Scoutmaster Wiltse Received Royal Welcome

Former Teacher and Scout Leader Here Has Real Greeting at the Philippines.

From Wednesday's Daily— Irving P. Wiltse, formerly in the commercial department of the Plattsmouth city schools and who was also the head of the Boy Scouts of this city, had a very pleasant experience in his first touch with life in the Philippine Islands.

Mr. Wiltse was honored with being selected as one of the few of the scout executives attending Columbia, New York, to go to the Philippine Islands where the Scout work is to be introduced to the youngsters of the island wards of Uncle Sam and which work with the youth of that part of the world is promising to be as successful as that of the United States.

Mr. Wiltse sailed with his party for Manila and on their arrival there received a welcome that was cordial in the extreme and with a demonstration that made the scoutmasters feel they were some eminent government dignitary or a crowned head.

Large delegations of the representatives of the government, the Philippine Scouts in their uniforms, members of the American and foreign colonies as well as hundreds of the residents of Manila were at the docks to meet the boat on its arrival and to extend the glad hand to the new arrivals. The bands were playing and the citizens greeted the party with cheers as they came down the gang plank to join in their new work in the islands in youth training.

It is reported here that Mr. Wiltse who is a stranger in a strange land will not be so lonely in the near future as the future Mrs. Wiltse will join him in Manila in a short time and their marriage take place in that interesting place.

First Happy Hundred Supper of Season

Capacity Attendance and Address of the Evening by Senator R. Beecher Howell.

From Wednesday's Daily— The fans of the fall and winter suppers of the men of the community, known as the Happy Hundred, was held last evening at the parlors of the First Presbyterian church and which was attended by an audience that filled the capacity of the parlors where the supper was served.

The ladies had arranged the tables with the decorations of the fall foliage, the reds, yellows and greens of the foliage adding a very colorful note to the plan of the evening.

Searl S. Davis, who has presided over the gatherings of the Happy Hundred in the past three years, was the presiding officer of the evening and called upon the members of the supper party to give several of their songs.

The menu of the evening that the ladies had arranged was up to the usual high standard and reflected a great deal of credit on the ladies for its excellence as well as the pleasant manner in which it was served.

E. H. Wescott of the committee reported the effort of members of the committee who have served for the past few years to withdraw from service and particularly the efforts of Mr. Davis to relinquish the duties of presiding officer to other hands, but it was the enthusiastic remembrance of the large audience that Mr. Davis continue in this work for this year much as he might dislike the task.

At this meeting there were a number of the new arrivals in the city who have become a part of the community life and who were greeted by the members of the supper party. Rev. Searl pastor of the Methodist church, R. E. Bailey, superintendent of city schools, Messrs. Flack and Roland of the high school faculty, W. G. Davis, secretary of the chamber of commerce, Messrs. Brunson, Teeples and Wiggins of the Burlington Refrigerator Express as well as Norris Cummins of the Cummins studio were greeted with songs and made acquainted with the large audience.

The speaker of the evening, Senator R. Beecher Howell was introduced briefly by the chairman and gave a very interesting address that covered the lines of the interest of the central west in the business of the nation and the many problems that are today confronting the American congress in the lines of farm relief, tariff reduction and foreign war debt refunding.

The speaker pointed out that there was urgent need of the uniting of all of the interests of the agricultural west at this time to secure just relief for the farmer. The fact that the tariff had for many years served as a subsidy for the large interests of the east by stifling competition while the farmers of the nation had to face the competition of a world market. What the tariff has been to the large industries of the east the Esch-Cummins bill had stifled all competition in the railroad world and permitted the establishing of freight and passenger rates that might be acceptable to the railroads.

There were, Senator Howell stated, 6,500,000 farm operators in the United States, wholly unorganized and subjected to unrestricted competition among themselves and also of the people of other countries as they were competing on a world market. The farmer sold on a buyers market and bought on a sellers market, being caught in the millstone of unregulated competition.

The raise in price of all non-agricultural products, wages, freight rates, as compared with the products of the farmer showed a great disadvantage to the farmer at all stages of the game. The reports of prosperity that indicated more than 12 percent of the highest average in other sections disclosed that the farmer suffered from a depression of more than 12 percent.

The large industrial and financial institutions were in the saddle in the national halls at Washington and by their campaigns and control of sentiment were able to secure favored legislation while the farmer must suffer alone, the large interests objecting strongly to any plan that might benefit the farmer because of the fact that they feared that it might affect their prosperity.

Senator Howell also attacked the foreign war debt settlements that had been arranged by Secretary Mellon of the Coolidge administration, claiming that the cancellation of the debts would impose on the American people the burden of paying this cost that the other countries had owed.

