John E. Curtiss Brings a Ringing Message of State

Lincoln Civic Leader and National Vice-Commander of American Legion a Whirlwind.

From Wednesday's Daily— There have been many very notable speakers and splendid addresses given here before the Happy Hundred in the past but none more real and gripping and with a real message of Nebraska and its greatness than was offered last evening at the March supper at the parlors of the First Methodist church by John E. Curtiss, leader in civic work at Lincoln, the capitol city, and also the national vice-commander of the American Legion representing the great middle western states.

The ladies of the church had prepared the supper with the settings of the St. Patrick's season, green being used in the decorations of the tables with green streamers, green candles and the bright hued flowers white back of the speaker was hung the glorious flag of our nation.

Searl S. Davis, who is himself no small sharer of the local community civic duties, was the toastmaster of the occasion and very cleverly carried on the meeting.

The occasion was marked by a very large attendance of the former service men of the community and who were featured by the toastmaster in being called upon to stand and make a real showing for the service men of the community.

A number of songs were enjoyed and the quartet rendering "Sweet Adeline" with all the ardor and melody of the days when the song was new and singing staid more than mere cocoa cola. In this however, we except the accompanist, who was in his usual musical mood.

Not the least of the surprises of the evening was the rendition of this popular old time tune melody as a solo by W. R. Holly, one of the past commanders of the local American Legion post and who took no bluff from the songsters.

The supper was also the occasion of the trying out of the new Nebraska song, prepared by the western Irving Berlin, Ross W. Crans, and which is not "All Alone" but is all there as a real peppy song of the great state that has given so many fine men and women to the nation, in their native as well as acquired sons and daughters. Here it is: Missouri River on the East, Colorado on the West, the best old state that I have found.

"Noo Brass Ky" that's its name. Corn and Cows have won it fame. "Noo Brass Ky" is where we dwell, Its the best old state—this side of—

The tune is that of "The Little Brown Jug."

The toastmaster called upon Elmer A. Webb, adjutant of the local post of the American Legion who gave a short and to the point statement as to the Legion community building that is being planned to be erected this coming year. Mr. Webb showed that the amount subscribed at this time was $9,350 and with $4,800 already paid in on the pledges, the Legion had purchased the site for the building from its own funds amounting to $2,700 and that they had also paid the expenses of the architect in making the plans and specifications for the building. The expectation was for the calling for bids in the near future and that the active work would be started. The cost of the structure when completed would be $21,000. It was expected to pay off the indebtedness on the building in activities of various kinds and it was shown in the years that the Legion has been holding carnivals and similar activities they had raised $6,500. The adjutant also expressed the appreciation of the Legion for the splendid co-operation and support of the business men and citizens of the community in all of their projects and including the community building. Mr. Webb also paid a short tribute to Mr. Curtiss, the speaker of the evening on his work in the Legion of the state.

Mr. Curtiss in his address opened with an appreciation of the spirit of friendship among men and communities, the associations and friendly acts that money could not purchase and which was real and lasting and not a thing lightly to be passed by. It was this spirit of friendly co-operation that struck home a real meaning and made communities great or little as the personal effort of the individual was exerted. The thought was that of the old jungle law that the pack was as strong as the wolf and the wolf as strong as the pack and so with the communities, they were strong if the individual efforts were great and the community weak if the individual was lacking in their spirit of work and co-operation. The speaker gave a very wonderful tribute to the pioneers of the west and particularly of Nebraska where the sacrifices of the early residents here had made the state as great as it is today. Those who had come here in the pioneer day had none of the luxuries that we enjoy today but their great spirit of sacrifice was what had made the state as great as it was. The speaker recited a number of the great things that the state of Nebraska has in the way of resources, the values of minor returns of the farm in the dairy, egg and butter market that is greater than the citrus fruit crop of California, the fact that the largest hay market in the world was in this state, the second largest stock market in the nation, the greatest horse and mule market in the country and many

Traffic Regulation for Safety and Saneness

Cities Over Country Find That Liberal Law Enforcement Meets With Approval.

Does it pay police in cities and towns to be unusually strict in enforcing traffic laws, especially against strangers or does it pay to be more liberal? Many communities throughout the country have proved quite satisfactorily that liberal application of traffic laws with reference to strangers is the most profitable in the long run. The day of "pinching" the public for every slight infraction, is past. The consensus of opinion expressed by police officials at the recent National Motorcycle Show held at New York was to the effect that it is no longer considered good form to maintain police forces merely to see how many arrests can be made. On the contrary, the majority of police and municipal heads judge the efficiency of police effort by the lack of arrests. In other words modern police practice is following the plan of preventative action rather than punitive action. One police official in his address recently stressed this point to his subordinates by pointing out that an officer showing an unusual number of arrests would be considered not fulfilling the policies of the department. He pointed out that a reduction of accidents within an officer's sphere of activity means more to the community than a large number of arrests for minor infractions. Municipal authorities who have given a great deal of thought and study to the problem claim that the presence of a properly uniformed and properly mounted officer on the road acts as a satisfactory deterrent to deliberate law infractions and enables an officer to thoroughly patrol a given territory, lending aid to snarled traffic and by keeping vehicles on the move, reduce the possibility of collisions. Increased traffic congestion in all localities has made it almost impossible for communities to adopt motorcycle patrol to effectively handle traffic conditions require a type of patrol which may be quickly maneuvered in and out of traffic thus enabling the patrol officer to reach a given point in as short a time as possible.

