

Murray Department

Prepared in the Interest of the People of Murray and Surrounding Vicinity Especially for the Journal Readers

If any of the readers of the Journal know of any social events or items of interest in this vicinity, and will mail same to this office, it will appear under the heading "We want all news items—Editors"

U. B. Prifty

If We Knew a Better Word

WE WOULD USE IT—

We say that because we do not like the word "SERVICE."

It is a much overworked word, yet in our business it is the only word that will apply.

Truly, ours is a business of service! As we SERVE (or help you prosper) we profit.

Certainly, then, we shall continue to make SERVICE our BUSINESS.

Murray State Bank

Murray, Nebraska

There is No Substitute for Safety

Robert Troop shipped a car load of hogs to the South Omaha market on last Tuesday.

Boedeker and Wehrlein shipped a car load of hogs to the Omaha stock market on last Monday.

Harvey Gregg has been making some extensive repairs on the building of school district No. 6.

The Rev. W. F. Graham was visiting for a short time in the county seat on last Tuesday evening.

Dr. G. L. Taylor was looking after some business matters in the vicinity of Union and Nehawka on last Tuesday.

Frank Foreman was looking after some business and visiting with friends in Plattsmouth last Tuesday evening.

Miss Margaret Mae Wiley, daughter of Warren Wiley, is visiting at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Mary Wiley.

Jess Chambers was called to Plattsmouth on last Tuesday morning where he had some business matters to look after.

Robert Good and the family were enjoying the Old Settler's Picnic at Union on last Saturday, they driving down in their car.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moore and daughter, Margaret, entertained a number of friends at a watermelon party Thursday evening.

Henry Johnson of Myrdal was a visitor in Murray on last Tuesday and was looking after some business matters for the railroad.

George Smith is having an excellent cave constructed, the walls being made of hollow tile and when done will be an excellent one.

Green Pigot was a visitor in Plattsmouth on Monday of this week and also was attending the Old Settler's Picnic at Union last Saturday evening.

Everett Spangler and wife, are spending some time in the west, they touring the west with their auto and will be away for a number of days.

Word received from Parr Young and family is to the effect that they are now spending some time in Canada, and are enjoying their trip very much.

Thomas Nelson was spending a few days at Springfield where he formerly resided, and was attending the three days picnic which was held there.

Mrs. Guy Wiles who has been at a hospital in Omaha for the past week or more and who was very ill while there is reported as being much improved.

Mr. and Mrs. George Nickles and Lee Nickles and sister, Miss Etta, were attending the Old Settler's Picnic which was held at Union on last Saturday.

Mrs. G. W. McCracken and daughter, Elizabeth, have been visiting with relatives at Orient, Iowa, for the past week, and are enjoying the visit very much.

Mrs. C. N. Barrows has been feeling quite poorly for the past week, and is showing some improvement at this time which is good news to her many friends.

Louis Hallas and the family were visiting with relatives in Plattsmouth.

last Sunday, driving up in their car and not getting home until after the storm in the evening.

John Noddleman shipped three cars of very fine cattle from the Murray station to the South Omaha cattle market on last Sunday, they being on the market for Monday.

Geo. Martin, T. H. Pollock and F. E. Scott shipped two loads of very fine cattle to the Omaha market on last Tuesday evening, they being on the market for Wednesday.

George W. Comer and the family were in Murray on last Tuesday afternoon being with their little one which has been quite ill, to the family physician, Dr. J. F. Brendel.

Robert L. McCreery with his hand of workmen have just completed the new bridge at Mount Hope school, and as soon as the grading is completed the bridge will be ready for use.

Lee Nickle, Miss Etta Nickle and Geo. Nickle and wife were visiting in Plattsmouth last Thursday where they were at a confirmation of the sale of the lands of the Wm. Nickle estate.

John Gilmore was a visitor at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Ray Frans for last week and also attended the Old Settler's Picnic at Union Friday and Saturday, arriving home on Monday evening.

Fred Schaeffer who was here for a short time some two weeks since, and went to the home at Ferguson, and visited the Rodeo at Burwell, returned and is visiting with the folks here.

