Watch Elimination!

Good Health Depends Upon Good Elimination.

RETENTION of bodily waste in the blood is called a "toxic condition." This often gives rise to a dull, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backaches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is often shown by burning or scanty passage of secretions. Thousands have learned to assist their kidneys by drinking plenty of pure water and the occasional use of a stimulant diuretic. 50,000 users give Doan's signed endorsement. Ask your neighbor!

CHURCH AND STATE

The report of the thirty-two Protestant pastors comprising the good will mission which has been investigating the current struggle between the Mexican government and churches lays down some fundamental truths, apart from the facts which they present, which are irrefutable.

The Protestant church authorities have announced that they cheerfully will acknowledge the supremacy of the Mexican government. Independently of this announcement the good will mission declares that when the Catholic church extends a similar recognition, the difficulty will be far on the way toward settlement. The mission members declare that reports of riots and killings have been grossly exaggerated.

"We believe that when the churches of Mexico, like the churches of the United States," declares the mission report, "accept the fundamental principle that each individual owes a greater civic loyalty to the state than to the church, then religious questions in Mexico will be settled and the church will then prosper in its own right."

The church authorities complain that the Mexican constitution denies the divine origin of the church. But all theological and ecclesiastical issues are dwarfed by the fundamental principle laid down by the mission that the loyalty to the state comes before loyalty to any religious institution, as a matter of good citizenship.

That is going deep into the soil in which are the roots of old abuses and old contentions, Christ Himself urged all men to "give unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's."

He did not set one thing before the other, but saw the great vision of unity and independence, religion bulwarking the state through loyal citizenship and the state protecting all men in the indulgence of their own religious beliefs, both working independently and harmoniously each in its own sphere, for the welfare of the world here and hereafter.

AMERICA'S SHOE SUPREMACY

The importation of boots and shoes to this country from Europe increased 63 per cent during the first six months of 1926, over that of the corresponding period of 1925.

This is one of the commodities, in this land of abnormally high tariffs, which enter free of duty. It is well, therefore, to analyze what bearing this large increase in importation percentage has on our own manufacturing industry.

There were 570,000 pairs of leather boots and shoes imported the first six months of 1926. The value was $1,591,233 or $2.61 per pair. Embodied in these imports are a large volume of cheap leather moccasins and children's shoes, which pull down the average price. Great Britain sent us one-eighth the total amount at the high price of $6.10 per pair, while Austria's cheap consignments averaged only $1.10 per pair. Czechoslovakia and Austria, however, rose from one-half per cent of the total importations in 1925 to 20 per cent and 15 per cent of the total, respectively, in 1926.

Plainly, though, a million-odd pairs of imported duty-free shoes for 1926 will make a barely perceptible scratch on our vast production, for in 1925 the United States produced 323,553,055 pairs of boots and shoes. We exported 8,885,000 pairs, valued at $2.21 per pair. Therefore, we manufactured 315 pairs for every pair imported. We exported eight pairs for every pair imported, and we sold our exported shoes at 40 cents a pair less than we paid for our imported ones.

It is an interesting side light that 21 boot and shoe factories in St. Louis alone—there are 87 factories in the so-called St. Louis district—manufactured in 1924, 53,019,094 pairs of boots and shoes.

It is evident from the above figures that America's duty-free boot and shoe industry is not threatened by European manufacturers, in spite of the tremendous disparity in labor cost in favor of every country abroad, and particularly in Southern Europe.

We lead and will continue to lead at home as well as in the competitive foreign markets, due to the genius of American organization methods, supported to the full limit by mass production machinery.

The Program At The Nebraska State Fair

A Marvellous One

Never in the history of the Nebraska State Fair has such a Marvellous program of entertainment and sports been arranged as will greet the three hundred thousand people who will go through the gates at Lincoln this year. The World's Best Auto Racers have entered and as an additional thrill, the Fastest Woman Driver in this country is among the number. The best field of Horses ever assembled on a Nebraska track will contest for big purses. The program of Attractions in front of the grand stand will positively outclass anything the State Fair has offered. Not one of them can be seen at a county fair. They are all from the Eastern circuit and play only the great fairs of the country. They are the best of the world's records kept by farm, the Bands and the Best Singers of the country are under contract. The Night Show in itself is a $10,000 attraction, and added to this is a Gorgeous $5,000 Fireworks Production that will delight and thrill you every night. The Loud Speaker System carries every word and musical note from the platform to every part of the great amphitheater. The Nebraska State Fair is one of the big ones of this nation. Its Wonderful Exhibits, its Educational Features, and its Thrilling Program are keeping pace with the advancement of Nebraska. Thousands will take advantage of the Free Camp Grounds. It takes several days to see the Nebraska State Fair in all its entirety, but it's a trip worth while. Let's go.

THE APATHETIC DRY VOTE

Declaring that in the past, 50 per cent of the dry vote has refrained from registering or voting, Mrs. Ella A. Boole, national president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union sounded the call to action in Chicago the other day.

Mrs. Boole has launched a campaign to get out every available dry vote at the fall election to defeat efforts of wets to modify the Volstead act.

If the dry vote only comes out then, the congressional elections this fall should reveal how the country stands on the Volstead act as it operates at present. It is a test the country needs.

A national referendum a few months ago went wet. At that time it was claimed by the dries that the real voting strength had refrained from participating in the voting because it didn't mean anything. But these elections will mean something very definite.

The W. C. T. U. will support dry candidates for the senate and house of representatives. The organization is ignoring, however, referendums in several states where they are being held because they propose action by congress that "cannot be done."

The congressional elections are left to tell the story. Barring the personal equation which each candidate brings into the fray, the test should be a pretty fair indicator. The results will be watched eagerly by the wets and dries alike.

ENTERTAINS FOR NIECE

From Tuesday's Daily—

Last evening the Misses Mia and Barbara Gering were hostesses at a very pleasant 5:30 tea given in honor of their niece, Miss Ursula Herold, who has been home for the summer vacation from her studies at Smith college.

The settings of the luncheon were in the fall flowers that made a very attractive touch to the scene and with the bright and charming guests of the evening made the event one of the greater charms.

Following the tea, the members of the party were entertained at a theatre party at the Parmele where the ladies witnessed the performance of "Men of Steel."

Those attending the event were Misses Alice Louise Westcott, Virginia Anderson of Chicago, Helen Edith Fremont, Helen Clement, Edith and Helen Farley, Ruth Shannon.

Good Farms Have Alfalfa and Clover

The best farms in Cass county grow about twice as many acres of alfalfa and sweet clover as the poorest farms, according to a farm business report of records kept by farm, the Fastest Woman Driver in this country is among the number. The best field of Horses ever assembled on a Nebraska track will contest for big purses. The program of Attractions in front of the grand stand will positively outclass anything the State Fair has offered. Not one of them can be seen at a county fair. Results from Record Flocks.

Poultry flock owners who have been in the University Record Flock project for the past four years have made a steady improvement in the management of their flocks. While they have only increased the number of hens in their flocks from 114 to 131, they have increased the profits from their flocks from $275 to $295 per year. The increase has been due to higher egg production and to more careful marketing. In other words the men and women who have been in the project four years have become interested in their chickens because the figures have shown them they were making a profit from them. Being interested, they have taken up the suggestions given them by the agricultural college poultrymen as to feeding, housing, breeding, rearing, etc., and have earned their increased profits by using these better methods. The University Record Flock project is open to any flock owner having 50 or more standard bred chickens. There are no charges connected with the project. The new year starts November 1, but flock owners may enroll anytime. Application can be made to county extension agents and to the agricultural college at Lincoln.
