Hold Safety First Meeting for Employees

Nebraska Gas & Electric Co. Discuss With Their Employees Methods of Safety.

From Wednesday's Daily— In the advancement of the practice of being better safe than sorry the Nebraska Gas & Electric Co. held a meeting of the employees of their company in this city on Monday evening that was attended by some forty of the persons who are engaged in the work of producing and distributing the electricity and gas in this section.

The meeting was addressed by E. C. Hill of Lincoln, safety engineer of the company and who gave in his remarks many of the ways in which accidents occur in this line of work, means of avoiding accidents and of protecting the workmen and those connected with the service of the light and power company through the measures of safety first.

There were present a large number of the men engaged in the erecting of the new super-power station here at Plattsmouth and who heard with interest the plea of Mr. Hill for more and better efforts to reduce the number of accidents in the service. From the remarks of the speaker a great deal of good was derived by those attending the meeting and the ideas received there will be put into practical effect.

At the conclusion of the talks the members of the party were regaled with coffee and sandwiches, prepared electrically and also smoked for the members of the party that aided in the completion of a most pleasant evening for all of the members of the party.

86th Birthday is Celebrated by Maj. Steadman

Sole Confederate Veteran Now Serving as Member of Congress; From North Carolina.

From Wednesday's Daily— Representative Charles M. Steadman, of North Carolina, sole surviving Confederate veteran in congress, celebrated his eighty-sixth birthday last Saturday.

Elected to the Sixty-second congress from the Fifth congressional district of North Carolina in 1911, he has served continuously in the house from that district. At the November election last year, he was re-elected, therefore, following the expiration of his present term in March the Major will return for another two-year term.

The North Carolina State society gave a banquet in his honor at the Hotel Hamilton on Saturday evening.

Mr. Steadman was a major in the Confederate army at the close of the Civil War. Before receiving his diploma, he enlisted in the 1st North Carolina regiment, the Fayetteville Independent Light Infantry, later joining a battalion of Chatham, of which he was made major. He was wounded three times in the battle of the Wilderness, finally surrendering at Appomattox.

Major Steadman was elected Lieutenant Governor of North Carolina in 1884, later, however, he was defeated for governor of the state by a small majority. But in his congressional raves he piled up some of the largest majorities ever recorded.

The fifth congressional district of North Carolina is the third largest in population in the United States.

Congressman Steadman was born at Pittsboro, N. C., on January 29, 1841.

RETURNS FROM TEXAS

From Wednesday's Daily— Frank E. Vallery, the well known real estate hustler of this city has just returned from Harlingen, Texas, where he conducted a party of land seekers and tourists to view the wonders of the great Rio Grande valley, one of the most interesting spots in the south and one that is fast being thickly populated by the homeseekers from the north.

Mr. Vallery was accompanied by some thirty-two on the party and including Glen Boedeker of the Murray State bank, Fred Nutzmann, well known Nehawka financier and Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Metz of Springfield, who will be well remembered here as the contractor in charge of the work on the highway between this city and the Platte river.

The party visited the entire length of this fine stretch of valley land and had the opportunity of meeting a large number of the old time friends who are now located in that section of the country and enjoying the stay in the sunny south to the limit. They also visited the towns of McAllen, Harlingen and Brownsville, the capital city of the valley district.

The trip was not complete without a dash over the Rio Grande to see the sights of the Mexican cities located within a few miles of the border and where the members of the party had the opportunity of comparing American and Mexican methods.