IN SERIOUS CONDITION

From Saturday's Daily— Mrs. Antonia Hraskey, aged resident of this city, who makes her home alone at the family residence on Wintersteen Hill, is in quite serious condition at her home as the result of a severe attack of rheumatism and her advanced years. Mrs. Hraskey has not been well for some time and her only attraction is that which can be afforded by the neighbors who have made every effort to lend what aid was possible. Yesterday Mrs. B. B. Warthen who resides near the Hraskey home noticed that there was no smoke coming from the chimney of the house and no sign of Mrs. Hraskey so she started to investigate the matter and found that the aged lady was in bed and unable to get up and Mr. and Mrs. Warthen finally got her arranged properly and prepared her breakfast and looked after her care as long as possible. This morning they again failed to see the neighbor and going over Mrs. Warthen found that Mrs. Hraskey had gotten out of bed and was unable to get back into the bed and had laid on the floor for a greater part of the night as the lamp was still burning in the room. The Warthen family succeeded in getting her back into bed and are now doing all they can to care for the aged lady but who is in need of constant care.

SOME OLD PAPERS

From Friday's Daily— James K. Pollock of this city has several copies of old newspapers that are unique in their makeup and style as compared with the modern day newspapers and also interesting as being very aged, one being a copy of the Presbyterian Messenger of September 24, 1859 and another a copy of the New York Daily Tribune of November 1, 1860, the last named paper being the personal organ of Horace Greeley, then one of the foremost editors of the country. The Tribune was blazing with the election notes of the notable campaign that made Abraham Lincoln president and was the forerunner of the great civil war that was to follow in the next few months. The news of the day in the Tribune and the size of the paper seems strange in this day and age and the city of New York and the state were far different from the present day city and state. Mr. Pollock also has a copy of the Lincoln State Journal of 1879 that presents a ten column form for the paper and which is also filled with real political shots and marks the old style newspaper of the campaign days.

DEATH OF LITTLE BABE

From Saturday's Daily— Yesterday the little babe of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Adams of Bearford, South Dakota, who passed away at the time of birth a few days ago was brought here by the sorrowing father and laid to rest in the family lot in the Horning cemetery just south of this city. The little one was the first son in the family and his passing brought a deep grief to the parents as well as the grandparents Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Adams of this city. In their sorrow the members of the family will have the deep sympathy of the many friends in this community in the sadness that has come to darken their home.

"More speed more pay," is a good policy for the cops to tie too, for one who knows the law, and breaks it.

other resources that made the state one of the greatest in the Union of states. Mr. Curtiss urged his hearers to believe Nebraska, talk Nebraska, boost Nebraska and take a real pride in the state where there was opportunity to gain life and wealth in the products of the soil and where the people were the finest in the world. It was co-operation, everlasting boosting and effort that made the work of selling the state to the world and which was one of the things the Nebraska people should do. The fine cities of the state were inducements for homes and right living and among whom the speaker gave Plattsmouth a notable place.

In his closing Mr. Curtiss touched on the matter of the agitation to stop military training in the state university and defended the proposition on the grounds that it was not an attempt to create a military spirit but to make a more thoroughly equipped force of men with knowledge of defense in case of warfare rather than to foster a war spirit. The speaker pointed out the fact that thousands of American lives had been lost in the world war because of lack of real training which was demanded in time of stress. With danger threatening it was time to keep a spirit of civic preparedness in the nation and the small measure that the university had given in the military drill was not a step toward war but for being prepared with the proper knowledge in time of national stress. Mr. Curtiss also briefly touched on the recent lack of indifference on the part of many to the great services of many of our leaders and the honor paid to those whose lives were not of service to the country or the people. At the close of the supper the members of the party joined in the singing of "America" and were dismissed by the benediction by Rev. H. G. McClusky.

1914, one child, Eunice Jeanette. Most of her married life was lived around Weeping Water.

She was converted and joined the Methodist church when 18, and was transferred to the M. E. church at Weeping Water about three years ago. She was an able worker in any task she applied herself to.

Her girlhood was spent in Eagle, where she was a leader among her friends. She was especially endowed with the natural ability of making friends.

She leaves to mourn her departure, her husband and daughter, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Adams, two brothers, Guy of Keystone, Neb., Jay Adams of Glendo, Wyoming and one sister, Jeanette Havens of Omaha. She was preceded in death by a sister, Ermel Edna, who departed this life when but a child.

Mrs. Ruhga was sick about a year, and in the last six months seemed to have the intuition that she might be called. But her mother love, especially for her daughter, buoyed her up as long as there was hope.
