are hardly worth saving, but a little heaven leaveneth the whole lump, and God saves a city, a county and world for the few, as well as the family or the church, and in this is a manifestation of the oft-repeated Golden text of the Bible, John 3:16, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him might not perish but have everlasting life."

After this conversation the Angels vanished and Abraham went back to his own home. That evening Angels visited the home of Lot, appearing unto him as he sat at the gate of the city, and he asked them into his home, but they said, "We must abide in the streets." Lot, like his uncle, Abraham, insisted on them enjoying his hospitality and they could go on their way in the morning. When he had sent them to his home and went there himself, some of the people of Sodom, being suspicious, came and demanded the strangers, but Lot, being loyal to the trust and determined to protect his guests, refused and endeavored to persuade them to leave and do not do anything wicked. They became enraged and attacked Lot, when one of the Angels reached out and pulled Lot in and shut the door.

The excited mob, for such they had become, endeavored to break down the door and the Angel smote the crowd outside with blindness, so they could not see and they were unable to do anything to injure Lot or his guests.

Then the Angels told Lot that God was going to destroy the city and for him to go and ask his sons-in-law to come with their wives and depart from the city. They laughed Lot to scorn, and when the morning had come the two Angels took Lot, his wife and the two unmarried daughters who were at home, and hastened with them out of the city, charging them not to look back, which hebest Lot's wife did not heed and she was therefore turned into a pillar of salt. Lot persisted in being allowed to go to the city of Zoar, which is near Hebron, and they were able to arrive at the gates of the city by eventide. The next morning Lot looked towards Sodom, and saw the whole country in flames. Thus was the city of Sodom destroyed as predicted by the Angels. There was not the required righteous persons to save the city, as per God's covenant with Abraham.

Christ said unto the followers who went to him on the Mount: "Ye are the salt of the earth," and again, "A city sat on a hill cannot be hid." If Christians are the salt of the earth, then they are to save the earth, and the people thereof. God would have saved the city of Sodom had there been ten righteous people there, but when Lot went to the people of the city to get them to turn from their wickedness, they scoffed at him. They did the same to Noah, when he preached unto them and tried to get them to build an ark, but calamity came upon them in the fulness of time. Be sure our sins will find us out, be it now or in the future. God saves people because they are worth saving, and it is up to us individually, whether we desire to inherit eternal life or not. No one is compelled to accept the great inheritance that was purchased for us with the life