John Farris and the family were visiting with their many friends at the Old Settler's Picnic at Union on last Saturday, they driving down for the day, and meeting their friends there for the day.

Doctor Gilmore and family, Chas. D. Spangler and wife, Charles Boedeker, Jr., and Kemper Frans and wife were enjoying a visit with the friends at the Old Settler's Picnic at Union last Saturday.

W. D. Wheeler shelled and delivered his corn to the Farmer's Elevator on Tuesday of this week. Mr. Wheeler has the present crop doing very nicely and is emptying his cribs for the coming crop.

Fred Enlekemier is building a garage at his home to accommodate the car which has fought with the stock and implements for a place to roost up to this time and which is to have an excellent place of abode.

Miss Ruby Meade who has been assisting at the central office during the absence of Mrs. Bartlett who has been visiting with her parents near Hastings, on the return of Mrs. Bartlett departed for her home at Liberty.

Mrs. Addie Bartlett with her daughter, Miss Florence, who have been visiting for the past two weeks at the home of her parents near Hastings, returned home the first of the week after having enjoyed the visit very much.

John Fitch and sister, Mrs. Belle Frans, departed early this week for California, where they will visit with relatives at and near Winston, which is a few miles this side of San Francisco. They will expect to stay for nearly a month.

Ray Berger of Plattsmouth the salesman for the Plattsmouth Motor company was looking after some business matters in Murray on last Tuesday. Ray is a hustler for business, and was interviewing his prospective customers.

C. Hochar and the family were spending last Friday at the picnic which was held at Springfield, and where they enjoyed the time most pleasantly, meeting their friends where there for the day, they having lived there for many years.

George Small departed Sunday morning for Memphis, Missouri, where he will visit with his friends and relatives and will attend the county fair which is in session this week. While he is away Jarvis Lancaster will look after the road work.

Ivan De Les Darnier and family and Dale Topfiff and family have been visiting in the western portion of Nebraska and also in the western part of Kansas where at the latter place they visited at the home of Mr. Topfiff's parents, they returning home this week.

Lloyd Scott and wife who are making their home just in the edge of Plattsmouth were blessed on last Sunday by a visit of the stork who brought this happy couple a very fine seven pound son, who is doing nicely and all are happy. Grandfather Scott, is stepping out some but we do not blame him, he has it coming.

Uncle Charles Philpot who has been at the hospital at Omaha for some time and where he has undergone a number of operations, on last Tuesday underwent another operation and which it is hoped will be all that he will be required to undergo for a time. His many friends are hoping that he will now soon be able to return to his home.

Mrs. Kate Smith who has been at the hospital at Omaha for some time where she has been taking treatment, underwent an operation for removal of gall stones and is feeling very much better. In the operation there were removed from Mrs. Smith some twenty-six stones and quite a bit of sediment. It is hoped she will soon be feeling better now.

Carl Lancaster who some twelve months since injured his knee, by dislocating it, has been having trouble with it since and on last Tuesday Dr. Gilmore operated upon it, removing much pus, and relieving much of the pain. It is hoped now the knee will soon be well, and the lad able to get about again. He has to walk with crutches now.

Letters received from Mrs. J. W. Berger who is visiting with her daughter, Mrs. E. L. Steiner at Oklahoma City, Okla., where they drove last week is to the effect that she was very tired of traveling when they arrived but is getting rested by this time and feeling some better.

She will remain for some time in order to recuperate her health. Edwin Johnson and wife departed for Rice Lake Wisconsin, where they will visit at the home of the parents of Mrs. Johnson, and will be there for some two weeks. They started on last Wednesday morning, staying at the home of Harry Nelson and wife the night before and getting an early start. While they are away Mrs. J. G. O. Nelson and Willard Nelson, son of Harry Nelson and wife will take care of the stock.

Have a Time With Red Dog. Now who is Red Dog, well those who know say he is the trick horse of Captain Harrison L. Gayer, democratic candidate for County Clerk.

Well, some little spell ago Red Dog, seeking greener pastures got entangled in the mud of a creek running down by Rock Bluffs, and was there for most of the afternoon, and became nearly exhausted before he was discovered. Then with the mud up to his back it was a severe task to get the critter out of the creek. The neighbors, however, kept at it until they had secured the animal. Captain Gayer was in Plattsmouth and when he was notified he came and with the truck pulled the unfortunate horse out.

