Bryan Urges Repeal of Intangible Tax Statute

Pledges Equal Distribution of Taxes According to Property Held

Cambridge, Neb., Oct. 20.—Repeal of the intangible tax law whereby each citizen of the state may stand equally before the law and share alike in the cost of government according to the property that he owns was pledged here today by Former Governor Charles W. Bryan in a democratic meeting.

"Every farm owner, home owner, wage earner and business man," he said, "knows that he is paying more for his share of the cost of government."

"The tariff at the close of the war doubled the price of everything the people in agricultural sections use or wear. It shut the farmers out from their best customers across the seas. As a result the farmer has surplus product on his hands and no market for them. Freight rates for the farmer have been raised 30 per cent and it costs him about $240 on a half section of land to get his good to what market he has left.

"This happened during the time the farmer was 'deflated' by the republican administration. Corn sagged to 50 cents and wheat to one dollar. Cattle men were bankrupted and market for real estate was destroyed.

"Then came the intangible tax law passed during the McKelvie administration, allowing tax dodgers to escape about one million dollars a year in tax payments a year. Promises to repeal it, made by the republican party have not been kept. This year's platform evades the question entirely.

"How could Senator Norris speak for or endorse the republican ticket in Nebraska this year when its platform and its candidate for governor has refused to promise to uphold the state primary law and has failed to promise to uphold the bank guaranty law and has refused even to promise taxpayers repeal of the intangible tax law?" Bryan concluded.

Marie Spends Day in Dashing Here and There

Queen Guest at Dinners, Luncheons and Receptions; Visits Columbia University; Cold Worse.

New York, Oct. 23.—Queen Marie of Rumania went on the air late Friday night in a speech at a dinner of the American Iron and Steel Institute at the Hotel Commodore. Her speech was broadcast by station WJZ, New York.

Officials of WJZ said stations WRC, Washington, and WBZ, Springfield, Mass., had been hooked up for the occasion. They said the broadcasting was in no way connected with the misunderstanding that occurred earlier in the evening resulting in the failure of plans for the queen to speak at Aeolian hall through a national hookup of 21 stations.

New York, Oct. 23.—Queen Marie rushed through another hectic, wearing day Friday, dashing from place to place, from luncheon to dinner, to receptions and other things.

She coughed and sniffled through it all, changing clothes and handkerchiefs many times. And at the end, she was a tired queen. Her bad cold had grown worse.

After a bit of rest, she went down to the financial section to lunch with New York's swankiest bankers.

For the first time since she embarked on this trip, Marie found herself out of the focus of publicity. Reporters were barred from the meeting—and the food.

The queen got a hurried glimpse of a great American university in full swing when she visited Columbia in the afternoon.

After Columbia, the queen was to have appeared at the national Y. W. C. A. headquarters as guest of honor at a reception. This appointment, however, was canceled early in the day and no explanation given.

Later in the day, the queen had dinner at a hotel with members of the Iron and Steel Institute, spoke for half an hour over the radio, and had supper at the Fifth avenue mansion of Judge Elbert H. Gary.

While her majesty was filling social engagements, Prince Nicolas busied himself at police headquarters as the guest of Police Commissioner McLaughlin.

He had already developed an interest in the department and wanted to see how the American police system works.

So he went through headquarters, was "mugged and measured" in the Bertillon and finger-print departments, and viewed the rogue's gallery.

2 AMERICANS ON 3-YEAR VIGIL

Capetown, Union of South Africa, Oct. 18.—Two Americans have begun a lonely three-year vigil on a mountain peak near here to study sun spots for better forecasting of weather.

Supplied with an immense amount of astronomical apparatus, F. Greely and A. Hoover, took up their abode on the peak, a mile high, where the atmosphere is clear of dust and there is little rain to interfere with their observations.

They have a wireless set and can "listen-in" on the radio concerts at Johannesburg and Capetown.

GERMAN COAL EXPERT TO COME TO PITTSBURGH

Pittsburgh, Pa.—The Germans, considered the world leaders in coal research, will send their leading scientists to America to describe their discoveries.

This step in international co-operation will be taken at the conference on bituminous coal at the Carnegie Institute of Technology on November 16th 18, President Thomas S. Baker announced today.

Dr. Friedrich Bergius and Franz Fischer will represent Germany at the meeting. They are the inventors of processes considered the most promising of all the methods so far devised for production of fuel oil from coal.

Foreign leadership in coal-research is explained by the fact that America has a wealth of petroleum resources, while in Europe there is little natural petroleum under the ground, and the possibilities of using coal have therefore been carefully investigated.

ELEVEN SHANGHAIED SEAMEN TO SUE FOR $110,000 DAMAGES

New York, Oct. 20.—Eleven seamen, who alleged they were shanghaied as members of the crew of revolutionists that mannes the former steam fishing trawler Foam and bombarded Nicaraguan coast towns, Tuesday filed affidavits as an overture to a suit for $110,000 damages. They also alleged they were shipwrecked for many days on a small island off the Nicaraguan coast with nothing to eat but coconuts.