The senator also stressed the plans of co-operation that had been suggested as a solution of the farmers troubles, the voluntary plan of co-operative selling that had been urged by President Coolidge as against the compulsory plan that had been proposed of handling the buying and selling of the farmers products, particularly wheat. Under the compulsory plan that Senator Howell endorsed was that the organization purchasing the crop of the farmer at the price to be set and the selling by the co-operative organization to insure a good and uniform price.

And Along Came Ruth; Three Homers

Babe Ruth Wrecks Stands With Great Drives—Yanks 10; Cards, 5.

From Wednesday's Daily— The fans of the United States were looking toward St. Louis today where the world's championship baseball games were being staged with the admirers of the New York Yankees and the west the thousands of the Cardinal supporters.

The attendance at the game was another record breaker that filled Sportman's park to its capacity, 37,000 was given as the official attendance at this game.

Clear skies and warmth greeted the players as they arrived at the park for the fourth game of the world's series.

First Inning. Combs had the first ball pitched called as a strike as he faced Ruth, the batter was struck out by Rhem. Koenig was also struck out by the St. Louis hurler. Ruth knocked a home run off the first ball pitched, the ball going over the right field fence. Meusel was given a walk. Gehrig singled along the right field line, which hit the plate trying to score. Southworth to Hornsby to O'Farrell. One run, two hits and no errors.

Douthit hit a grounder to deep short and beat the throw to first base, securing a hit. Southworth singled to center. Douthit going to third base. Hornsby singled to right field, scoring Douthit. Southworth stopping at second base. Bottomley was out on a fly to left field. L. Bell at bat when Shawkey was sent up to warm up or the Yanks. Bell out on a sacrifice fly at second. Second Inning. Lazzari doubled to left center, but was thrown out trying to stretch it into a triple. Dugan was out on a pop fly to short. Severeid singled to center. Ruth was put on a pop fly to second. No runs, one hit and no errors.

O'Farrell was retired second to first, a great stop by Lazzari. Thevenow popped to first base for the second. Rhem was out on a third called strike. No runs, no hits no errors.

Third Inning. Combs was retired on a fly to center field. Koenig was out, Hornsby to Bottomley. Ruth knocked his second home run of the game in this frame, hitting into the right field pavilion. Meusel retired the side. Rhem to Bottomley. One run, one hit and no errors.

Douthit was out on a grounder to short. Southworth singled to short center. Hornsby was struck out. Bottomley was out, second to first. No runs, one hit and no errors.

Fourth Inning. Gehrig was struck out by Rhem. Lazzari was given a walk. Dugan hit a fly to short left. Douthit and Hafey both attempted to field the ball and collided, both falling down, and were knocked unconscious. Lazzari scored on the play with Dugan reaching second. Severeid singled to center. Dugan was put out at the plate, a good peg by Douthit nailing the runner at the home plate. Hoyt was out on the third called strike. One run, two hits and no errors.

L. Bell was put out on a fly to short. Koenig making a great running catch. Hafey singled to center field. Meusel came in from right field and the Yank players gathered around him, and after a short conference he resumed his place in the field. O'Farrell was retired second to first. Thevenow doubled to right field, scoring Hafey while O'Farrell was held at third base. Perporce was sent in to bat for Rhem and was out on a sacrifice to center. O'Farrell scored. Thevenow holding second base. Douthit doubled to right field, scoring Thevenow. Southworth singled to left. Douthit being put out at the plate. Ruth to Severeid, three runs, four hits one error.

Fifth Inning. Reinhart was sent out to pitch for St. Louis. Combs was walked as Reinhart was wild. Koenig came to bat righthanded and had the first strike called and later doubled to right, scoring Combs. Ruth was walked. Meusel was at bat when Manager Hornsby, O'Farrell and Reinhart held a conference at the pitchers box. Meusel was walked, presenting the Yanks with a score. Reinhart was taken out of the game and replaced by H. Bell. Lazzari was out on a sacrifice to right field that scored Ruth. Meusel going to third base. Dugan was out, pitcher to first, Meusel scoring. Gehrig went to third on a balk by pitcher. Severeid was walked. Hoyt grounded to second, forcing Severeid, second to short. Four runs, one hit and no errors.

Sixth Inning. Combs singled to deep short and beat the throw to first base. Koenig was struck out. Ruth hit his third home run of the game that scored Combs and tied up the game for the Cardinals fans with the terrific blows of his bat. Meusel singled to right field but was out trying to stretch it into a double. Gehrig doubled to left field. Lazzari was out on a pop fly to short. Two runs, four hits and no errors.

O'Farrell singled to deep short. Koenig stopped the ball on a sacrifice bunt. Meusel made the throw. Thevenow singled to left. O'Farrell going to second. Follwers