We like the loyal way in which the neighbors worked until the animal was safe. The matter is also appreciated by Mr. Gayer, as well.

Had to Have Leg Set Again. Earl Hobcheit who was somewhat of a circus boy and who was able to do so many stunts, is paying quite a pretty penny for a miss step which he made when he was jumping from his pony to a swing and back again, and while he had been doing this for some time and was an adept, he made a mistake in his return jump to the pony, and falling fractured his arm, so complicated that he was taken to the hospital, where the arm was set, but later, had to be reset, on Tuesday of this week, when it was thought that he would be ready to return home. The parents were over to Omaha on the last of Wednesday, and while he was suffering much from the second ordeal he was doing as well as under the circumstances that could be expected.

One on the Nurse. The story is told of a farmer who had the great blessing of an heir coming to his home, and which necessitated a nurse for the little one and the mother for some time. The nurse, who is a most estimable lady, was duly installed, and things were going along all right, and having some occasion to go to the barn, where she found some strange looking fluid in a jug, which she secured taking it to the housewife, and accused the gentleman of having hooch. He informed the nurse that it was simply sweet grape juice, and that she should rest by drinking some of which she did, and as a consequence felt very funny, the man of the house taking his share as well. They were both a little how-come-you-see and talked much of the evils of intemperance. By and by the nurse became drowsy and went to sleep, to awake the following morning with a slight headache. Still firm in her belief that to drink anything strong is indeed very wrong.

Community Program. The community program Saturday evening will be given under the direction of Miss Etta Nickles and Charles Howard and will be the last out door program of the season. The committee has secured for the picnic September 2nd, the Melor, May and ch band, under the direction of May Flanagan, which will give a program during the noon and evening.

Presbyterian Church Notes. W. F. Graham, Pastor. Sabbath School at 10 a. m. Sermon by pastor at 11 a. m. Report of Tarkin Missionary conference by Miss Julia Troop and others at 7.45 p. m.

Come to the Picnic at Murray Elsewhere will be found a program of the Murray Community picnic which will be given at the Farris grove south of the Murray bathing beach. An invitation is extended to all to come and enjoy the day. This is Murray's day and she expects all to have a good time.

Harrison L. Gayer, president of the Murray Community club, has appointed the following committees who are hustling to make the affair a success in all its lines.

Program Committee—Miss Etta Nickles and Charles Howard. Grounds Committee—Roy Howard, chairman; Frank Mraek, Earl Lancaster, Jeff Brendel, J. A. Scotten and Nick Friedrich. Sports Committee—Dr. G. L. Taylor, chairman; Gusie Brubacher, Glen Todd, Harry Nelson. Entertainment Committee—Mrs. W. S. Smith, chairman; Merdames

GREATLY REDUCED RATES to COLORADO

(Denver or Colorado Springs)

Only $12.50 Round Trip

Only $18.00 Round Trip

Tickets good on any Burlington Train leaving Plattsmouth

September 4

and honored only in coaches and free reclining chair cars

Return Limit September 8

No Baggage Checked

Tickets good on any Burlington Train leaving Plattsmouth

September 10

and honored in sleeping cars upon payment of the usual Pullman fare

Return Limit September 21

Baggage Checked as Usual

Half fare for Children, 5 to 12

Unusual Opportunities for a VACATION IN THE ROCKIES

BUY TICKETS EARLY

McCracken, Tutt, Brubacher, Gilmore, Farris, Churchill, Brendel, Bakke and the Misses Bertha Lancaster and Bertha Nickles.

Tuesday Club Entertained Mrs. Albin, Mrs. Hobcheit and Mrs. Albert Young entertained the Tuesday club at the home of Mrs. Young Tuesday. Forty-eight were in attendance. The afternoon was in the nature of a Kensington and Mrs. Hanni won the prize as the speediest seamstress. Miss Reinacke furnished some very pleasing songs. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Wolfe.

Ungrateful, indeed, would we prove ourselves to be if we failed to honor those parents who so nobly did for us what we could not do for ourselves. As the years speed by the scene is changed. We become strong and robust, our bodies attain strength and our minds become developed until we become capable of doing what our parents did in the days when we were young. Our parents, on the other hand develop into the old age period of life, when infirmities make them unable longer to carry on with the vigor of former days.

We can never repay, much as we may try, our parents for the things which they have done for us. But we do for the children whom God has blessed us with, a similar service, and in this way help to pay the debt that we owe our parents. Thus by the grace of God we are joined to the past and the future and become a link in that long chain of humanity which is forever indebted to the love of the Heavenly Father for the blessings that come to us.

The sixth of God's commandments to mankind is "Thou shalt not kill." We cannot restore a life we have taken, and even if we give our own life in return, we cannot wipe out the crime of taking the life of a fellow man, for in the destiny of God we know not what that life might have brought forth for the world which God's love has through the years and is now blessing.

"Thou shalt not commit adultery" is another of God's commandments to mankind. The marriage relation was the first institution which God founded and he blessed it, when he caused a deep sleep to fall on Adam, taking of his rib and making woman, whom he gave to man for his wife. This institution was blessed that the human race should be pure and flow from the Father himself. To keep this relation pure, this command was given, and to violate it is as great a sin as to take the life of another or commit any other transgression that God in his wisdom has forbidden.

Then said God, "Thou shalt not steal." When one shall take the substance of life—the living of another—the virtually takes the means of living and his life. It is evident that in taking the goods of another we are also disobeying that new commandment which Christ himself gave, to-wit: "Love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy might and with all thy strength and thy neighbor as thyself." If we love our neighbor as ourselves, we are certainly not going to steal his goods or his good name.

"Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Within this silent cavern hung The ready, swift and tuneful tongue If bold in virtues cause it spoke Yet gentle concord never broke; If falsehood's honey it distained And when it could not praise, was chained— That tuneful tongue shall plead for thee. When death unveils eternity."

Tell the truth and shame the devil is the better way, for when one lie is told it requires ten more to square yourself.

The tenth and last of God's commandments to man, "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife, nor his man-servant, nor his maid-servant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor anything which is thy neighbor's" covers a wide latitude and teaches a lesson that should be observed equally with the other nine.

God has blessed this land. Through his grace we have the fertile valleys, the warm sunshine, the gentle showers, the balmy winds and everything that goes to make life worth while and produce for us the things needed to promote life and prosperity. He has placed on us all the badge of labor, and only by the sweat of our brow shall we be able to eat. The other fellow is in the same position, as he likewise must work for what he has, just as hard as we work, or perhaps harder, and if perchance he has more than we, it is because he (or those before him) has denied himself some of the indulgences which have been ours, and if by this, or because he has worked while we slept or played, he is indeed entitled to the additional amount he accumulated while we played or spent our substance.

Then, in truth, why should we covet our neighbor's goods, which is essentially stealing, for we are committing the act in our heart, whether we perform the act in reality or not. If we covet our neighbor's wife, we are guilty of more than one sin, yea of many, for we are an adulterer in our heart to begin with, and we are desirous of stealing that which belongs to our neighbor, as well. To sister we say this applies just the same if you are trying to steal some one's husband. You are both conspiring to break up the home of another—the very first institution that God created on earth and the basic organization which God formed to bring blessings and happiness to all mankind.

Know the commandments of God and keep them, for in their observance we are doing the very things which God has said will bring for us eternal life, and is verified in the truth that Christ himself put forth when he talked with Martha and she said, "Hadst thou been here my brother had not died, to-wit: "He that believeth on me, though he die, yet shall he live; and he that liveth and believeth on me shall never die."

Remember God's admonition to mankind: "Love me and keep my commandments."

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil, and the one who talks about his neighbor, even if he tells what is so with the intent to do injury to that neighbor, is guilty of the breaking of the whole decalogue. Well do the "Lips on a Skeleton" tell of the office of the tongue, and what is good and what is bad in the things which it does. Describing the mouth, the lines read:

"Thou shalt not covet" is another of the commands of God. A lying, tattling tongue is a source of great evil